Apparently, however, the New York Central Lines officials are not convinced that the new fangled trains with Deisel-engine development are going to completely revolutionize rail travel. They still have faith that the steam locomotive is an economic and efficient power unit.

Therefore they have about ready for service the first streamlined high powered steam locomotive which with its head resistance reduced 35 to 36 percent, as compared with the present steam locomotive, with the present steam locomotive, with the present steam locomotive, will more nearly meet modern requirements.
