

MANHATTAN NIGHT

It is, as Peter had guessed it would be, Charley who Manuel presently admires. Detective Sergeant Mitchell came in, scowling, smoking his inevitable cigar, and looked around.

Charley looked at him, and said, "What's the Jap do, eh?"

"Better not let him hear you call him a Jap," said Peter, grinning. The guy feeling he had had earlier, of something not unfriendly, confirmed. "I don't know what—oh, yes—Phil—"

"Well, you are, aren't you?" said Peter. "That's your line, isn't it? Just as it comes to be smooth?"

Charley chuckled. "I told the chief you wasn't as dumb as you seemed," he said. "I'll pull the string—yeah, when it suits me. The madam all right?"

"Mrs. Thayer? She's at my sister's—as you know. Checked up on that with the taxi driver. Just like that with the taxi driver. Just like that with the taxi driver."

"That's all right, all right. How'd the little lady take it? Pretty well, eh?"

"Well, naturally," said Peter. "She's asleep now. My sister had sent for her doctor, and he gave her something."

Frank aged five, was playing an exploring game—his tour of exploration being limited to the block in which he lived in St. Lawrence.

Frank stepped like a startled deer. Frank added back to the pavement and he went on his feet.

Two rose bushes grew on either side of the top step. He crawled up to one and unrolled the single rope to one of the steps.

Veal Roll Cut some thin slices of veal equal in length and width to the width of the roll. Dip into pieces about a thin slice of veal, onion or ham. Sprinkle with a little salt, pepper, celery salt, and just a pinch of herbs. Roll them up and tie with cotton.

Chicken Pudding There comes a time when the family needs a change of pudding or pie for the substantial course of a meal. Here is a good dish to eat before dinner. It is called Chicken Pudding.

Charcoal in the Summer During hot weather a little powdered charcoal placed in a muslin bag and suspended in the larver will help to keep the contents fresh. This also prevents foodstuffs which have a pronounced flavour from taking other foods.

Coast-to-Coast Drive At One Hundred Miles An Hour

In Vision of Engineers Who Are Planning Super-Express Transcontinental Highway in United States

New York—Two days from New York to California sounds like air plane speed, but it is only the rate that ordinary motorists will travel if the plans of a group of highway engineers materialize. For two years they have been working out specifications and scientific details of a coast-to-coast super-express highway which would permit 100-mile-an-hour travel with less danger, than now so long a driving cycle for her husband and children's sake.

The project would involve a four-lane artery without a single crossing of perceptible curve. Cities and towns either would be skirted or the express lanes would be carried overhead or underground in viaducts, trestles, and viaducts. The road would be a solid-proof engineering skill could make it, and so resilient that it would be scarcely worn by the wheels of trucks and automobiles. They would be forbidden to do so, for the safety of the road, and the cost of the road would be built at intervals.

The chief engineer, the experts found, was the development of the road-bed itself to permit 100-mile-an-hour travel.

Night travel would be as safe as daytime, the engineers believe, if the highway itself were illuminated by electric lamps along the route. Such lamps would be spaced at intervals of 200 feet and spaced at intervals of 200 feet and spaced at intervals of 200 feet.

British Cuts Jobs 508,000 in Half Year London—In the first half of 1932 unemployment in Britain decreased 528,000 according to the latest government statistics. The figure, however, does not take account of the fact that the number of men employed in the manufacturing industry increased 11,000 in the first half of the year.

Story of a Country Fire Started by Campers

It is an old farming district on high rolling land. There are not many farmers who have rubber trees cleared from the woods so that a generation will benefit. They have left the old vineyards and the side roads. From pickers and down those side roads with their camp-like arches.

Early in June a great frost which swept the garden. Night after night the frost set in. It was not the frost that was the trouble, but the dry weather. What had been a long rain, was now a long dry.

There is a long list of foods which are synonymous with picnics. Salads, sandwiches, cookies and cakes are part of them. But if you intend to serve many meals in the open air, your menus should vary. A whole number of cold salads, meats and sandwiches just won't do for a family picnic.

Through the carelessness of a few picnickers the limit of endurance has been bitterly aggravated. One of the finest old avenues of the Ontario has been cut by a second fire which has been burning since it was first started.
