Protect Mourning Doves

Living on Weed Seeds
The value of mourning doves to the agricultural community was investigated recently by Jack Miner, the well-known naturalist of Kingsville. One of these birds only four weeks old flew against a telephone wire and was killed. It was sent to Western University at London for an analysis of the stomach contents. Here is the significant report:

Seeds	Per cent.
Grass foxtail.....	1,854 91.8
Yellow foxtail.....	40 5.1
Sweet clover.....	7 .08
Wheat.....	3 2.4
Sand.....	1 .1
Miscellaneous vega.....	.04

This, comments Mr. Miner, is information that every citizen should have a time when farmers are battling with the weed evil. The mourning dove eats no one thing, but lives practically entirely on weed seed. So doing it performs an invaluable service to the whole agricultural community. It is one of the farmers' best friends.

Mr. Miner and his son are making a really fine contribution to the community in carrying on their work of research into the feeding habits of Ontario birds. His bird sanctuary at Kingsville, which is favoredly known all over the continent, from the Arctic circle to the Gulf of Mexico, has done a great deal to acquaint the public with the importance of preserving wild life. It was in recognition of his activities that the new-formed Lions Club of his own home town of Kingsville recently tendered him a testimonial banquet, attended by all the prominent persons of the neighborhood.

Mr. Miner has been the honored guest at many festivals in different parts of North America, at which such men as former President Theodore Roosevelt and Alfred E. Smith have been fellow guests. But it is probable that he enjoyed and appreciated the dinner given to him by his immediate neighbors more than any of the others.—Toronto Mail & Empire.
