While it is recognized as an exce Canada or Ottario Variegated for Farms throughout Canada for many years, no significant differences in yield have been obtained nor has the Cossack variety shown any par ticular advantage over other vari ties in other respects. Because of this the trade in seed has been small and the seed usually high priced. stated in the press that Cossack alfalfa made a very satisfactory annual hay erop. Our experience at Ottawa agrees with this, but equally good results have been obtained with other varieties. On well prepared first season's growth is frequently very good, producing a substantial yield of good quality hay. The trouble is that unless the soil is clean the crop may be very weedy and in most parts of western Canada there is a considerable darger that cutting for hay or pasturing during the year of seeding will result in loss of the ger is probably much less in western Ontario, and even at Ottawa, i will come through the winter we speaking the practice is not recommended where one is anxious to a-does not affect its usefulness as an annual hay crop. The average rate of seeding alfalfa is 15 pounds of seed per acre. Considerably less than this may be used if sufficient work is put on the land to make a good seed-bed.
