In the vinegar factory, the twigs are packed criss-cross fashion to a depth of three feet on the bottom of a large vat, called the acetifier. The was of unfermented liquor is then passed through them. In this process it is oxidized and converted into vinegar. Sometimes beech shavings are used, but most vinegar-makers prefer birch as it is clean easy to handle and does not degenerate into

"Oh," said the hen with a sniff, as if she did not believe the story. "But this copper man," continued Dorothy, looking at it with big eyes, "is not alive at all, and I wonder what it was made for and why it was locked up in this queer place." "That is a mystery," remarked the hen, twisting her head to arrange her wing feathers with her bill. Then Dorothy stepped around behind to get a back view of the man. correlated bit.

"I see it isn't alive," said Dorothy, drawing a long breah. "It is only made out of copper, like the old kettle in the barnyard at home," said the hen, turning her head first to one side and then to the other so that both of her little round eyes could examine the object. "Once," said Dorothy, "I knew a man made out of tin, who was a woodman named Nick Chopper. But he was as alive as we are."

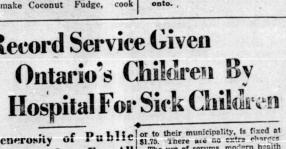

The first thing she saw was a printed card that hung between his shoulders, it being suspended from a small copper fig in the back of als neck. Dorothy twisted this card around where the light would fall m it and began to read the printing. "What does it say?" asked the nen, curiously. So Dorothy read the card aloud, spelling out the big words with some difficulty. "Well, I declare!" gasged the yellow hen.

"If the copper man can do half of the hings he is supposed to do he is a very wonderful machine," continued the hen, "but I suppose it is a humbug." "We might wind him up," suggested Dorothy, "and see what he'll do." "Where is the key to the clockwork?" asked Billina. "Hanging on the peg where f sound the card," was the reply. "Then," said the hen, "let us try and see if he will go,"

Generosity of Public Permits Care For All Regardless of Race, Creed or Circumstance

The Hospital for Sick Children in Toronto is surely an institution in which every citizen of Ontario may well take real pride. Operated as paractically one big Public Ward. it makes possible medical treatment and hospital care to needy children from every corner of Ontario.

During the twelve months just ended, 8,345 cot patients were served for a total of 139,747 patient days. Over 8000 operations were performed. Over 600,000 meals were served. And the Out-Patient Department gave 84,414 individual treatments.

Every day dozens of doctors come to the Hospital to donate their time and talent in the operating rooms, the out-patient day among all similar hospitals in North America, despite the fact that the care of children involves so much extra service including, in many cases, pre-school training. And despite the fact that the many, many problem cases directed to this intritution create extra costs over and above ordinary hospital requirements.

Over 400 of the 420 beds in the Hospital are for those in very moderate citar-instances, or hose who are receiving municipal relief.
