Jesus the Good Shepherd
John 10: 1-42

Printed Text John 10:1-16.

Golden Text—I am the good shepherd: the good shepherd layeth down his life for the sheep. John 10:11.

Time—The discourse on Christ as the Good Shepherd was uttered in October A.D. 29. The events recorded in the last of the chapter took place in December of that year and in January, A.D. 30.

Place—The events recorded in this chapter took place in Jerusalem, except the one found in verses 40-42, which is to be located in Bethany beyond Jordan.

1. Verily, verily, I say unto you, He that entereth not by the door into the fold of the sheep. The sheepfold was a walled enclosure, with a strongly barred door, through which alone access could be had to the sheep. Through this door the sheep were led at night, after which the gate was barred. A porter slept near the gate on the inside of the enclosure. In the morning the shepherd knocks on the gate, it is opened to him, and he calls his own sheep out. But climbeth up some other way, the same is a thief and a robber. A man who had no right to go through the door, who would not be allowed to enter the door, and who would resort to climbing over the wall to seize a sheep is truly "a thief and a robber."

2. But he that entereth in by the door is the shepherd of the sheep.

3. To him the porter openeth. The sheepfold speak of the true church, the body of Christ; the sheep, of course, are those who are the true followers of the Lord Jesus Christ, the children of God; the shepherd is the Lord Jesus, though he has not yet announced himself as such. Professor Plummer says we might take the porter to be the Holy Spirit. And the sheep head his voice: and he calleth his own sheep by name, and leadeth them out. Frequently three or four shepherds will lead their sheep into one sheepfold at night. It is one of the most amazing sights in the Orient to see a shepherd approach, say, seven hundred sheep, belonging to four or five different shepherds, and, by a peculiar guttural sound, call his own sheep out from amongst the others.

4. When he hath put forth all his own, he goeth before them, and the sheep follow him: for they know his voice. The shepherd goes before the sheep because he knows the way. In doing so, he is the first one to meet prowling beasts and to see places of danger which must be avoided. Our Lord has gone before us in conflict with Satan, and has defeated him, so that we follow in that victory.

5. And a stranger will they not follow, but will flee from him: for they know not the voice of strangers. Strangers, as far as Christians are concerned, are those false teachers and false prophets who would lead astray the very children of God.

6. This parable spake Jesus unto them: but they understood not what things they were which he spake unto them. They did not understand Christ's teachings because they were not sincere: they were not really seeking for the truth.

7. Jesus therefore said unto them again, Verily, verily, I say unto you, I am the door of the sheep. Sir William Grenfell, the famous Labrador physician, had an experience which remarkably illustrates the meaning of this verse: "One of our party, as we climbed, noticed a shepherd driving his sheep into a large kind of cave with an open mouth. In reply to her question, he said: 'I am puting them away for the night to be safe from the jackals and dogs.' But she objected: 'There is no door to the cave.' He replied simply: 'I am the door.' It is the Eastern shepherd's custom to lie down across the doorway of such caves, and with his own life to protect the sheep."

8. All that came before me are thieves and robbers. By this Jesus does not mean that all the prophets of the Old Testament and the true priests of God in Israel's history were thieves and robbers, but that all who in themselves pretended to satisfy the needs of men, to provide in them-selves salvation from sin, had illegally and falsely assumed such prerogatives and, therefore, had robbed their followers of the peace, joy, life, and hope which they falsely had promised to bestow. But the sheep did not hear them. It does not say that no one heard them, for great multitudes did, but the sheep, those who truly belong to God, whom God had called, would not follow these false teachers and shepherds.

9. I am the door; by me if any man enter in, he shall be saved, and shall go in and go out, and shall find pasture. (Cf. Matt. 7:14). A man who approaches God by believing in the Lord Jesus Christ is a man who will find entrance into the new life here and in the glory to come, and is one who certainly will be saved, for no man can come to Christ sincerely but that Christ will receive him.

