The World's Premier Agricultural Fa

Canadian National Enters 59th Year of Operation

C. N. E. is Direct Descendant of Niagara Agricultural Society Founded in 1792—Coronation Year at Exhibition Features Display of Latest Developments in Agriculture—The Weeks of August 27 to September 11 Are Packed with Attractions, Educational in Aspect.

Few people realize that the great Canadian National Exhibition which this year enters its fifty-ninth consecutive year of operation and is universally acknowledged to be the world's greatest annual exhibition, is the direct descendant of the Niagara Agricultural Society founded in 1792 under the patronage of John Graves Simcoe, Governor of Upper Canada. This society founded to aid the development of the products of the farm, so that the sturdy pioneers of Upper Canada might benefit in their fight against the wilderness by the pooling of their knowledge and experience, did a mighty work in the development of the struggling colony.

Having in the intervening decades grown away from the parochial limitations inevitably set by nature upon that Society, the Canadian National Exhibition has never lost sight of the original purpose for which it was founded, namely, for the encouragement of agriculture and industry; so that today we find the basic industry more firmly than ever established as the foundation upon which the superstructure of the "Show Window of the Nations" is reared.

Prize Lists Extended

It is generally acknowledged that there is no agricultural exhibition in the world equal to the Canadian National Exhibition, and in this Coronation Year all the latest developments in agriculture and aids in the scientific cultivation of the products of forest and field are on display. Entries in the different classes of livestock and field produce have attained record proportions, and to keep pace with these developments the prize lists have been extended and increased with the modern demands of growers and breeders. Also in keeping with the spirit of Coronation Year, special medals and handsomely embossed diplomas will be awarded.

In other fields the Canadian National Exhibition has encouraged the development of Canadian livestock. One of these is the trotting and pacing races. This year there are ever popular races are held from September 7 to September 10 with prizes of $7,000 in Futurities and $3,000 in Class races.

Canada's Premier Horse Show, in the Coliseum Arena, and the Poultry, Pigeon and Pet Stock show are other examples of the Exhibition's interest in the development of Canada's basic industry.

To all lovers of the out of doors the news that Tom Mix in person with his own three-ring circus and Wild West Shows will be at the Canadian National Exhibition will indeed be welcome. These shows, supreme triumph of the art of the "big top", are indeed different from the conventional presentations and are unique and modern in every respect. Tom Mix will take part in every performance.

Mounted Police in Pageant

Among the most popular attractions of the 1937 Exhibition will be the Coronation detachment of the Royal Canadian Mounted Police. This splendid body of men together with their perfectly trained and magnificent mounts will be present for the whole term of the Exhibition, and will be seen nightly as a part of the Pageant. Every Canadian will feel a thrill of pride at the spectacle of the "Mounties" guiding their steeds through the intricate evolutions of the Musical Ride.

In keeping with the Canadian National Exhibition's policy of presenting the finest of the world's musical organizations this year the United States Navy Band will be featured. The consent of President Franklin D. Roosevelt had to be obtained in order that the band might be present. Music lovers are promised a rare treat in the opportunity to hear at the Exhibition's magnificent new band shell this world famous aggregation of more than eighty musicians.

Every year there is something new, some innovation or improvement at the Exhibition and this year it is in the realm of amusement. Gone is the old Midway and in its place is a new amusement zone known as Frol-Ex-land. Here are many startling innovations in the way of entertainment: Eskimoland, an Eskimo village complete with igloos, dog-teams, blond Eskimos from the Arctic wastes, and Major Godsell's famous collection of northern trophies. Hollywood on Parade, which can best be described as a revelation of "movies" from the inside, taking in every phase of the making of a moving picture. There are many more interesting, mirth-provoking and instructive features of Frol-Ex-land which sets its apart as being in the forefront of the amusement world.

Of the utmost importance is the fact that exhibit space in the many buildings of the Canadian National Exhibition is in greater demand than has been the case since 1920. Space rentals as a whole are ten to fifteen per cent. higher than last year, and since the Exhibition has for years been acknowledged as Canada's business barometer this is indeed indicative of the Dominion's increasing prosperity.

