Things To Think About

To be published each week

The Chautauqua is drawing capacity crowds, with accommodation at a minimum even for those who have season tickets. It is too bad the money expended for this entertainment during the past three years by the various citizens of the community, had not been placed in some project that would stand with some permanency as a memorial to their efforts.

Why wouldn't an addition to the lower end of the skating rink be an advantage. Compare the expense of a twenty foot addition to the benefit derived from a hockey stand-

Monday morning bright and clear. A man came into our office and said he had been to our big business place (and not mean banks) and doors locked. He said: "This is the town. Is it depression?"

And there wasn't an order coming in. And what's more, there were a lot of fellows standing in front of the door. "There isn't any business here," he said.

AMATEUR HOCKEY

Some well known amateur hockey players of the Maritime Provinces, who are professionals, is the state-ment made by Dr. Leo Dolan, in the employment during the summer, and part of his salary is being paid by some industrial concern, but throughout the winter the amateur is devoted all his time, energy and attention to nothing but hockey, and his salary is larger than during the summer and fall.

As a pro league were formed in the Maritimes, the expense to the clubs would not be greater, but less. The players would be on a salary for 4 months, not 12, and the salary list would not be one cent higher during the winter months than it is today.

Furthermore, the club owners would have more efficient control over their players than they have today, and the fans would get as good, if not a better brand of hockey.

Regarding conditions elsewhere in Canada, Mr. Dolan adds: "Some will say particularly in the Maritimes, that conditions are not one bit worse here than they are in other parts of Canada. And perhaps they are right. I have no definite knowledge of amateur hockey conditions in Upper Canada—the name we Maritimers use in referring to Montreal, Toronto, Hamilton and other cities—but I have my suspicions. I do know that many amateurs who were playing in Upper Canada last year didn't engage in their hockey pursuits for the mere love of the game. The old spirit of 'I'd die for Rutgers' isn't so prevalent as it used to be. Some of these amateurs who were playing in the Maritimes last year didn't engage in their hockey pursuits for the mere love of the game. Caution to Grain Growers. (Experimental Farms Note) The time of year has again arrived when seed for the coming crop is being offered for sale. Aping from the channels through which seed is ordinarily disposed of, namely, Seed Houses, Seed Growers' Associations and from farmers direct, there is always present, the 'high pressure' salesman endeavoring to dispose of seed in new varieties at high prices.

While there is a perfectly natural desire on the part of a grower to try a new variety in the hope that it will be better adapted to his local conditions than the standard sorts, this desire has often led to regrettable results and such cases only emphasize the soundness of a policy of caution in the outlay of money on high priced seed for a new and little known variety.

The Dominion Seeds Act requires that all varieties introduced into Canada must be licensed in order to be sold for seed. A variety is licensed on the basis of experimental evidence which shows that the variety in question has some merit or is adapted to a particular environment. This fact, however, does not imply that because a variety is licensed for sale in Canada it can be recommended to replace standard sorts in any section of the country, but rather that the variety is one that is promising and would warrant further trial in order to establish more definitely its general usefulness.

— BREAKFAST —
BREAKFAST USED TO BE A FAMILY MEAL. In most homes nowadays, however, breakfast has become somewhat of a hurried event—every man for himself.

To some extent, this has come about because people live further away from their work places, and so more time is taken in transportation. As the hour when the different members of the family must leave to reach school or work varies, so the breakfast hour varies.

A much more common explanation, however, is that, on account of late hours, people are not sufficiently rested when it is time to get up. They refuse to leave their beds until the last minute, and then take everything in a rush, including their breakfast.

In general, they will tell you that this does not make any difference about their hunger in the morning and that they would not eat much even if they had plenty of time to spare.

We do not enjoy food when we are tired, and so the person who does not get sufficient sleep, quite naturally, is not particularly interested in breakfast. The person who has been out the previous evening and who has indulged in refreshments, or who has eaten before retiring, finds that his appetite for breakfast is lost.

These persons who enjoy their breakfast is the one who feels rested when he rises, who has not loaded his stomach before retiring, who has time to wash and to dress, and can then sit down quietly to a meal that is properly prepared and served.

hunters if accompanied by dogs. A huge petition was now being prepared, he said, to have this legislation repealed, and to permit dogs to accompany deer hunters anywhere in the province.

"We protest against any legislation to ban hunting with dogs for several strong reasons," said Mr. Kightley. "In the first place, where there is still hunting, more hunters are killed than where dogs are used for the reason that dogs announce themselves by barks which cannot be mistaken. Continuing, the president of the Welland Branch of the Game Protective Association stated that last year 28 hunters were killed through shooting misadventures in the state of Ohio, and 49 were killed in Pennsylvania. Neither of these states permit hunting with dogs.

Another good reason for hunting with dogs, Mr. Kightley continued, was that when accompanied by dogs hunters stood less chance of being lost in the dense woods where deer are often hunted. There were only two many reasons why the law should allow dogs to accompany hunters, Mr. Kightley concluded.

NEWSPAPER ADVERTISING
A rural carrier told the writer recently that if business firms who sent out considerable quantities of circulars under the impression that they are producing more thorough coverage, could be at hand at many mail boxes when the mail is received they might succumb to heart failure over the reception accorded their literature.

Hunters Protest Law Over Dogs
A. G. Kightley, president of the Welland branch of the Ontario Hunters' Game Protective Ass'n. Norval Lynn, the secretary, and T. E. Haan and Martin Whelan, prominent members, represented the branch at the annual convention held a few days ago in Toronto, and they report that a resolution was unanimously passed to protest any legislation to ban deer hunting with dogs in the province.
