CHAPTER XXII
"Doesn't fit in, Pete—and it don't add up, leaving," said Charlie...

"You think Benny was bluffing?"
"Of course," he said, after a moment's hesitation...

"Not bluffing, no-lying," said Charlie.
"Of course," he said, after a moment's hesitation...

"For five grand," said Charlie.
"Five grand? Like as not, Pete, you ain't got it...

"I guess you was out of town when it was going strong..."
"Right, but the actual news was expecting it, but the actual news was expecting it..."

"What do you mean?" Charlie—have you got something?
"Wait and see," said Charlie. "How about you? Ready to take a chance?"

"Good! That's what you'll be doing. If anything slips up, you'll be in luck. Chances are it won't be first to go, but I'll bet a year's pay to the madam didn't have any more to do with killing Thayer..."