Overseas Exhibits

Overseas exhibits are bigger and more comprehensive than ever before, the British Empire being particularly well represented. Australia, New Zealand, South Africa and the Indian Empire all have large displays of natural and manufactured products, while Great Britain is represented by the commercial displays in the British Section and the exhibit of the Scottish National Development Council. Foreign nations have taken over the International Building this year and among those exhibiting are Finland, Czechoslovakia and Japan, who is represented at the Exhibition

The 1937 dates for the Canadian National Exhibition are from August 27 to September 11. In keeping with its policy and possibility as a tangible link with the Niagara Agricultural Society, one day each year is traditionally set aside as Agriculturists' Day, this year Wednesday, Sept. 8.

When the old-time fiddlers and square dancers were introduced at the Canadian National Exhibition it was done as a novelty and intended as a temporary attraction. The innovation was an instantaneous hit and will be continued this year.

Horses! horses! horses! Hunters and jumpers, draught, carriage and general purpose animals are provided for in the prize list arranged for the Horse Show at the Canadian National Exhibition.

Farmers Attention!
WHEN IN TORONTO
Call to See Our
HARNESS AND COLLARS
FOR FALL PLOUGHING
The goods are right, and so are our prices. We manufacture in our factories—Harness, Horse Collars, Sweat Pads, Horse Blankets, and Leather Travelling Goods. Stace Brand gives satisfaction. Made only by Samuel Trees Company Limited
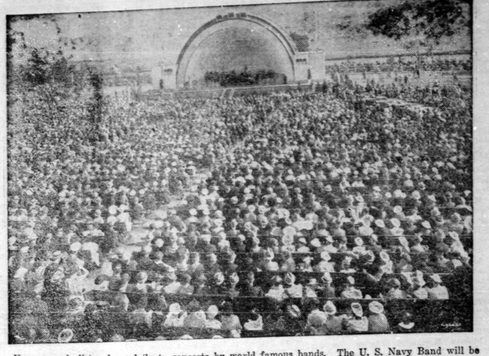
Factory and Showroom
663 King Street West, Toronto
WRITE FOR CATALOGUE

The C.N.E. Band Shell



Huge crowds listen here daily to concerts by world famous bands. The U. S. Navy Band will be heard this year.

Sunday School Lesson

GOD CONDEMNS INTEMPERANCE
Lev. 10:1, 2, 8-11

GOLDEN TEXT — Romans 14:21. "It is good not to eat flesh, nor to drink wine, nor to do anything, whereby thy brother stumbleth."

"And Nadab and Abihu, the sons of Aaron, took each of them his censer, and put fire therein, and laid incense thereon, and offered strange fire before Jehovah, which he had not commanded them. And there came forth fire from before Jehovah, and devoured them, and they died before Jehovah." The first section of our lesson has really no relation to the subject of temperance and the drinking of wine, though in it is the record of a sad incident occurring during the forty years of Israel's wanderings, which has served for centuries as a powerful warning against serving God in a presumptuous and self-willed manner. Two sons of Aaron, Nadab and Abihu, putting fire in their respective censers, offered strange fire before the Lord, which he had not commanded them, and immediately by fire, God slew them. What this strange fire was has been a question of dispute among commentators for a long time, but at least we know that they offered this fire either in a way not commanded, or at a time not commanded, or in a place not commanded, or, perhaps, in each and all of these ways, they offered fire not commanded of the Lord.

"And Jehovah spake unto Aaron, saying,"

A Statute Forever

"Drink no wine nor strong drink, thou, nor thy sons with thee, when ye go into the tent of meeting, that ye die not; it shall be a statute for ever throughout you generations. And that ye may make a distinction between the holy and the common, and between the unclean and the clean. And that ye may teach the children of Israel all the statutes which Jehovah hath spoken unto them by Moses." In this paragraph we have the first word of many spoken by the Lord down through the ages against the drinking of wine.

