To Encourage Marriages

To encourage marriages of poor couples the Fascist party in Italy is offering $80 each to 200 couples who cannot marry for lack of funds. True, this isn't a very munificent sum on which to start in double harness, but the grandparents of many of us have done it on less. — Ctratford Beacon-Herald.

Things in the Papers

The extraordinary thing—which is almost the most ordinary thing in a newspaper's experience—is that it is the same sort of people who commonly want to get certain things into the paper who also want to keep certain other things out. The mark of the species is that the things they want to keep out are almost invariably news by the most honest and intelligent definition and the things they want to get in or not. In both instances they assume to be censors; in both in stances they can never be persuaded—and very often they are quite decent citizens—that their censorship in the long run is an utterly futile and self-defeating thing.—Vancouver Province.

Up to the Motoring Public

Just as long as the general public continues to smile at stories of excessive speed; to feel that traffic laws are for the other fellow, and that it is all right to break them as long as you don't get caught; to hold the opinion that any action, walking or driving, is permissible so long as one is able to get away with it; for just that period will motor vehicle accidents continue to be menace. When every driver and every pedestrian realizes that safety comes ahead of schedules, ahead of personal rights; that safety comes ahead of everything else, then we may expect a reduction in the waste of life, health, and property through accidents, to be brought about.—Ontario Motor Vehicles Branch.

Empire Migration

A stimulating breath of the practical Imperial spirit comes from the manifesto of the Empire Trade League, which proposes overseas community settlement under chartered companies or other auspices, such "colonizing adventures" being regarded as a long-range plan for the future. Among the signatories are prominent men whose Empire-building doctrine is in sharp contrast with the present official policy of quotas, restriction of output and like measures which would end the migration of British people to British dominions, stop expansion, render it more and more difficult for the Dominions to pay their debts and make more or less static the Empire market for the manufactures of the Motherland.—Auckland Weekly News.