10. The thief cometh not, but that he may steal, and kill, and destroy. Satan is the great thief. I came that they may have life, and may have it abundantly. To follow Christ is to know a richer physical life, a clearer, stronger mental life, a sweeter domestic li-, a more luminous social life, and, preeminently, a true, eternal, spiritual life, the very life of God.

11. I am the good shepherd. At last Christ identifies himself actually as the Shepherd of the sheep—the good Shepherd layeth down his life for the sheep. It is very significant that almost every passage in the New Testament that speaks of the love of God for man and the love of Christ for man also speaks of the death of the Lord Jesus Christ for man (for instance, John 3:16; Gal. 2:20; 1 John 3:16; 4:10).

12. He that is a hireling, and not a shepherd, whose own the sheep are not. The hireling was simply a hired shepherd, who himself was not interested in the flock, but was caring for it simply for the money he received. Beholdeth the wolf coming, and leaveth the sheep, and fleeth, and the wolf snatcheth them, and scattereth them. The wolf represents any enemy of Christ who, at the same time, of course, would be an enemy of the welfare of Christ's own.

13. He fleeth because he is a hireling, and careth not for the sheep. The hireling flees because he is interested only in himself and his own welfare. Christ was concerned first with men. He came to minister to and to lay down his life a ransom for us.

14. I am the good shepherd; and I know mine own, and mine own know me. The sheep gives him an increasing knowledge of us.

15. Even as the Father knoweth me, and I know the Father; and I lay down my life for the sheep. As the shepherd is always with the sheep and so deeply interested in them, the shepherd comes to know his sheep very intimately.

16. And other sheep I have, which are not of this fold. Christ is here referring to the Gentiles, as a great company distinct from the children of Israel, and yet, with them, equally the sheep of his fold. Them also I must bring. Literally, the verb should read "lead." And they shall hear my voice. Millions and millions have heard the voice of Christ, through the written word, and his witnesses down through the ages. And they shall become one flock, one shepherd. The church of Christ is one indivisible body, because it is the body of Christ; each believer has the same privileges as another; we are bound together by a common faith, a common hope, and one Lord (Eph. 4:5).

Question — "I have your bulletin No. 264 "Manures and Fertilizers," of 1931 and observe the mixture designed to produce a 2-12-6 fertilizer. From another source, I have the following suggestion for the 2-12-6 formula: 500 lbs. Ammo-Phos 10-48, and 200 lbs. Muriate of Potash, to give 700 lbs. It is claimed that the 700 lbs. can be sown without any filler at the rate of 70 lbs. per acre, which should give the same results as 2-12-6 sown at the rate of 200 lbs. per acre. I would be pleased to know from you if the latter method and ingredients are more modern than those mentioned in your bulletin, and also if it would be quite satisfactory. Would sawdust, reasonably dry, make a satisfactory filler to keep mixture from becoming lumpy if it lay some time before being used? Also is it at all successful to mix fertilizer with the grain in the drill box when a fertilizer drill is not available or does the fertilizer run out first instead of coming evenly with the grain?" H. T., Renfrew County.

Answer — In answer to your first question, home mixing is not a new practice. I saw it used with varying success 25 years ago in New Brunswick and Maine. The ingredient Ammonium Phospate, 10.48, is a comparatively new product. It is highly concentrated and contains available nitrogen and phosphorus as guaranteed. It has been mixed in the quantity that each quote, which closely approximates with the potash, the analysis 2-12-6. As to it being quite satisfactory, I am not prepared to say. Some claim to have gotten good results from it. If the mixture has been made carefully and applied evenly, I see no reason why it should not give results. I certainly advise adding at least 200 lbs. of filler to make the mixture up to the ½ ton quantity, since I doubt if you can get a drill that will sow evenly and thoroughly in quantities of even 100 lbs. per acre.

In answer to your question about sawdust, I would not recommend it as a filler since it takes up moisture rather readily and is very light and bulky. The best type of filler is something that is about the same specific gravity as the fertilizer material, ensuring tests have shown that the material that is heaviest, flows from the drill more quickly than lighter specific gravity material.