"It is not for kings, O Lemuel, it is not for kings to drink wine; nor for princes to say, where is strong drink? Lest they drink, and forget the law, and pervert the justice due to any that is afflicted." If the king who is here called Lemuel is not King Solomon himself, we do not know who he might be, for he is never referred to in any other place in the Bible except in the first four verses of this chapter. While the words in the preceding section forbade wine to the priests of God's people, the words here are a warning against the drinking of intoxicating liquors on the part of kings and princes, and the reason given for such a prohibition is that, by heavily drinking, those in whose hands govern ment and the execution of the law rest would be in danger of forgetting the law of the land, and being unjust to those who are in trouble.

"Woe to the crown of pride of the drunkards of Ephriam, and to the fading flower of his glorious beauty, that is on the head of the fat valley of them that are overcome with wine!" Ephriam is only another name for Samaria, or the northern kingdom, comprising the area occupied by ten of the twelve tribes of Israel, of which Ephriam was the leading tribe.

"Behold, the Lord hath a mighty and strong one; as a tempest of hail, a destroying storm, as a tempest of mighty waters overflowing, will he cast down to the earth with the hand. The crown of pride of the drunkards of Ephriam shall be trodden under foot." This is a reference to the Assyrians, whom the Lord would use as an agency for the punishment of his own people because of their stubbornness and wickedness.

"And the fading flower of his glorious beauty, which is on the head of the fat valley, shall be as the first-ripe fig before the summer; which when he that looketh upon it, while it is yet in his hand he eateth it up." The first ripe fig ripened in June, while the common fig does not ripen until August. The idea here is that the early fig would be plucked and eaten with great greediness, rather than picked and put away for future use. Prophetically Isaiah is telling the Samaritans that, as soon as the Assyrians should see their beautiful country, they would rush upon it and destroy it.

"In that day will Jehovah of hosts become a crown of glory, and a diadem of beauty, unto the residue of his people." The threat is now followed by a promise. The place of the false glory thus overthrown is now filled by a glory that is divine and true. The remnant of his people is not Judah, but Judah and the remaining portion of Ephriam, as distinguished from the portion which had perished. After the perishable thing in which they gloried had been swept away, the eternal person of Jehovah himself would be the ornament and the pride of his people.

"And a spirit of justice to him that sitteth in judgment." (See Isa. 11:2; 32:15, 16; 1 Kings 3:28; John 5:30.) The phrase undoubtedly means that the day would come (we do not believe it has yet come) when those who judge in the land will do so in the illumination of the very Spirit of God who will be to such judges a spirit of justice. "And strength to them that turn back the battle at the gate." This must undoubtedly refer to the turning back of the hosts of Sennacherib which were besieging the city of Jerusalem during the reign of Hezekiah, the vivid record of which is to be found in 2 Chronicle. 32 and in 2 Kings 19.

"And even these reel with wine." This paragraph refers to those within the kingdom of Judah, who, though they saw the terribly disastrous effects of drunkenness upon their northern brethren, still continued to indulge in the same vice. "And stagger with strong drink; the priest and the prophet reel with strong drink, they are swallowed up of wine; they stagger with strong drink; they err in vision." To be swallowed up of wine, is a vivid way of expressing the terrible fact that they were in the complete grip of the sin of intoxication, their very reason, strength, and virtue devoured by such indulgences.

"They stumble in judgment." For every true minister of the gospel and for all worthy priests, occasions must arise, with more or less frequency, in which they will be called upon to render judgment, and give advice or comfort in the most critical and delicate problems of life, which will demand the clearest mind and the purest heart for proper evaluation. Everyone knows that intoxicating liquors becloud the mind; one does not hear accurately, the delicate fibers of the mind do not function readily or in unison, and one says the most foolish things, and thinks generally the wickedest thoughts, when under the power of such a demon as drink. Alcoholic beverages are not the only things that beclound the minds of ministers.

"For all tables are full of vomit and filthiness, so that there is no place clean." All the tables of the carousal are full without being any further room; everything swims with vomit. The prophet paints from nature, here, without idealizing. He receives their conduct, as it were, in a mirror, and then in the severest tones holds up this mirror before them, adults though they were.

