"We broke up our ships for scrap and now we haven't enough ships" he went on, declaring Britain faced a deficiency of 2,000,000 tons of scrap and 2,000,000 tons of pig

Lord Riverside estimated the current boom would last three or four years. The mills operated at 95 per cent. of capacity before the rearmament program was instituted. Now improving domestic conditions and an upward trend in export business have helped swell the demand.

But there will be no general European war during the next few years, Lord Riverdale believes. "Maybe not for fifty years," he declared.
