SNAPSHOOTING CHRISTMAS

THE only trouble with making pic- A close-up of the piled-up gifts, The only trouble with making pictures of Christmas doings is that the day goes so fast. Before we know it, chances for rare shots have come and gone—gone, some of them, come and gone—gone, some of them, never to return, next year or ever. For babies will grow up and friends will move away.

So plan now for a few good shots this Christmas, shots that will mean, inescapably, Christmas, 1934.

To do the job up brown, you'll probably need to call all of your snapshooting talent into play. For there'll be interiors as well as outdoor shots, daytime and nighttime pictures, close-ups and long shots.

For example:

For example:

Holly wreaths at the door and in the windows. Shoot them from the outside, at night, with lights arranged to bring out their full importance. A time-exposure from the outside, shooting in through the window at the lighted room, will give you a fine silhouette of the wreath in the window. Ask one of the youngsters to stand very still at the window during the exposure; that will add the necessary "human interest".

Trimming the tree. This will prob-

Trimming the tree. This will probably be a long shot, taken from far enough away to show the whole tree and the busy decorators. In all likelihood, a photoflash-type bulb will be your best reliance for this one.

And if carol singers come your way, get a shot of them busily carolling away. A photoflash type lamp, in a hand-battery holder, will make this shot easy.

No—you needn't spend the whole the whole are the same and the same

Hanging the stockings at the mantel. A photoflash or photoflood type samp in the fireplace (the fire itself, we hope, being out) will illumine the figures of children as they hang up their hopeful stockings. Be sure that the direct rays of the light do not strike your camera's lens.

No—you needn't spend the whole time with camera in hand. But a few, well-chosen snaps will be very much worth the few minutes they require. Far better to spend those few minutes than lose the fleeting, unique opportunities altogether. Right?
