

Forest Conservation and Reforestation

Ed. Note.—We are indebted to Mrs. E. W. Gowan for the following article on Reforestation. Believing reforestation very important to the future of our country, we strongly urge our readers to digest the contents of this article thoughtfully.

Unlike the forest lands and industries of Old World countries, which have been managed on an ever producing sustained yield basis, and which have contributed to the maintenance of permanent rural communities for centuries, our attitude toward forest land ownership has been different. We have said, "This is Ours," to do with as we please, and as a result we have destroyed our forests, and have laid bare vast tracts. We have burned and we have slashed without any thought of enhancing reforestation. We have, in truth, committed a sacrilege against nature, which endowed us with that great heritage, "Virgin Forest Wealth."

Unfortunately, these wasted empires do not present the only result of forest land mis-use. Another, a more vital aspect, the human one. For, as the timber was denuded, saw mills and lumber camps were closed, and thousands of workers were thrown out of their jobs. In the meantime, the forests were being cut down, and the land was being degraded. The tragedy of the situation was that the forests were being cut down, and the land was being degraded. The tragedy of the situation was that the forests were being cut down, and the land was being degraded.

T. H. Peacock Recovering From Fall on Train

Condition Not as Serious as at First Feared

Mr. T. H. Peacock of this place, was rushed to the Hamilton General Hospital at 7.30 o'clock on Monday evening as the C.N.R. passenger train drew into the Hamilton Station. Mr. Peacock was unconscious and apparently suffering from a cerebral hemorrhage, believed to have been caused when he tripped and fell when he was disembarking from the train.

C.N.R. officials immediately summoned the Company's physician, Dr. W. S. T. Connell, who examined Mr. Peacock at the station, before having him removed to the Hamilton Hospital. Mr. Peacock was unconscious and apparently suffering from a cerebral hemorrhage, believed to have been caused when he tripped and fell when he was disembarking from the train.

Obituary

MRS. A. E. HAVILL

The death of Mrs. Margaret Havill wife of Albert E. Havill, occurred at her home in the Township of Rainham in her 70th year, on Sunday, March 21st.

The late Mrs. Havill was born in Gaitheir, Scotland, the daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Miller and came here with her parents in early childhood. The greater part of her life has been spent in Rainham Township.

COMMITTEES APPOINTED

Committees were named by President McBride at a meeting of the Board of Trade on Tuesday night to make arrangements for the program on May 24th. Plans at the present time indicate an outstanding program throughout the entire year.

Every effort will be made to secure the best in the way of entertainment. Sales of books on the big draw which will take place that day, are reported to be selling faster than hotcakes for the draw, and expressed his appreciation of the way in which everyone has responded in the effort to make the ticket sale a success.

TAKEN TO HOSPITAL

George Histed was taken to St. Joseph's Hospital in Hamilton this week, after his condition had become more serious. His many friends earnestly hope his recovery will be speedy and he will be able to return to his home here soon.
