"Faithful is the saying, and concerning these things I desire that thou affirm confidently, to the end that they who have believed God may be careful to maintain good works. These things are good and profitable unto men." Good works are simply doing those things that bring good and blessing to other people. There are good works on a strictly materialistic basis, such as supplying clothes, food, shelter, and relief in physical distress, ministering to the sick, and the lonely, and the impoverished; but there are good works on a higher plane, such as unfolding the word of God to those who do not know it, bringing comfort in while he was working an hour of tragedy, leading other out of darkness into light, ignorant men and women, praying with others and for others, faithfulness to those who need us, etc. That great pas sage in Tim. 3:16, 17 reveals the si preme spirituality of what we call good works, and no man can do good dng to do with the cereing saved, but good Lord Jesus. Notice especially the ought to be a part of word "careful." The word implies of everyone who is two things: "Bring your brains t evil of no man." There is thus constantly examined; bring greater sin among the draw than speaking evil one draw than speaking evil one draw this victous habit the shape the life. China, land of ancient prejudices, has one prejudice against actors which dies hard

Until recent years, the law and tradition classed actors with boatmen and slaves, strictly forbidding them to marry into higher grades of socie-ty. Their children were not allowed to sit for examinations giving entry into civil service posts. The law for-bade them to wear garments of silk spun by domesticated caterpillars; the silk had to be that from wild cocoons, of the sort used for making fishing-nets.

Actors were not allowed to wear furs. If they had even worn a slight-ly bedraggled rabbit-skin collar they would have been punished by a pub-lic whipping with bamboos. Only sheepskins or goatskins were allowed as a lining for the actor's winter coat.
