Canada: The Empire and The World at Large

CANADA OVER-EXPANDED Had we been told 15 years ago that in 1924 we would send our wheat production program into a nosedive, how many of the improvements we have made in the meantime we would have curtailed.

THEY TELL THE TRUTH. On holidays and business, when no daily papers are published, invariably a flock of false rumors take wing to fly hither and thither until the newspapers the next day kill them by refuting or merely by ignoring them. The newspapers are the great educators of false stories—Morton.

WHY DOGE BURY BONES. We heard a discussion as to why dogs bury bones in the ground. One man was complaining about the habits of his dog and all of his neighbors. He said it interfered with his gardening, for the dog always wanted to pick on the wrong spot.

WHERE IT WENT. There is food for thought in the Pulitzer prize-winning editorial which appeared in the Atlantic (Iowa) News-Telegraph. Under the caption, "Where is Our Money?" Editor Edwin Percy Chase had this to say: "It is announced that at 10 p.m. William Randolph Hearst, a well-known publisher, has also obtained in Swedish metropolitan—Kingston Whig-Standard.

VERY LIKELY. A United States professor on human anatomy says that if we had all the women in one hundred years would be more attractive. The chances are, though, that selection will make the average man old basis with everyone wondering what various husbands and wives ever saw in each other—Brandon.

THE EMPIRE FORGOTTEN MEN. For many weeks now the British farmer has been on the front page of our newspapers, but the men who do his work—the agricultural laborers—are, as too often in the past, almost forgotten. The rural working man in Britain is not even mentioned in the trade unions are weak, he does not come under the unemployment insurance scheme, and even those farmers are shockingly low wages.

STOP AT CROSSINGS. Every little white, some advocate arises to suggest a law making it compulsory for all motor vehicles to come to a dead stop before crossing railway tracks. Motor buses now voluntarily comply with such a regulation, but the general public seem to think they are safe in their own cars than they are in buses—for what reason we do not know, for buses are usually controlled by the most experienced drivers—Chatham News.

SCOTTS BUY OUR BAGONS. In spite of a striking decrease in the trial imports of bacon into Scotland in the first quarter of the year, shipments from Canada reveal a large increase over the corresponding period of 1923. Purchases from Denmark and the Netherlands were reduced in each case by about 10 per cent, as compared with the first quarter of 1923. On the other hand, shipments from the Dominion increased almost 50 per cent.—Brandon Star.

GRANDMOTHER'S WAY BEST. It is exceedingly interesting to read that Dr. Knigh Dunlop, professor of psychology at Johns Hopkins University, heartily disapproves of the modern method of rearing babies. "When a baby cries in grandmother's time," says Dr. Dunlop, "they figured some reason was wrong—and she went the same way with the Indians. After all, grandmother and the Indians knew a great deal about babies." And he

Kaye Don Appears for Trial

Kaye Don, famous automobile and motorboat enthusiast, is shown being carried into the courtroom at Douglas, Isle of Man, for trial on the charge of manslaughter. He was killed and Don himself injured when his racing auto crashed during a trial spin.

He has spent all his life on the land. If your speech were complicated at all, he would probably fail to understand you, but he talks more perfect English than any man of my acquaintance. "The mald wished me to die the had a little higher this way." "It is the valley springs that feed the river." "I'll put it in the shed where I can lay my hands on it any time." After telling him which bit of land to trench or "double dig," as he says, I went to London and heard a fellow, a well-known publisher, has also obtained in Swedish metropolitan—Kingston Whig-Standard.

Firmness Needed To Rout Jealousy in Children

EVEN THOUGH YOUNGSTERS ARE VERY YOUNG, IT'S NEVER TOO EARLY TO BEGIN CORRECTING THEM

"What shall I do about my two children, aged three and five?" writes a mother. "They need to quarrel so much about toys. I take Jackie anywhere baby took Teddy's things and kept him in a constant row, so I began to buy two dolls of everything. I take it always dress them alike, too, and they get the same food now. "So there would not be any fussing if I got them bowls and plates and cups alike, also. When I divide apples or cookies or candy I feed them the same size, or I give them an equal number of pieces. It has saved me a lot of worry, and I was told it was a good plan.

The Jealous Brother. "But now I have a problem. Teddy is jealous. If I take Jackie anywhere without his brother he carries on dreadfully. Jackie isn't that way. He never pouts any attention if I take Teddy out and leave him at home. "The other day a friend came in and brought Jackie a good coat that looked like a little blue jacket and he liked it very much. I was so glad to get it because I could not afford new coats for the boys. Spring suits and overcoats were so expensive. I had seen an advertisement of a bargain. I hid Jackie's coat and went down to get it because I could not afford to get it for the other boy. I had seen an advertisement of a bargain. Soviet Wants More Women in Industry

Weaker Sex Given Equal Opportunity with Men

A decree designed to increase the number of women workers in Russian mines and workshops has just been issued by the Soviet Government. The decree provides for the rapid advancement of women to positions of responsibility in industry, and to prepare them for their future work larger numbers of women are to be taken into the technical schools. This serves to emphasize the Soviet Government's determination to stamp out any segregation of the sexes in political or economic life.