"It is good not to eat flesh nor to drink wine, nor to do anything whereby thy brother stumbleth." For a still stronger expression of the noble principle of this verse see 1 Cor. 8:12. Of the three verbs, the first refers to the wounding of the heart caused to our neighbour by conduct which he disapproves; the second to the sin which he would be led to commit by being drawn away to do what his conscience condemns; the third to the want of regard for the scruples with which he is affected through weakness of faith.

"What a vast change would come over our country if every time a man ordered a glass of intoxicating liquor he would first say to himself: Am I by drinking this lending others into temptation, or in any way weakening the power of their moral life to resist temptation?

Exhibition Notes

There is no agricultural show in the world equal to that at the Canadian National Exhibition. . . All the new developments as applied to farm, field, and orchard are on display. Horses, cattle, sheep, swine, poultry, goats, calves, dairy products, vegetables, fruits, flowers, grain machinery and farm equipment of all kinds are there in profusion.

"Empire Onward", the pageant at the Canadian National Exhibition this year, will savor largely of Coronation activities, but as usual the glittering extravaganza for which these productions are famous will be deftly woven into the theme . . . Incidents portraying the coronation of Queen Victoria of revered memory and of the other monarchs through the years to His Majesty King George VI will be included.

When the Royal Canadian Mounted Police appeared in the recent Coronation parade in London they were accorded a vociferous reception all along the route. Their specially selected, highly-trained horses and the ultra-smart appearance of the men were a credit to Canada. This same carefully prepared unit will be a Canadian National Exhibition feature this year.

Business men have learned that the new trends in business, in business methods, new types of goods, equipment for plants and offices and all the ramifications of the world of trade and commerce are on review for them. Foreign buyers from around the world make an annual pilgrimage to this exposition. The re saler, jobber and ma not only pleasure but p able combination. Ri to all of the foregoing ness men is the fact that consumers attend in t

---

The Canadian Nation originally chartered "to agement of agriculture, the arts," has never s purpose for which it w It has grown and exp respects but the basic carefully adhered to.

It was necessary to s sonal approval of Pre D. Roosevelt to bring States Navy Band to National Exhibition eighty-five musicians personnel will run to dred. They will trans Washington, D.C., in s

---

Tom Mix and his "Tony" will be at the tional Exhibition to dele sters. The oldsters, too talined by the hero of has quit the silver scr cus, and will bring his show and "Wild West" the "Ex."

Open 10 A.M. to 8 P.M.
CASA LO
Exhibits — Rural, Ag
Adults 25c — Children 1

Don't Miss Our Ex
The Best Bette
NORTON, CHIEL and SINGER CAN
CUT, RUN
TRADES - EAST TEXAS
OUR SPE
WALTER ANDR
531 Yonge S

FEET, FALLE
World's Friend
When in Toro
WARE
12 Queen St. E.

SAF
Protect your CASH and and THIEVES. See a tified Cabinets, and Bur
Moderate prices and showroom, or write for

J. & J. TAYLO
TORONTO SA
145 Front St. E.
Exhibitor

VISIT
EXHIB
Complete
EATO
There's a mod
Gingo at
STORE—at LARGE STAND
Assort
shown in Ro
Winter which
MAIL ORDE
just send Store, at
Take elevator
EXHIBITION
subway
for Exhibition
"EAT
TORONTO

BASEBALL IN TORONTO
Maple Leaf Stadium
Visitors to Toronto during Exhibition will have an opportunity of seeing the "Maple Leafs" in the following International League games:

Aug. 26, Montreal (double-header)	Sept. 4, Buffalo
Aug. 30, Rochester.	Sept. 6 (Labor Day) Rochester
Aug 31, Rochester
Sept. 1, Rochester	Sept. 10, Montreal
Sept. 2, Buffalo	Sept. 11, Montreal
Sept. 3, Buffalo

Floodlight games weekdays except Saturdays and

DON'T WORRY ABOUT PARKING IN TO
Use modern garages at prices approximately the same as outdoor lots.

