"And he said unto his disciples, It is impossible but that occasions of stumbling." From this it is made to indicate any person or thing by which one is made to stumble, or is drawn into error or sin. "Should come." While the world remains what it is, some will always set snares and stumbling-blocks in the path of their brethren, and some will always fall over them, and some will always fall over them, and some will make them for themselves (1 Cor. 11 : 19; 1 Peter 2 : 8). "But woe unto him, through whem they come!" Christ has often pronounced woe before this for various reasons in the Gospel we are studying (6 : 24-26; 10 : 13; 11 : e studying (6: 24-26; 10: 13; 11: paces.

Which is fittest to survive, insects or man? "Insects," say the misanthropes, "Man," said Barton Eddy, naturalist, at a recent meeting of the Executives' Club at the Sherman hotel in Chicago.

With all the advantages insects have over man, physiologically speaking, they will never be able to gain supremacy upon this earth, he assured those who have nightmares of insect hordes winning in the titanic struggle some see going on between man and insects for the possession of the earth.

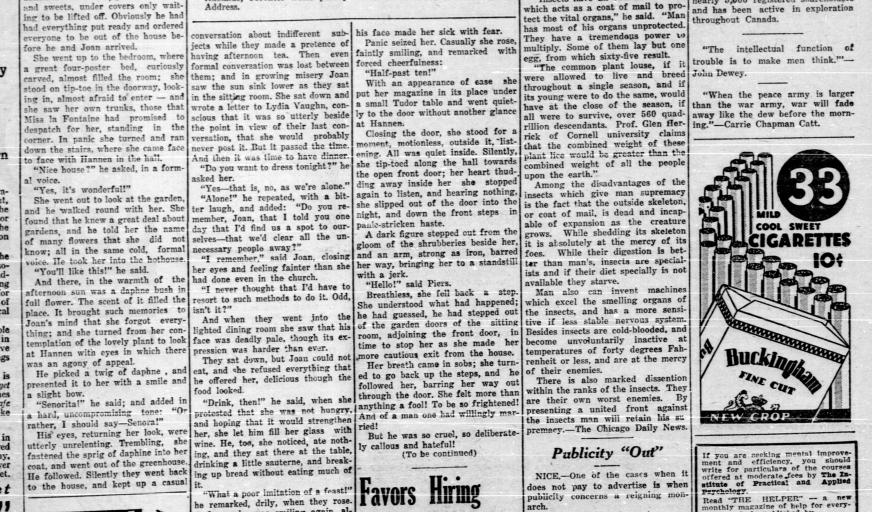

Among the advantages insects have over man, Mr. Eddy mentioned were "no lungs with which to get T.B., no arteries to harden, no appendix to rupture, no teeth to decay. They can digest more rapidly than man, some of them digesting four times their own weight in a single day. Their smelling organs are keener than a setter's and their nervous system is less capable of being out of order."

"Insects have a no utside skeleton, which acts as a coat of mail to protect the vital organs," he said. "Man has most of his organs unprotected.
