

SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

LESSON VI.—FEB. 7.
JESUS THE LIGHT OF THE WORLD
JOHN 7: 1-9, 41.

Golden Text.—I am the light of the world: he that followeth Me shall not walk in darkness, but shall have the light of life. John 8: 12.

The Lesson in Its Setting
Time.—All the events in this lesson occurred during the week of October 11-18, A.D. 29.

Place.—All the events in this lesson took place in the city of Jerusalem.

Again therefore Jesus spake unto them, saying, I am the light of the world: he that followeth Me shall not walk in darkness, but shall have the light of life. In these nine verses Jesus speaks of Himself as the light of the world, a repudiation of that statement by the Pharisees who heard Him, and a defence of the truthfulness of His words by the Lord Himself.

Jesus therefore said to those Jews that had believed Him, if ye abide in My word, then are ye truly My disciples. "Surrender of mind, heart, and will to the power of Christ's doctrine must be complete and enduring. There must be more than a mere recognition of the striking novelty of Jesus. There must be the reception of His word into conscience and heart."

And ye shall know the truth, and the truth shall make you free.—Later on, the night before His death, Jesus is praying to His Father, again refers to the word of God as truth (John 17: 17-19). If man accept the truth which Christ teaches, that is, the truth about God, about sin, about Satan, about eternal life, about holiness, about love, men will be free from the power of Satan who deceives, from the bondage of fear, which is due to ignorance, from the power of darkness, from sin itself.

And as he passed by, he saw a man blind from birth. Blindness from birth is a condition which no man could change, especially no man could ever open his own eyes. All the beauty of life is shut out from the world of a man born blind.

And His disciples asked him, saying, Rabbi, who sinned this man, or his parents, that he should be born blind?—That the man's blindness was due to sin is the disciples' assumption of the question was, Was the sin committed by the man so afflicted, or by his parents? In one way the question seems foolish, for the man was born blind, before he ever could have sinned. Furthermore, the question is based on a false assumption. Not all suffering or physical handicaps are the consequences of sin in some immediate ancestor. Parents of most devout faith have known to have children of imbecile tendencies, while there are parents who have given birth to children while living in scandalous sin, whose children have lived for years without any physical suffering. Ultimately, of course, all suffering results from the fallen condition of the human race.

Movie-radio gossip

By DOROTHY

There was a rather funny reaction to an interview that Edward G. Robinson gave a reporter for an Italian newspaper some time ago. He grabbed the work of Frank Capra, the director, who is Italian by birth, saying that Capra refused to direct gangster films.

He remarked that he thought it because Capra did not want to make pictures which showed his own people in a bad light. When the story got out, it hit, not Capra, but Robinson. Seems the Italians thought gangsters were something like senators or high officials, but Robinson, the American institution of which the Americans were proud!

The long discussion over which actors would play the mother role in "Stella Dallas" has been going on for some time. It goes to Barbara Stanwyck, who does seem a bit young for it, but of course, she's always the make-up. An announcement was made that the part will be rewritten to fit her.

At the moment the "Gone With the Wind" pursuit of Barbara Stanwyck heroine is still going on. It will be settled in the same way—some attractive, dependable actress who will be the part to be rewritten to fit her.

Phyllis Faylor, who has long been one of radio's favorite comedians, has learned a lot from what has happened to other men like her when they have been in the picture. And she is profiting by what she has learned. She knows that when she has been in the picture, she has been cut out until there is practically nothing left of it.

Both Samuel Goldwyn and Paramount want him to do his special pictures, but he has held out, even when the offer of retaining $12,000 to do his stuff.

The very funny Ritz Brothers, who can be relied upon to send movie audiences into gales of laughter, encountered something that was not so funny to them, when they had to learn to skate for "One in a Million," the Song Heine picture.

The brothers simply could not learn to skate. They could not even get up on skates. Finally the difficulty was solved by having special skates made for them.

"There is only one way in which to give a person a real education: a teacher and pupil sitting—the one teaching, the other learning."—Henrik Willem van Loon.

You May Be Skeptical, But

There is a large market in this country for the heavier kind of British products, but there is a conspicuous lack of retail merchandise on the shelves of the stores. A shopper may ramble through any grocery, for example, and find nothing at all that is British. There are plenty of articles from American manufacturers and from factories of American-owned establishments on Canadian soil, but British commodities which are common in every store in Britain are scarcely seen except for a few lines.

The British Isles clearly see the British manufacturers. There is every good word here towards British products, but the roots of the trouble is that British manufacturers apparently do not think it necessary to advertise in Canadian newspapers. They seem to feel that because their goods are better than those of other countries, they need not make their goods. They are not familiar with them all. If large sales for a product have been made in the United Kingdom by advertising it is just as necessary, even more so, to "educate" the public in Canada to buy what may be better than anything else on the shelves. There are many who are busy about which they have no buying articles.

formal discussion, of whether it might be advantageous for the different college groups to join forces in this special activity. It has been suggested that a central office, open to all, and with a secretary always in attendance, and able to make available to any visiting college student a list of the different volunteer committees, might permit defensible expansion of present services.

Physically speaking, this should not be difficult to arrange. Six college clubs—Indefinite, Well's, Mount Holyoke, Bryn Mawr, Goucher and Mills—now have their college clubs in the Women's University Club at 165 East Fifty-second street. The American Association of University Women also has an office there, 100 West 42nd street, at 35 East Fifty-second street, the two large clubs, Smith and Vassar, have their club houses.

Three Conditions of Water Found in The Common Farm Soil
Only One of the Three Forms of Moisture is Necessary for the Growing Crops

Water exists in the soil in three conditions: Free water, capillary water, and soil water. Free water is that which is not held in the soil particles and is available to plants. Capillary water is that which is held in the soil particles and is available to plants. Soil water is that which is held in the soil particles and is available to plants.
