

Woman's World

By Mair M. Morgan

Why should jam cupboard be hidden in a dark corner when rows of sparkling jellies are so lovely to look upon? The modern housewife goes to the cupboard and she finds the beauty of that shelf ranged with the cherry jam she made with ripe cherries. There is imprinted a bit of the July sunshine and all the ripe cherry flavor that makes our Canadian cherries so popular for jams and jellies.

Ripe red Canadian cherries are the most decorative of our small fruit, and in Canada we also produce these dark red English cherries or "black" cherries as we sometimes call them and the "white" or Queen Anne cherries. All three kinds retain their lovely flavor and coloring when made into jams or jellies by the modern bottled fruit pectin method. Great baskets of these hand-picked fruit are now on the market. No wonder the robins and blackbirds put up such a fight for them, but here they are and every housewife at once has a yearning to imprison their color and flavor into shining rows of jelly. And don't they make a show in the jam cupboard! Pale rose colored jelly from white cherries, clear ruby from the red ones, and deep rich garnet from the black ones.

The recipe for cherry jam and jelly is so simple and so sure of success. The short-bell method would certainly astonish a nineteenth century housewife with its easy way of achieving jam and jelly that hold all the finest flavor of the ripe cherries. The satisfaction reaped from seeing those jars of jelly and jam which give such importance and glamor to the jam cupboard is nothing compared to the gratitude with which the family consumes them all through the year with cold meat plates, in fruit salads, on cream desserts and milk puddings or between the layers of a white cake. For breakfast and afternoon tea, toast with cherry jelly is most appetizing. Did you ever try it with peanut butter on hot Sally Lunns?

SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

LESSON IV. — JULY 26
CHRISTIANITY SPREAD BY PERSECUTION.—Acts 1: 1-4; 8: 4; 11: 19-21; 26: 9-11; 1 Peter 4: 12-13.
GOLDEN TEXT.—Be thou faithful unto death, and I will give thee the crown of life. Revelation 2: 10.
THE LESSON IN ITS SETTING.
Time.—The martyrdom of Stephen took place in A.D. 36. The events referred to in Acts 11: 19-21 refer to A.D. 42. Paul's defense before Agrippa was given more than a quarter of a century later, A.D. 50. The first Epistle of Peter was written about the same time, A.D. 60.
Place.—The martyrdom of Stephen occurred in Jerusalem. The growth of the church in Acts 11: 19-21 refers to the city of Antioch far north in Syria and fifteen miles inland from the coast. Paul's defense before Agrippa was in the city of Caesarea, situated on the coast of Palestine midway between Joppa and Tyre. And when they stoned Stephen, calling upon the Lord. The verb here translated "calling" appears here as a present participle, "identifying." It would seem, the continuous appeal of the martyr to his Lord. "And saying, Lord Jesus, receive my spirit." The title which Stephen gives to Christ certainly "involves a recognition of him in the two-fold character of a sovereign and a savior."
"And he knelt down." "The attitude of kneeling in prayer would no doubt commend itself to the early believers from the example of their Lord." "And he cried with a loud voice, Lord, lay not this sin to their charge." In James, as in Stephen, we may see how the true Christian character, whilst expressing itself in righteous indignation against hypocrisy and wrong, never failed to exhibit, as its counterpart, the meekness and gentleness of Christ. "And when he had said this, he fell asleep." Christ himself often referred to death as sleep. (Matt. 9: 24; Mark 5: 39; John 11: 11).
"And Saul was consenting unto his death." This sentence really belongs

Smart Shirred Sleeves Have Piquant Charm

Lovely shirred sleeves trail off with wide contrasting cuffs. A jaunty neckline is evocative of features of this dress. Very crepe, silk, lawn, or a smooth rayon. By the way, it's easily made because the dress is all one piece with two pleats and stitching in the front skirt, and a matching blouse that's trimmed with smart buttons. It's accepted at the shop with either a self-fabric or purchased belt.

"Enoch Arden" Tale Unfolded
Ending Different, Wife Seeks Annulment to Rejoin First Mate

MONTREAL.—A 20th century Enoch Arden story with a new ending was recounted in a Montreal court recently.
This Enoch Arden—Joseph Eugene Mongeau—came back after 12 years away from his wife to find her married to another and the mother of a three-year-old daughter. And his return brought on a series of incidents that finally led to an appeal by Mrs. Russell Baker for permission to apply for annulment of the marriage she contracted in her first husband's absence.
The permission was granted by Mr. Justice H. A. Fortier after Mrs. Baker had related the story from 1918 on. That year she married Mongeau. In 1920 she left him because of alleged ill-treatment. Then he disappeared. Certain he was dead, she married Baker a taxman, in 1922. A daughter, Nurah, was born. Then, in 1935,

New Future Wonders Seen In Chemistry of the Farm

DETROIT.—There will be no section of America unbenefited by the products of the Farm Chemurgic Council, it was indicated at the "New Industry and Science" here. The council is rapidly working toward its goal of allying the farmer and the scientist, of finding new uses for the products of the land.

