ROOTROTS OF CLOVERS

(Experimental Farms Note)

Certain rootrots may cause serious loss to clover, red clover, alfalfa and other clover crops, especially in the early spring, and are often the cause of winter-killing. Studies at the Dominion Laboratory Plant Pathology at Edmonton, Alberta, have shown that the fungi causing brown rootrot and sclerotinia rootrot attack the roots more severely in the early spring, when the plants are probably in a weakened condition. Brown rootrot is at present chiefly limited to Saskatchewan and Alberta, but sclerotinia rootrot occurs throughout Canada. The former produces dark, marginated brown lesions on the roots which can be distinguished from the more progressing, light brown, water rot of the later, but either may cause death or crippling of the plants.

In varietal resistance tests, conducted in co-operation with the Dominion Experimental Station, Lacombe, alfalfa and clover proved more resistant than other clover crops to sclerotinia rootrot, but all commonly grown clover crops and varieties were highly susceptible to brown rootrot. Hardy varieties, adapted to the locality, should be used until resistant varieties are found.

Damage from rootrots is greatly influenced by plant vigour. Vigorous plants, with large root systems, are much better able to withstand winter conditions and rootrot attack than weak, weedy plants. Sowing the seed in moist, well prepared soil, with large root systems, are much better able to withstand winter conditions and rootrot attack than weak, weedy plants. Sowing the seed in moist, well prepared soil, with large root systems, are much better able to withstand winter conditions and rootrot attack than weak, weedy plants.

At the Dominion Experimental Station, Farm, Indian Head, pigs for market purposes are castrated previous to weaning time. Pigs to be weaned at six weeks are castrated at four weeks of age or if weaning is done at eight weeks they are castrated when about six weeks old. Experience at this Farm has shown that castrating pigs at six weeks and castrating them rapidly, with a smaller percentage of losses, than older pigs

TIME TO CASTRATE PIGS

The early castration of market pigs has many advantages which should not be overlooked by breeders.

Young pigs are easily handled, suffer very little, and are castrated with a small percentage of losses, if the operation is properly performed and necessary precautions are taken to prevent infection.

At the Dominion Experimental Station, Farm, Indian Head, pigs for market purposes are castrated previous to weaning time. Pigs to be weaned at six weeks are castrated at four weeks of age or if weaning is done at eight weeks they are castrated when about six weeks old. BIRTH

PLEMING—In the Township of Walpole, on Saturday, February 24th, 1934, to Mr. and Mrs. John Fleming, a daughter.

DIED

BOOTH—In the Village of Jarvis, on Saturday, February 24th, 1934, Robert Booth, in his 77th year.

The funeral took place from his late residence at 2.00 P.M. on Tuesday, 27th inst. Service at the home. Interment was made in Chesapeake United Church Cemetery.

CARD OF THANKS

Mr. A. J. Krouse and family, wish to express to all their neighbors and friends their sincere thanks for the kindness and sympathy shown them in their recent bereavement and for the floral tributes.

Jarvis After Water

The Jarvis Record maintaining a digitized internet campaign for a municipal water supply, has discovered that practically all wells in the Village are contaminated.

It is the hope of the Jarvis Record that the health of the Village will be improved by the installation of a water supply, the source is available in the cost prohibitive?

SELKIRK

The annual Sleigh Ride party of the Evangelical S. S. was held on Monday evening in the Town Hall.

E. G. Hoover and family, visited his home about ten days ago, fracturing his hip, and that time continued to fall until death released him from his sufferings.

He was a son of the late Robert Booth and Catherine MacFarland, and was born in the Township of Walpole from which municipality he moved to Jarvis about ten years ago.

Deceased was never married, and during the past few years his sister, Mrs. Jane Evans, kept house for him. He was a great lover of horses, and maintained that interest until two or three years ago he parted with his fancy driving horse, as he often remarked that the automobile had driven him out of the hobby.

The funeral service was held at his late residence on Tuesday, February 27th, conducted by Rev. G. Lloyd Brown, pastor of Knox Presbyterian Church, and the interment was made in the United Church Cemetery, Chesapeake. The pall bearers being, James Jones, Thomas Brown, Bert Fitzgerald, Thomas Harris, John Mitchell and Herbert Peacock.

MRS. MARGARET THOMPSON

The death of Mrs. Margaret Thompson, widow of the late George Thompson, at her home in the Village of Port Dover, on Thursday last, is a great loss to the early residents of the Varence community.

Deceased was a daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Septimus Hamilton, who settled on the old Plank road south of the Village in the middle half of the last century. She is survived by two sons, J. Hamilton Thompson, prominent live stock breeder and poultry farmer, of Woodhouse Township, and W. Bert Thompson, funeral director, of Port Dover, as well as one sister, Mrs. D. Alma, of Hagersville, and one brother, Mr. Robert Hamilton, proprietor of the Capitol Theatre, Simcoe. Interment was in the Port Dover Cemetery on Sunday last.

TROUBLES

The ceremony was over, both had "I wills," and the happy couple were receiving the clergyman's blessing. First a grand few words to the bride. Then he turned to the bridegroom.

"Now my friend," he said, "you have come to the end of your troubles."

A few months passed and the man met the woman again.

"I thought you told me at my wedding that I had come to the end of all my troubles," he said.

The clergyman smiled, "I did not tell you which end did I?"

It is worth of mention rather than want of means that causes most failures.—Alfred Mercier.

Young People's Rally At Jarvis

That the necessities of life are few, but that salt is one of the chief of these necessities, was among the more beautiful and helpful thoughts suggested by Ven. Archdeacon A. C. Mackintosh of Dundas, when he addressed the members of the deacons council of the A.Y.P.A. at Jarvis, on Wednesday evening, last from the words, "Ye Are the Salt of the Earth." The address was a master piece, well worth traveling many miles to hear. The attendance was good, delegates being present from Hagersville, Nanticoke, and Cayuga, as well as Jarvis. The address followed a choral evensong service, conducted by Rev. Newton-Smith, R. D. Hedges, and Rev. W. J. P. Fugh, Rev. M. Brett. Very fine music was rendered by a union choir of Jarvis and Nanticoke members. Dr. Deag and Miss L. MacIntyre were the delegates from Cayuga.

At the close, Rev. Brett extended an invitation for all to remain in the Sunday School Room for a light lunch. The business discussion followed.

At the meeting of the local A.Y.P.A. held on Tuesday evening, February 27th, it was decided to hold meetings every Monday night at 8 P.M. and a sleigh riding party was arranged for Monday, March 5th.
