Tom Wilson is dead. Pathfinder, trail-blazer, hunter, trapper, prospector, Indian trader, wise adviser and dependable friend, oldest and most celebrated of Canadian Rockies guides, the hast of the pioneers, Tom Wilson has gone to the Haply Huntin f Huntins, no deep blue lakes hidden by curtains of trees, no difficult passes to find and travel, no new peaks to conquer, it will searcely be Paradise to him. He has gone; we shall not look upon his like again.

Mis dife work started as far ack as 1881 when he went out with the Canadian Pacific explorage and surveying parties through the Rockies. In 1882 he set the foundations of his later fame with his discovery of Lake Louise and Emerald Lake, following it up with the blazing of the foct trail

Mount Assiniboins; in 1896 he cut out and cleared the old Indian tratil from Field to Emerald Lake and blaxed a foot trail to Wapta; in 1897 he took a party of the Yoho Glacter and the following year was guide to a party of the Yoho Falls; in 1900 he blazed the first trail into Moraine Lake. His work was recognized in 1925 by a monument erected to him in the Yoho Pass.

Born at Bond Head, 40 miles north of Toronto, August 21, 1859, Tom Wilson was in his 75th year when death came to him. At the find and travel, no new peaks to conquer, it will searcely be Paradise to him. He has gone; we shall not look upon his like again.
