A ROVING REPORTER LOOKS AT LIFE

"THE OLD BACK" The "Little Town" is, like all other little towns, a work of art.

It has its quota of shrewd businessmen, professional men, lawyers, doctors and teachers and others of a like type. One of two of its citizens belong also to the "perpetually tired" group; more than one the Roving Reporter has

He has never known a quack. He has developed a technique all his own to other charitable drives, and he has developed a technique all his own to avoid giving. If he's approached up town for a donation, his reply to the request is that he has donated already given up town.

On rare occasions he will throw a "stag party." If you have been honored with an invitation, you can be assured of an excellent meal prepared entirely by himself.

He seems to be happy enough and he cares for it as conscientiously as any proud father does for his first born. No matter when it brings it in he polishes it to remove any dust that may have fallen on it during his "speedy" drive of thirty miles an hour.

Summarizing JARVIS - B.P.

There is one matter that we would like to present to the citizens of this town and that is, our need of a hockey team.

Rural teams have represented this town more often than any other type of hockeyists, but you can truthfully say that last year's juvenile team created more interest here than a dozen rural teams can ever stimulate.

As you will remember Hagersville has never been known to sponsor a juvenile hockey team, but always intermediate junior. This town has entered a junior and juvenile team in the O.H.A. this year simply because they plan to reap good hockey profits from their immature ivory of today.

On Friday, December 2nd, the First Troop held a very successful meeting.

The Scouts had a real busy evening with a variety of interesting and useful projects.

The entire Troop was divided into sections and each section worked on its own project.

At the meeting, the boys were given a lesson on the importance of being prepared.

The meeting was a great success and the boys were very happy to participate.

When preparing stuffing or fowl, roasts, etc., be sure to use a good quality of peanuts and give your regular recipe.
