Britain to Produce Cheap Monoplane

London.-After months of experiment, British engineers are about to produce an airplane which will do for aviation what the post-war cheap car has done for motoring. The model, which is expected to be ready within the next few weeks, will be a two-seater low-wing monoplane, with fifel consumption of over 100 miles to the gallon, and sell to the public at around £275. A special form of trailer is also being made, in which the machine can be towed behind an ordinary car to any convenient field for taking off. ---Let us be thankful for health and petence, and, above all, for a quie conscience, Izaak Walton. "I always laugh when I see any-
