Canada's Airports

Canada has ninety-six licensed airports. It is a fair beginning, but over an area as wide as this Dominion an aviator is liable to be a long way from a landing field when it is most needed. The United States has 2,136 airports and landing fields. Many are lighted for night use. Canada will need to push on with this necessary ground work to keep abreast of the times in aviation as it is coming within the next few years.—Ottawa Citizen.

A Boon to Fishermen "Deep sea fishermen must face many hazards but for Canadians whose vessels go to the great banks off New foundland each year some of the risks are diminished by the action of the Dominion Department of Fisheries in sending a doctor with the fleet so that cases of sickness or accident may have prompt attention by a qualified physician and surgeon," an official statement from Ottawa declares.

The scheme to link up Scotland Yard with the provincial police and Continental forces has been definitely launched by the Home Office. Only by co-ordination of every police force in the country is it possible to deal successfully with the daring modern criminal. The organization of the underworld, which is often on a national, and sometimes an international, scale, can only be fought with an adequate "Deep sea fishermen must face many The scheme to link up Scotland Yard statement from Ottawa declares.