A June Evening

The sun sings to rest; softly and slowly twilight falls. The air is warm and still, fragrant with the perfume of summer flowers. How beautiful it must be in your home now, in the white house that stands hidden behind high, old trees, in the park with its wide lawn. In your room the windows all stand open. And you sit at your writing table, looking at a little picture, before which stands a bowl of red roses. "Somehow a clock ticks—the quiet sounds fall like silver drops in the stillness. The hour strikes, ponderous and slow.

To Elect Only Younger Men

People of Oklahoma Town To Take Revenge On "Old" Rulers Schuler, Okla.—After the next election, any candidate more than 40 years old is going to be out of luck in this town. "The rule is simple and it is being enforced. A decision to refuse support to such candidates was made at a mass meeting, attended by three-fifths of the town's 600 voters. "Public officials especially legislators, were criticized for talking to relieve a situation under which corporations are unable to obtain compensation insurance for employees more than 40 years old. "This restriction on compensation insurance simply prevents men more than 40 years old from getting jobs," said a spokesman.

Back to the Kitchen

CHICAGO.—Mrs. Leonard Z. Mader, one of the United States best known club women, who is now president of the Chicago business and professional women's club, believes women belong in the kitchen and homes and not in the office. "Every club woman and professional woman, young or old," she said, "would gladly check her career to marry a good man. There are two kinds of women—those that men love and marry, and those who belong to clubs."

Death of Woman Who Reveals Savings

The locked door of a woman's room in London, Eng., outside which its occupant was found dying some time ago, has only now been opened to disclose a mystery which is puzzling the neighborhood. For although the tenant, Miss G. M. Kelly, aged 62, had for years been in receipt of public and private charities in North London, her room, into which she had allowed no one to enter, contained savings certificates to the value of $2,500, bank notes for $60 and a costly gold watch. The woman had been removed from her home to the Edmondston public institution, where she died.

Was Known as Lady Bountiful of Edson

Princess Leo Galitzine, the first woman to die of the Great Lake area, who was a week or so ago in Port Huron, was known in society circles in Edmondton. The Princess left Edmondton in the spring with Mrs. A. Arthur Kinross and a group of friends to visit a number of places known to the Princess in her early life. Princess Leo Galitzine was born in Malta and lived as a child in Egypt. As Miss Raymond-Jarvis and travelled extensively in Zealand and the continent before her marriage. She was in a visit to Paris when she met Prince Galitzine, a member of the Russian nobility. They were married in 1922.

40 per cent. Apple Crop at Strathroy

Strathroy.—The apple crop in this district will be more than 40 per cent. of normal, judging from present indications, according to a district fruit supervisor. It is also reported that the recent frost damaged fruit trees more than was at first thought, and a total loss except a few well protected positions. Prospects for cherry, plum and pear crops are more encouraging. Many apple trees have been killed outright, but the men going to the north and the first white woman to work and purchased radium discovery.

Boy's Eyeball Is Pierced by Fledgling

CHATHAM.—A young kitten, long-legged and black, leaped upon the eye of a 15-year-old Lloyd McLean, son of a Chatham farmer, and was found on his father's farm on Howland-Harlow town. The kitten's claws leaped upon the eye and was carrying it in its mouth. The kitten's claws leaped upon the eye and was carrying it in its mouth. Captain-Writer

Continuing our ocean voyage, we leave the crowning of the week, as the river gradually widens, we approach the open sea. One of the first duties we have to perform, before leaving the port, is to attend to the life-boat drill. In each cabin there are enough life preservers for the number of passengers who could occupy the room. Notices are posted, giving instructions as to the position of the life-boat stations and the quickest way to get there. The usual signal is three sharp blasts of the ship's siren, and the sound of which, passengers are expected to make their way quickly to their assigned stations.

The most useful and really a full course dinner with a menu more elaborate than in most hotels. The orchestra renders musical numbers, there is a game of cards, and appetizing food, you eat more than you would deem possible. A nap after lunch is the customary thing, and about four o'clock you sit in the lounge of the orchestra playing while tables are set with dining tea things, toasted scones, fruit cake, biscuits and also bread and butter supplement to a delicious pot of tea. Or if you prefer, you can have tea served on deck. Around this time, too, you can follow the wooden horses on the deck, and wagers soon on them. A check is made at the end of the day, and the winners receive their money. The morning has passed quickly. How to Tie Your Scarf for Smartness

Scarf etiquette is something of science these days when the effect of an entire costume may depend on this one accessory. Solid colors are always better than stripes or otherwise designed, and reverse for ensembles of one color. Neckties should be rolled and twisted around the neck in a neat knot.

German Author Says War Certain

Paris.—Emil Ludwig, exiled German author, believes war is inevitable because "dictators are deluding their people with promises of a more dramatic than democracy." "In Les Années Lignes writes: "It is not being understood, but the masses are being misled by the chancellors, but in universities and schools, and in mass demonstrations organized by dictators as a background for their efforts."