In mixing fertilizer with grain in the drill box, this same point is encountered since grain is not the same specific gravity nor the same size kernel as is the fertilizer. I doubt if you can get even application of fertilizer through the grain drill box, if fertilizer and grain are mixed together. Especially is this the case if there is much moisture in the air or if the grain is at all damp. There is also danger of seriously injuring the grain drill. If you do sow the mixture through the grain drill box, be sure to clean it out thoroughly, immediately after drilling has been completed.

Prophet Foretells Canada-U.S. Union

ALBANY, N.Y.— The Very Rev. Edward R. Welles, Dean of All Saints Cathedral, turned prophet temporarily during a talk before a meeting of parish women.

Explaining that his imagination and newspaper gleanings on the trend of world events provided the basis for his predictions, Dean Welles "saw" among other things:

Canada electing to become part of the United States in 1952 or against Russia and China in 1940, Hitler dying the following year, "cause unknown." Another depression in 142. A second "world war" between 1946 and 1949, Germany, under Emperor Hermann Goering, conquering the Italian Empire in 1952.

Movie-radio gossip

By DOROTHY

One of the trade magazines of the motion picture industry started to publishing a report on the popularity of the screen stars. For months and months, people had been told that Robert Taylor had climbed to the very top: that his pictures were the most Clark Gable did, that his name plastered a theatre was magic, because it meant so many paying customers that the short, Mr. Taylor was tops.

But—according to this report—Clark Gable is the screen's most popular actor!

Last year Shirley Temple held the position. This year she is second, Fred Astaire and Ginger Rogers a team come third, Robert Taylor fourth, and William Powell fifth.

In case you're interested, the other leading stars are listed in this order: Myrna Loy, Claudette Colbert, Norma Shearer, Gary Cooper, Frederic March, Jeanette MacDonald and Nelson Eddy as a team, Lionel Barrymore.

It is nice to report that Anna Sten-ney's new picture, "Great Ziegfeld," one of his best.

James Cagney

It had to be. He won it for Grand Old Man. You know, a new organization, and if it had not turned out well, it might have had more Cagney on the screen for a while. After all, troubles with studios are pleasant to know he is once more on the big time and the comeback is now triumph.

Have you listened to that new program, "Do you Want to Be an Actor?" If you haven't, do! It's entertaining. People who are hoping for parts are given roles in which that are done before the microphone, and after each performance the program performers and the best given movie tests by Warner Brothers. It's quite possible that some of our future stars will be developed in this way.

If the radio programs give "Myrt and Marge" for so long among your favorites, you'll be glad to know that a new series of that popular couple has started on a family affair, for "Myrt's" husband now on the program, and "Myrt's" daughter. The son, George Gerei, used to go to the University of Southern California, but left college to tour with his mother on the stage. Looks as if "Myrt" will soon be up a pretty good boy-friend problem by by writing those sketches for it?

Grace Moore has had to abandon her concert tour on the coast, temporarily, is only to take a much needed rest. She has been working hard in pictures, in fact, she has turned into a real trouper, and the temperament that is said to cause so much trouble is well under control.

In "Stowaway" you'll see Shirley Temple doing imitations of Edmund Lowe and Al Johnson and doing them well. The funny thing about it is that the child star never saw either of them; just worked the imitations up from what she was told about the two gentlemen's work.

Hollywood is still shocked and grieve over the recent suicide of Paul Bern's wife, Aleta Rogers. Little more than a year before. It was said that she killed herself because, contrary to Hollywood opinion, New York stage success could not seem to get ahead in the movies. Young Aleta Rogers was doing very well in her career, but the suicide of Russell Gaxton's wife, Lois Moran, and the suicide of Ross Alexander, although the reasons for his friends in Hollywood he had never met, have left a deep impression.