Just as the farmer is being approached by the scientist, so the scientist is being approached by the farmer. The farmer is being taught to produce successfully the crops and to utilize the methods now being developed in the laboratory. They will have to develop a practical knowledge of soil chemistry, of plant physiology, of agricultural engineering and have at least a basic knowledge of biology.

"It's An Ill Wind"
Writes The Sydney Herald.—A broken piston rod is bringing the motorship, Jeff Davis, back to Sydney for repairs.

Stir in Turner Valley
Writes the Calgary Albertian.—It was like old times in Calgary when the Turner Valley Royalties well came in on a recent afternoon. It was better than old times for never in a history of the Valley oil operations had there been so sensational a development. The largest crude oil well in the British Empire is something not to be taken lightly. So as the news spread, sightseers turned their cars Valleyward and into the nostrils of the little valley, quietly resting these last few years, was breathed the breath of a new life.

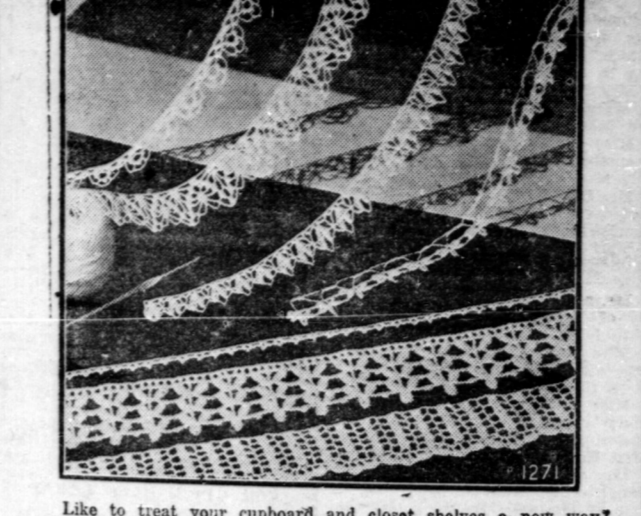

German Housewives Must Not Wash Their Linen in Public
BERLIN.—Berlin housewives cease drying their washing on clothes visible from the streets. After the world olympic games in Lippert, state commissioner for order and cleanliness, has ordered that the olympic games must have the possible impression of the city.

Birds vs. Cats
Writes The St. Catharines Standard.—Archie Britains writes that a pair of cabbage flies, if allowed to breed for two years without destruction, would produce a progeny bigger than this earth. And the same might be said of other insect families. Do people who nourish cats around the home to kill the birds ever think in that direction?

Make Linens Fetching With Dainty Edgings, Says Laura Wheeler

Like to treat your cupboard and closet shelves a new way? Trim them with these dainty crocheted edgings, and see them take on new importance! Each design's fun to do, and very easy. Two of them resemble tating, but of course are quicker to do. And think what a lot of chic they'll add to your lingerie, linens, handkerchiefs, and such! Pattern 1271 contains detailed directions for making the edgings shown; illustrations of them and of all stitches used; material requirements.

Send 20 cents in stamps or coin (coin preferred) for this pattern to Needlecraft Dept., Wilson Publishing Co., 73 West Adelaide Street, Toronto. Write plainly PATTERN NUMBER, your NAME and ADDRESS.

Building of Two Fast Passenger Ships Discussed in London

LONDON.—Building of two new passenger vessels capable of competing with the fast, well-equipped ships of the Matsun Line, to maintain a monthly service between the west coast of Canada and Australia and New Zealand was the substance of a scheme discussed in the House of Lords today.

"Tootle Him"
The following is a Japanese rule for motorists, translated into English by a native official:
"At the rise of the hand of a policeman, stop rapidly. Do not pass him on either side disrespect him. When a passenger of the foot hoves in sight tootle the horn trumpet to him, melodiously at first. If he still hoves in sight, tootle him with vigor, and express by word of mouth the warning, 'Hi, hi!' Do not explode the exhaust box at the warning horn; go soothingly. Give him space to the sportive dog that makes sport in the roadway. Avoid entanglement of the dog with your gear-mud, as there lurks the wild demon; press the brake of the foot as you roll round the corners and save the collapse and tie-up.—Our Empire."

It's Still Money
Writes The St. Catharines Standard.—A popular note is struck by the editor of The Ottawa Journal, who confess he will be glad to get his hands on any of the new bilingual money to be issued by the Bank of Canada. They are calling it mongrel coin in some places, but that certainly won't hurt its general acceptance. It is quite a bit different, however, in the case of Alberta scrip.

Proof!
Cats are wonderfully helpful and intelligent. They are able definitely to change the habit of "meow" and "purr" into "meow" and "purr" as you wish. Results are wonderful. Many more letters, but others are being helped. Give that mind of yours a chance. Write: WHY NOT YOU? Psychology Institute, 516 Kensington Building, MONTREAL, P.Q.

Second Shock Restores Life In Electrocuted Animals

NEW YORK.—Experiments with the electrocution of sheep and their subsequent revival by counter-shock, begun nine years ago by the Bell Telephone Laboratories, Inc., and the Physiology Department of Columbia University, will be completed shortly, according to Dr. H. B. Williams, of the College of Physicians and Surgeons. Many of the electrocuted sheep are still alive and well, he said.
