Promises must be regarded as sacred and binding; otherwise God is dishonored. In the fourth commandment (vs. 8-11) God claimed for himself one day of the seven, in order to show his right to all the days. The seventh day is kept holy when it is set aside for God. Men set it aside for God when every member and dependant of the household ceases from all forms of work. The reason given for restraining from work on the Sabbath is that God himself rested at the end of his week of creative work, Gen. bath is that God himself reside at the end of his week of creative work, Gen. 2: 2, 3. By tracing the Sabbath back to the creation, the suggestion is con-veyed that the Sabbath was wrought into the very structure of the universe. It rests on no arbitrary whim, but upon a deep and abiding necessity, ordarded of God.