Ross Alexander

Ross Alexander was married to the screen's prettiest young women, Anne Nagel, a year ago last June. Their marriage seemed ODDS and ENDS—Romance is in the air at the Paramount studio, with Valentino's widow, Natacha Rambova, and Ben Lyon's wife, Bebe Daniels, both of whom will appear in a picture being made there. Natacha is the wife of Herman Rosse, famous scenic artist, and Bebe is the wife of Ben Lyon, who is also under contract to Paramount. Both ladies are well known in Hollywood, Natacha having been the wife of Rudolph Valentino, and Bebe the wife of Lyon for many years. Both have children. Natacha's son is Jean Hersholt, Jr., and Bebe's daughter is Barbara Lyon. Jean is the son of Jean Hersholt, famous character actor, and Barbara is the daughter of Ben Lyon and Bebe Daniels. Both children have been signed for parts in the picture in which their mothers will appear. Natacha and Bebe are also old friends, having been associated in the same picture when they were both young girls. Natacha's husband, Herman Rosse, is the brother of Warner Oland, famous as Charlie Chan. Herman Rosse is also famous as a scenic artist. Robert Taylor will play the lead opposite Jeanette MacDonald in "The Girl of the Golden West." Taylor is now in Europe, but will return to Hollywood in time to start work on the picture. Jeanette MacDonald is now in Hollywood, having returned from a concert tour of Europe. Jeanette is to be starred in "Maytime," which will be her next picture after "The Girl of the Golden West." Jeanette's husband, Gene Raymond, is also under contract to Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer, and will be seen in a picture with Jeanette after "Maytime." Jeanette and Gene were married in June, 1937. Jeanette's first husband was Lieut. Robert Ellis, U.S.N., whom she married in 1931 and divorced in 1934. Gene's first wife was Ann Dvorak, whom he married in 1932 and divorced in 1935. Gene and Ann have a son, Gene Raymond, Jr., who is now about five years old.

It consists of thirty-two pages of text and illustration, with a cover bearing the Royal Coat-of-Arms, printed in full colours and gold.

According to a bulletin just received from St. Jame's Palace, London, the contents will include: Special photographs of their Majesties King George VI and Queen Elizabeth — Photographs of Her Majesty Queen Mary, Their Royal Highnesses the Princess Elizabeth, the Princess Margaret, and other members of the Royal Family — A Coronation Ode by John Masefield, Poet Laureate — the King's Majesty, the Significance of the Coronation to the Empire, by John Drinkwater — Description of the Coronation Proceedings—a Pictorial Map of the Route of the Procession — an Introduction to the Service, by His Grace, the Lord Archbishop of Canterbury — The Coronation Service in Westminster Abbey — an Explanation of the Coronation Ceremonial, with illustration, by Sir Gerald Wollaston, Garter Principal King of Arms — A Genealogical Table, showing the descent of the Crown.

With the aid of this Programme, those listening to the Coronation broadcast from London will be able to follow the historic ceremony word for word, and with complete understanding of what is taking place in the heart-centre of the Empire, at each and every moment.

Those wishing to secure a copy are strongly advised to order same through their bookseller or news agent without delay. The price is 50 cents, and delivery may be taken on April 22nd, when the Programme goes on sale. Orders so placed now will definitely be filled, but once the presses start no further orders can be accepted beyond the few that can be taken care of out of a very conservative overrun.

Many public and private institutions, societies, clubs and hospitals have already ordered large supplies and one West African colony will distribute copies in its public schools. Last reports from England are that more than half a million copies have already been sold.

By Gracious Permission of His Majesty, the Programme is being issued by King George's Jubilee Trust. All profits from its sale will be donated to bettering the lot of the under-privileged youth of Great Britain.

Boxes In Window For First Seeds

Gardener Prepares Small Flats For Earliest Sowing

Thousands of seeding plants are grown successfully each spring in the small boxes of soil placed in boxes in south or east windows. They are a reliable aid to good gardening if properly handled.

The preparation of the seed box is a simple task but one that needs care to be reasonably certain of bringing the seedlings to planting size.