BAY-FRONT GARAGE	BAY-ADELAIDE GARAGE	COMMONWEALTH
Bay & Front Sts.	65 Adelaide St. W.	10 Colborne
Convenient to the ROYAL YORK HOTEL	In the heart of the SHOPPING DISTRICT	KING

Complete 24 hour Repair Service TELEPHONE WAverley 2767

Tea for every Taste
"SALADA" TEA

DEATH ON THE DIAMOND
BY CORTLAND FITZSIMMONS

...of Preceding Instalments
...United League season ...gamblers are offering 200 ...Fog Clark's New York ...win the pennant. Terry ...the only sports writer to ...a chance. He bets $10 at ...lli's restaurant in the ...district. In the Blues' ...Whitpor, the Philadelphia ...filled with a bullet through ...after smashing out a home ...Burke and Larry Doyle, ...rooki shortstop, for whom ...ty daughter Frances had ...preference over Whitpor, ...ed at first by Detective ...Burke who discovers it ...eam, notorious gunman, ...d a taxi with a bullet ...e and injured four Bos-...n the Blues are to open ...inst Dirkin, Chicago star, ...n the diamond from poi-...aragraph needle fixed in ...of his bat. Pietro, Chi-...boy, disappears. Clark ...to Newark but he is soon ...e. When the Blues go ...Scotter, the Reds' ...is found dead from a ...by a mysterious powder ...ch a jigsaw puzzle sent ...nymously. Eact time ...s beat on these sensa-...dings and masked gun-

...S MODEL AT HOME
...MART BECAUSE
...T'S SIMPLE
...ANNE ADAMS

...the style—the smart-...a good rule for the ...llow in choosing her ...sprightly Pattern ...ck for late Sum-...fall days. Just the ...he one who sews at ...y to run up. Full-...flattering Eton col-...cuffs, and a snug-...e details to match the ...Eight-to-Sixteener." ...the gay new wash ...then try a version ...or wool plaid for ...perchance, one of

...available in girls' ...10, 12, 14 and 16. ...2½ yards 36 inch ...rd contrasting. Il-...tep sewing instruc-

...nts (20c) in coins ...preferred) for this ...rn. Write plainly ...ss and style num-

...to Anne Adams, ...laide St. West, To-Rawlins think of the public ty, if they can think?"

One of the greatest crowds in the annals of Cleveland baseball was out at the park that afternoon. There were plenty of police and they were needed more to keep the crowds in order than for anything else. The publicity in the papers and the talk about Planer had done more for the gate receipts than anything in baseball history.

"Look at 'em, the ghouls!" Craven said as he looked out over the stands and bleachers.

Just behind the press box a man was sitting. He looked familiar and Terry paused and looked at him a second time. That was the man who had the room next to him at the hotel. Terry had seen him going up in the elevator in the morning as he was checking in. He remembered the clerk had said, "Yes, Mr. Burke, I've been holding a room for you." Terry hadn't thought of it at the time, but had supposed that Craven had reserved a room for him. That was not the case, however. It was his unknown body-guard.

"The crowd is going to be awful disappointed if we don't have a murder to-day," Biers said.

"I'll bet Big Boy Planer has the jitters right now," Mullins changed the subject.

"There he is coming out," Doc Biers pointed just as a cheer rang through the stands.

A Stellar Player

With the exception of the famous "Babe," there has never been a figure as popular as Planer in all the history of baseball. He could hit and field and never made a wrong move on the diamond. His baseball sense was intuitive.

Big Boy Planer had always been a romantic figure. He ran away from home when he was ten and traveled round the country for a year or so with one of the smaller circuses. He was in the South and discovered a baseball training camp. He became a hanger-on with the Orioles. He was bat boy and general utility man. He ate, drank and slept baseball. He was a prime favorite with all the men, and old Keenan taught him all he knew about hitting.

When Planer was eighteen he went out in the sticks playing sandlot baseball. Then he went into the minors and after a couple of years he went back to the Baltimore team. The kids had always been crazy about him. He was full of the tricks that endear a man to the hearts of children. For one thing, he never grew up himself. He was still a big boy, always had been and always would be. He spent thousands of dollars every year doing things for boys in orphanages. He probably autographed more baseballs in a few years than any player living or dead. He was known and loved from coast to coast and from north to south.

