The Aztec Mystery

BY MURRAY LEINSTER

SYNOPSIS.

Sonny Holman, believing he is the rightful owner of the Astee mine, holds up the mine's payrolls. Janet Laurier, who holds legal title to the Astee, tries to stop his activities.

What New York Libraries of Ontario Growing Is Wearing

In Popular Favor lending libraries of late years, and the growing appreciation of the service rendered by our public libraries, as evidenced by the demand of the citizens for reading thus offered, make the annual report of public libraries of the province one of great interest. During the year, seven new public libraries were established, six being of the association type, and one former library of this kind having become free. The travelling libraries have been well patronized, residents of small places with no library facilities availing themselves of the opportunity of getting good books at the minimum of expense. Another splendid service rendered during the year was the sending of thirty cases of books—5,890 volumes—to the construction camps of the province. This branch is therefore, playing well its part in Ontario's educational work.

The bringing of reading opportunities to rural communities is engaging the thoughtful attention of the library world today. To this end county library idea has been suggested, to reach even sparsely settled sections county library laws told that, at an early age, Mr. Wilson pere, who was a great admirer of good English, made his boy read a page or two of the best examples of literature. "Now take a pen," he would say, "and mark every unnecessary word." President Wilson said it was a difficult and weary task, but, in doing it, he began to perceive how exquisite was the workmanship, and so gradually developed a clear and limpid style of his own.

A report that the government of the price of fuel will not be advanced here this winter over the prices in force last winter. A report that the government is the first numerous—too numerous to suit the salmon men. The purpose sought is not to exterminate the herds but to keep them within something like reasonable limits in numbers and thus to protect the salmon resources, which mean so much to British Columbia and, indeed, to the Dominion. Just how much these resources do mean is indicated by the fact that, in normal times, the value of the prodution from the British Columbia salmon fishery may be as much as $16,000,000, and even more. The salmon runs are worth too much to allow them to be jeopardized by marauding sea lions.

When he has done that, his own particular style will develop of itself. Therefore study the best masters.—From "Journalism," Leader-Writing, by H. A. Gwynne.