First, is the question of drainage. The seed box, whether it is a cigar box, or a larger flat box, needs to have holes bored in the bottom about six inches apart in larger boxes and three inches apart in the cigar box. Over the bottom of the box spread broken flower pots, crockery or small pebbles, then coarser soil and last of all finely sifted soil.

For the finer seeds it is an excellent plan to cut burlap to fit the box and lay it over the coarse drainage and then place the soil upon it so that the box may be watered by setting it in a pan of water and there will be no danger of washing the tiny seeds or seedlings. Firm the soil and sow the seed thinly in rows. This is better than sowing broadcast as it will be appreciated when it comes to the transplanting.

This sowing is economy. Quantities of seed are wasted by too thick planting. The tiny plants crowd each other and none of them has a fair chance when they come up thick as fur. The necessitates early transplanting before the seedlings are strong enough to be handled.

Cover the seed boxes with a damp cloth or piece of paper until germination starts and place a pane of glass over the top. Remove the paper or cloth as soon as the first tiny sprouts break the soil. Wipe off the covering glass when water collects on it from evaporation. This will prevent moisture from dripping.

During the day prop up one edge of the covering glass for ventilation. And keep seed box soil moist but not wet or water-logged. Good drainage will take care of this.

Teeth And The Diet

Fighting Decay Is a Life Job, Pediatrician Indicates

Fighting tooth decay is a life's job, it appears from an address delivered recently by Dr. I Newton Kugelmass before the New York Academy of Medicine. And he measures life not just from the day of birth but long before that. If physicians listen to him — he is a prominent children's specialist or pediatrician — they will think of teeth from the whole period of prenatal development right down to our death. He is all for prevention of decay, and this because it takes three years for the milk teeth and six years for the secondary teeth to show decay, whereas nutritional deficiency take only six months to do their very worst.

Dr. Kugelmass begins by giving the right food to expectant mothers, he told the New York academicians. "The whole system of the child's body must be supervised medically from birth to adolescence to develop the resistance that protects against caries. Tooth decay is most active during the three springing-up periods of growth — the first year of life, between 6 and 7, and between 12 and 13.

About 8 per cent of all children will more or less inherit good or bad teeth or the tendency to have them. Apparently the ones with good teeth may take some chances for a time with the wrong food. But the ones with bad teeth have to put themselves for life in the dentist's hands, and then with no bright prospect of acquiring more than fillings and bridges.

In about 9 per cent teeth either decay or remain sound because the glands are functioning properly or improperly. So Dr. Kugelmass is for watching glands and correcting their activities if necessary.

In about 10 per cent there is some metabolic disturbance, meaning that food is not being utilized in the right way. Then it is the doctor's job to correct the conditions if he can.

In about 65 per cent the food is all wrong. The remedy is obvious.

In about 8 per cent mouth hygiene is not what it should be. Perhaps the teeth and gums are not exercised enough, meaning that the food is too poppy. Or perhaps the dentist should be consulted. At any rate, Dr. Kugelmass holds that solid foods should be introduced into the diet six months after birth just to make a baby chew. After a year no more strained foods.

The Real Tragedy Of Will Rogers

Viscount Castlerosse, in London Sunday Express writes:—You can't tell what will happen any more than that parson at Pasadena did when he wrote that fatal letter which unintentionally sent Will Rogers to his death.

You don't know about that? Well, I'll tell you, and recount it with sadness, for it is one of the tragedies of modern times.

Will Rogers, a man loved by all, prided himself that he never said anything, on the stage or off, that a child could not listen to, for Will was one of the straightest and best men who ever lived.

Now, Eugene O'Neill had written a play called "Ah! Wilderness," and Will was playing in it.

A scene is therein depicted of touching poignancy, but it deals with the subject of sex. An older man attempts to keep a young man on the straight path of virtue, from which, in a fit of temper, he had fallen.

The older man illustrates his arguments by examples from his own life.

The next day Will received a letter from a parson expostulating that he had taken his 14-year-old daughter to the theatre, but had felt obliged to remove her hurriedly from the building.