Planer was full of pep today. There was no trace of nervousness as he began to warm up for the game. The eyes of the entire sports world were on him, but those people there in the stands were wondering what might happen to him during the course of the game.

(To be Continued.)

Women's Dress Tell Their Nature

Screen Dress Designer Advises Mere Man to Study Feminine Raiment

HOLLYWOOD. — Judge a woman, not by the company she keeps, but by the clothes she wears, Milo Anderson, screen dress designer, counseled this week.

"If you want to know what kind of wife your girl will be, look over her clothes," Anderson advised.

Woman's actions and speech are a poor basis for an estimate of her worth, Anderson said, explaining:

"Remember, she's trying to impress you and is on her guard, but what she wears is a dead give-away of her character and habits and is an accurate forecast of what your life will be with her after the honeymoon is over."

Here are some of Anderson's observations:

Women who are addicted to long, dangling ear rings talk a great deal.

Girls who always wear high heels are inclined to be coquettes.

Girls who like to wear big picture hats are always seeking a background for their beauty—they want you to be part of that background.

Women who choose "dizzy" hats lack discretion and are easily deluded.

And so on. What to do?

"The best wife timber," Anderson said, "is the young lady who makes her own clothes, yet looks as if she'd emerged from a swanky shop."

Grasshoppers Threaten Weed and Thistle Crop

REGINA—Southern Saskatchewan farmers turned to the weeds and Russian thistles that began growing in the drought area after recent rains for feed for live stock, but find that grasshoppers and other insects are beating them, reports said. "In addition, grasshoppers are ridding clothing articles whenever hung outside to dry during washday.

"You can't teach acting."
—Ethel Barrymore.

Glamorous Girl Has Trained Mind

Real Beauty Goes Below Surface Charm; Conservation Important

True glamor—the enviable variety which lasts through the years, like real beauty, goes deeper than a surface of expertly applied cosmetics, lovely hair, even good posture. Much more important than exquisitely simple, flattering clothes, correct makeup and a chic coiffure are a personality, great "tolerance and the ability to be interested as well as interesting.

One who has decided to be a glamor girl, ought to give attempts to improve herself (her inner self) place number one—right out in front ahead of everything else. To be a thoroughly charming person, as well as a neat, well groomed, physically attractive one is an admirable aim and sure to pay huge dividends.

Do Without the "I"

Try eliminating the personal pronoun from your conversation as much as possible. Get into the habit of listening (really listening) while others speak. And don't argue for hours or be too dogmatic in your opinions.

You don't have to be a namby-pamby yes-woman — but neither should you be just plain prejudiced or stubborn.

You read the daily newspapers, don't you? And current magazines as well as historical novels, biographies and other good books which make you think and enrich your store of knowledge. Little use in looking glamorous if your mind is stagnant and you have nothing interesting to talk about.

If you want men to like you (and what girl does not?), better give up malicious gossiping, being catty about other women and discussing diets and clothes for hours on end. Say what you will, men like a little sweetness in a woman. And no matter how glamorously lovely you look, they will be disappointed if and when they discover that you are totally lacking in warmth and friendliness.

Want To Be First Woman River Pilot

Gabrielle Lemay and Laura Archer Both Want to be Canada's Leading Female Navigator

QUEBEC.—Two girls with but a single thought are Gabrielle Lemay, 20, of the tiny south shore village of St. Jean Deschaillons, and Laura Archer, 19, of Bracebridge, Ont.—they both want to be Canada's first woman river pilot.

Miss Lemay first mate on her father's oil-carrying, motor-driven vessel Adelphie, will attend a marine school at the close of navigation next fall, preparatory to applying for a master's certificate.

Veteran river men down this way say she has shown rare navigating ability at the wheel of the Adelphie on its journeys between Quebec and Montreal. Capt. Alphonse Halle, director of the marine school here, expressed the opinion she will complete her course and be in position for a master's papers before next Christmas.

Rival for the honors, Miss Archer played a heroine's role last Sunday when she safely beached her father's vessel, The Mildred, after it struck a rock in Lake Muskoka.

