Better Manners Needed on The Highways

The Ontario Department of Highways, from knowledge born of its elaborate records, declares that any reduction in the number of "motor-vehicles-pedestrian accidents" rests upon observance of the rules of ordinary courtesy. The Department could have made its conclusion more general. A very large proportion of traffic accidents of all sorts might be avoided by observance of the rules of ordinary courtesy. Plain boorishness explains vast number of accidents. Far too many motorists leave their good manners behind them when they climb under the wheel of a motor vehicle. They are quite regardless not only of pedestrians but of other cars. They ignore rules of the right of way, leave the curb without signal, make turns without any motories to fellowing traffic, show to Lacrosse originated with the American Indians, the game being played purely for amusement and its exercise value.

The Indians had as many as a thousand players on each side, each carrying two sticks. The unfform consisted of a loin cloth and
