

WITH THE LONE SCOUTS

This month's issue of "On Lone Scout Trails" will contain features of an interesting competition for the Lone Scouts.

During the Lone Scout Summer Camp in July, a gift of Meccano Magazine was received from the proprietors of Meccano, Ltd., and these books were eagerly read by the Lone Scouts during their spare moments. Messrs. Meccano, Ltd., have now kindly offered a prize of a $5.00 Meccano outfit to the Lone Scout who writes the best essay on the subject "Why I Like to Read the Meccano Magazine."

For further particulars, Lone Scouts see the October issue of "The Trails."

Canadian Uniforms in Falklands
The uniforms worn by Scouts of the Falkland Islands are procured from Canadian Scout Headquarters. Ottawa included is a special heavy "windbreaker."

Scouts Were Match For G. B. S.
Addressing Boy Scouts after his home in Hertfordshire, George Bernard Shaw offered the typical shavian advice that for future scouts the ways that are not for them should not carry food, but take possession of homes whose owners were absent, and beg their meals. Returning to his own troop of Scouts requesting food, and making themselves comfortable for the night. No one enjoyed the joke better than G. B. S.

Scouts at the Empire Conference
A number of selected Scouts representing various parts of the Dominion met at the Empire Conference at Ottawa in July. The boys and girls in class rank were housed at Dominion Scout Headquarters. Otherwise they met all their own expenses. The opportunity of seeing the great Empire figures of the day was their reward.

Cause Is Found Of Babies' Disease
Researches Reveal that Germs of "Summer Complaint" Spread by Horse Flies

Toronto.—The future bids fair for babies of tender years as a result of a research on the dreaded "summer complaint" at the Hospital for Sick Children, the cause of the complaint has hitherto been unknown, and hence its treatment has been difficult.

It is now shown that dysentery, bacteria cause the illness, and that the microbes are spread by horse flies. The research indicates the means for preventing spread of the disease when an outbreak occurs. It shows why cases are more common in poorer surroundings than in families in good circumstances.

FATAL CASES NOW RARE.
Importance of the findings is indicated by the fact that as many as seventy-five infants have died in the Hospital for Sick Children in a single year as a result of the intestinal upset. Now, however, the disease is explained and fatal cases are a rarity.

Those responsible for this latest medical advance are Dr. Alan Brown, associate professor of medicine in charge of pediatrics at the University of Toronto; Dr. F. F. Tidball, associate in pediatrics; Dr. T. G. H. Drake of the Children's Hospital staff; Mrs. M. M. Johnston, hospital bacteriologist.

That the disease is caused by bacteria is stated "conclusively proved." The kinds of microbes responsible are similar to those causing mild intestinal upsets in adults as a result of the eating of food carrying the infection, or by the drinking of water containing germs which may not cause fatal disease, but give rise to unpleasant symptoms.

The research has been so successful that it is regarded as entirely out of the laboratory stage. "This is of interest, not only to hospital physicians, but also to physicians in general practice," says Dr. J. C. Fitzgerald, Dean of the Faculty of Medicine, in appraisal of the discovery. "It simply remains to educate the general public in the order to practically eradicate this disease."

"Cleanliness everywhere is an important consideration in the control of the disease," said Dr. Brown. "An apparently accidental reduction in cases last summer was linked up with a small seasonal crop of flies."

"It is still more important that children be kept in the best of condition. They are able to resist the infection better when ill. On the other hand, only a few cases occur in families in good circumstances."

Children constantly maintained in a favorable state of nutrition are not likely to be affected. Our findings emphasize the necessity for keeping children in the healthiest of surroundings, and on satisfactory diets, during the period of rapid growth," Dr. Brown concluded.

Paul argues that the very existence of government indicates that it is ordained of God. Government exists for the good of the social body, protecting it from harm, assisting all that is for its good. He could honestly stand up for the Roman authority. I wanted out a rough justice, protected life and property, was on the whole, a good government. The man who broke its laws was encouraging disrespect for law, breeding anarchy, and even a bad government was better than anarchy.

The fear motive does not enter into obedience to the law. The man who obeys does not fear the police, judges, magistrates, policemen are his friends and defenders. They are "not a terror to good works," but "what if they are?" When it is "my country or my conscience?" A Christian's duty is clear. "My country, right or wrong?" is not a Christian's motto. To the enemy of society, law is the agent of God, v. 4. "He beareth the sword in vain" refers to the sword by which criminals were executed.

Goodbye Sonny!

What golden lehor rose through trunk and bough From undimmed springs within the earth With soundless flow the summer long that now This fountain luminously comes to birch And spills upon the frosty air a spray That stuns with gold this blue October day.

These showers that descend will deepen soon To burnished pools upon the autumn grass That seem to mirror some refracting noon Whose sun is held immobile in the glass. —Adelaide Love, in Voices.

Evidences of Ontario's Leadership

The Province of Ontario has one third of the total population of Canada, 55 per cent of the total national wealth, 46 per cent of the total buying power, 50 per cent of the total manufacturing production, 25 per cent of the national income from forests, 34 per cent of the agricultural wealth of the country, 40 per cent of its total electric power consumption and 41 per cent of its mineral income.

Forty-seven of every 100 motor cars owned in Canada are in Ontario and 40 per cent of every 100 radio receiving sets licensed in the Dominion are in this province. Thirty-six per cent of the automobiles and seventy-five of every one hundred dollars spent by every one in Canada are spent in this province.

Paul does not ask for a blind obedience to law, v. 5. He asks for co-operation for the common good. The good depends upon a stable, well-ordered government. The man who does the law simply because he is afraid of the police is a poor citizen.

In Paul's day, as in ours, people avoid the unpleasant and will do anything to get out of it. He says that he did not deny to the spirit. Let us be great. "Whatsoever a man sows, that shall he also reap." Galatians 6: 7.

October 30. Lesson V.—The Christian and Law Observance (World's Temperance Sunday). Proverbs 23: 29-35; Romans 12: 1-7; 1 Corinthians 10: 1-17; Galatians 6: 1-10; 1 Peter 2: 11-17. Golden Text: "Whatever a man sows, that shall he also reap." Galatians 6: 7.

ANALYSIS.
I. CO-OPERATION FOR THE COMMON GOOD. ROMANS 12: 1-7.

II. THE LAW OF HARVEST. GAL. 6: 1-10.

Introduction.—Religion and morality are always in danger of becoming selfish in motive. The old view of religion being subject to any other of passenger from the doomed ship is now gone to be too selfish. "My Father" has given place to "our Father." A Christian asks for no special favor, but for the good of all others also. Hence the matter of law observance is lifted above the merely individual good to I. CO-OPERATION FOR THE COMMON GOOD. ROMANS 12: 1-7.

Paul's appeal for law observance was much needed. "The Jew always chafed under the necessity of a child of Abraham being subject to any other of passenger from the doomed ship is now gone to be too selfish. "My Father" has given place to "our Father." A Christian asks for no special favor, but for the good of all others also. Hence the matter of law observance is lifted above the merely individual good to I. CO-OPERATION FOR THE COMMON GOOD. ROMANS 12: 1-7.