The vessel sprung a bad leak and while her father, Capt. C. W. Archer, and members of the crew worked to block the hole in the hull, Miss Archer steered the craft ashore, beaching it without further damage. No crew member or any of the 21 passengers aboard were injured in the beaching.

Indians May Sell South Dakota Hills

RAPID CITY, S.D. — Four age-wrinkled Indian Chiefs, all of whom saw the "Custer massacre" of 1876 complained last week of ill-treatment at the hands of the United States government and talked of offering South Dakota's scenic Black Hills to Canada.

The four, meeting to plan a tribal council at the Standing Rock reservation, Ft. Yates, N.D., late this month, where it was proposed formal presentation of grievances be put before federal officials, included two nephews of Sitting Bull, whose Sioux and Cheyenne bands wiped out General Custer and his troops in the battle at Little Big Horn.

Occarione Bull, one of the Indian's nephews, voiced the complaint of the quartet:

"The white man," he said, "has never carried out his treaties with us. Many old Indians starved to death last winter for lack of rations. If the President doesn't do something for us, we are going to Canada to talk to them."

Parliament Has Quota Lunatics and Donkeys

OXFORD — If Parliament were fully representative of the community, it would have as members one or two criminals, a few lunatics, some hefty children and in true democracy, an elderly donkey, said Miss Margery Fry, speaking at the summer school of the Howard League for Penal Reform. The next speaker, George Benson, Labor member of Parliament for Chesterfield, retorted: "I can assure Miss Fry that Parliament is fully representative, and our democratic system is far more perfect than she seems to realize.

Home Hints
By LAURA KNIGHT

Variety is the Spice of Tapioca Desserts

How often, as meal times draw near, do you wonder rather desperately what you are going to serve for dessert Here are a few tricks to the dessert trade which will save you a lot of worry and work when that problem comes up again and the results will delight your family.

Quick-cooking Tapioca Cream is the basis of seven different and tasty desserts, all of them practical, delicious and very economical too. This cream requires only five minutes to cook after the liquid scalds which is a definite improvement on the old kind of tapioca which took at least fifteen minutes to cook. It saves time and saves dishes and gives you a tapioca pudding with a new delicacy of texture.

Quick-cooking tapioca cream contains so many food essentials that it suggests planning the meal backwards—merely supplementing the dessert with a few simple dishes and a beverage. It contains eggs and milk, fresh fruit and energy-giving tapioca, all of which go a long way towards meeting the family's daily food needs. Then all these good things are offered in a fluffy, creamy dessert, they banish all thought of duty and are eagerly eaten up.

Here is the recipe for the Tapioca Cream.

Quick Cooking Tapioca Cream

One third cup quick-cooking tapioca
Half cup sugar
Quarter teaspoon salt
1 or 2 egg yolks
4 cups milk
1 or 2 egg whites, stiffly beaten
1 teaspoon flavouring

Combine quick-cooking tapioca, sugar, salt, egg yolk, and milk in top of double boiler and stir enough to break egg yolk. Place over rapidly boiling water, bring to scalding point (allow 5 to 7 minutes), and cook 5 minutes, stirring frequently. Remove from boiling water. Fold in small amount into egg white; add to remaining tapioca mixture and blend. Cool, mixture thickens as it cools. When slightly cool, add flavouring; chill. Serve in sherbet glasses.

Illustrated here are four desserts that can be made and even more variations can be turned out by the imaginative housewife. Once you have the basis, there are all kinds of fruits and sauces which can be added to the cream or poured over to make a novel dessert.

Upper left shows a plain tapioca cream dessert with a maraschino cherry to add a bright bit of colour. Lower left shows what can be done by the addition of fresh fruit. Add crushed berries to the cream and leave a few whole ones with which to garnish the top. In the upper right corner is a dessert which will appeal particularly to the juvenile members of the family. It is Tapioca Cream with chocolate sauce poured over and garnished with fluffs of whipped cream. In the lower right is Tapioca Cream garnished with fresh or canned peach halves and topped with whipped cream.

This is an all year round dessert because you can use either canned or fresh fruits and vary the garnish according to the season.

Issue No. 35—'37
C