The parson protested with all the vehemence of unthinking prejudice.

Apparently it had not struck this divine that Will was only putting into practical words the very principles which the reverend gentleman gave utterance to from the pulpit of a Sunday.

Nevertheless, the fact that a clergyman should so express himself upset the simple, pure, decent-hearted Will Rogers beyond belief. He threw up the part then and there.

Arguments were tried, expostulations were attempted, but Will was not to be shaken.

It was enough for him that a clergyman had seen fit to remove his daughter from the theatre because of words which he, Will Rogers, had used.

At that moment there was no film ready for Will Rogers to play in, so this gallant cavalier decided to go with Wiley Post on his last fatal flight.

WAKE UP YOUR LIVER BILE—

And You'll Jump Out of Bed in the Morning Rarin' to go

The liver should pour out two pounds of liquid bile into your bowels daily. If this bile is not flowing freely, your food doesn't digest. It just decays in the bowels. Gas bloats up your stomach. You feel constipated. Harmful poisons go into the body, and you feel sour, sunk and the world looks punk.

A mere bowel movement doesn't always get at the cause. You need something that works on the liver as well. It takes those good, old Carter's Little Liver Pills to get these two pounds of bile flowing freely and make you feel "up and up". Effective and gentle, they make the bile flow freely. They do the work of calomel but have no calomel or other dangerous drug. Ask for Carter's Little Liver Pills by name! Stubbornly refuse anything else. 25¢.

Along Canada's Mining Highway

Activity everywhere — with the rapidly developing new Larder Lake Camp, located in Ontario, east of Kirkland Lake, and near the Quebec Boundary still holding the spotlight. In addition to the active mining operations — Omega, Martin Bird and Kerr Addison—many new incorporations are getting ready to commence mining. The Armistice and McGarry properties to the West and the Wesley and Pelangio to the east of Kerr Addison are probably the most important. Diamond drilling at the Kerr Addison continues to enlarge an already large tonnage medium grade ore deposit. The recent advance in the shares from pennies to dollars in a short space of time is apparently well justified.

Some fifteen miles to the east of Larder, the Fancoeur and Arntfield properties report important mine news. Francoeur has again enlarged the known extent of its new ore deposit and Arntfield has encountered important new ore in its underground operations. Further east reports indicate that Ontario Lake to the south of Noranda is at long last to be aggressively diamond drilled.

In the West area near the Ontario-Manitoba boundary, Sachigo River is preparing for an active season. It is understood that the shares, selling at $20, are to be split twenty for one.

Smelter Gold drilling in the Gods Lake area has officially reported a ten to twenty-five cent financing deal.

Pleasant Place

The Toronto Telegram writes: — The Guelph Reformatory was regarded as a model institution and as a lasting memorial to the late J. P. Downey and Hon. W. J. Hanna, whose humanitarian instincts were expressed in the construction and conduct of this reformative institution.

As a rule, no penal institution is regarded as an asset to a municipality, but Guelph citizens were proud of the Ontario Reformatory, located on the outskirts of that city. The buildings are scientifically constructed, are large, airy, well ventilated and sanitary. The grounds are not disfigured by forbidding stone walls. In fact, the landscape gardens carried out under the supervision of Mr. Neelands over a period of years have transformed acres of swampy, unsightly farm land into a beautiful park, through which streams of limpid water were diverted and small lakes created for ornamental purposes, which are so inviting that they are freely used by children of the community for bathing purposes during the hot weather.

The institution is almost a self-contained town. It produces its own meat, its own milk, bakes its own bread and weaves at least part of the clothing used by the inmates. There was great variety of employment, and unless conditions have deteriorated rapidly within the past year, the food is wholesome, nourishing and abundant in quantity.

The inmates were allowed a great deal of latitude. It is a matter of record that some of the prisoners remained on after their time had expired because they had no jobs to go to and were more comfortable there than they would have been anywhere else. It is significant that the guards were not even armed, and yet this institution is the scene of a serious riot.
