A few minutes later, the two girls were sipping sodas at a counter in the lobby of the building. Gay sighed as her thoughts winged back to her home -the big ranch at the base of Cry-ing Woman Mountain, with beautiful Rimrock Canyon only an hour's ride in New York.

"I suppose we'd better be getting back now," Irene interrupted Gay's thoughts. "They probably have the plot all hatched."

At that moment, a deep masculin Gay turned and saw a tall, dark, and exceedingly good-looking young "Rodney, I'm so glad to see you!

Irene cooed in a silky voice. "This is Gay—Gay Needham. I've talked of is Rodney Sinclair, Gay - the box whose picture I kept on my dresse during our boarding-school days at Madame Le Gran's. You remember?"

This is true of everyone outside of the Lord Jesus Christ, but in Christ, if the New Testament teaches anything, it teaches this, that, in believing, we are to have peace and joy. Here is one of the deepest, more precious themes of the word of God, something which cannot be analyzed, but must be entered into by experience.

themes of the word of God, something which cannot be analyzed, but must be entered into by experience.

Even as he hath said, As I sware in my wrath, They shall not enter into my rest. These words are taken from Psalm 95: 11, and they refer to God's words to Israel, especially as regards her entrance into the Promised Land. Had Israel fully followed in the matter of exterminating enemy peoples, Israel would have had a complete rest from the exhausting, taxing, rebellious invasions and uprisings of these pagan peoples. But there is certainly a deeper meaning here in the matter of rest—a rest for the souls of the Israelites, a true resting in God.
