POWER RESERVES

All well that ends well. Nevertheless Premier Hepburn and his Government may well be thanking their goddess of fortune that the 1938 ice jam in the Niagara River did not occurr in 1937. It has been readily admitted by the Hydro Commission that had it not been for the power delivered under the new contracts with the Quebec Power companies (which once were repudiated because they were not necessary?) the commission would not have been able to meet primary power demands.

Had such a situation actually occurred, it is difficult to realize the extent of the damage that would have been caused to industry. At any rate, the great sacrifice of public funds to the Quebec Power Barons might be considered insignificant in comparison.

True, the ice jam at Niagara almost creates a precedent in history, yet it serves to exemplify the great need of power reserves, and surely exonerates entirely the former Conservative regime who were castigated by the present government for entering into contracts that were then regarded as a wasteless drain on the public funds of the province of Ontario.

THE SACRIFICE

Canadians can scarcely be gratified in the knowledge that since 1922, 4200 school fires have occurred resulting in the sacrifice of lives of hundreds of children. 342 lives were lost in eight of the recent larger tragedies alone.

Records covering the past two hundred years prove conclusively that ninety per cent of the loss of life in institutional buildings has directly or indirectly resulted from flamable structural conditions. Of the 3000 Canadian Lives sacrificed to the flames in the past ten years, 2100 fatalities occurred in burning buildings. Not one life was lost in a fire retardant structure. The conclusion is that the only safe building is the relatively incombustible one. Fire escapes and emergency exits are, at least, expedients adopted to meet existences invited by inadequate construction. Yet more than fifty per cent of institutional buildings of the older type are veritable fire traps. Two million children attend schools in Canada under such conditions, which are allowed to exist, on the plea of economy.

Little more than a year ago, the situation in our own school was one inviting disaster. We can be happy and proud of the fact that the urgent need of correction was recognized and corrected to a great extent. Every individual in any way associated with Boards or organizations controlling public institutional buildings, should place a higher value on the lives of individuals, than the insignificant economies that may be effected from year to year.

TRUCKS ON THE BACK CONCESSIONS

Evidence submitted to the Chevrier Commission on truck haulage in Ontario brings to attention the profound changes in the structure of rural economy which the truck has affected during the past short score of years. The carrying of goods by motor vehicles has become an integral necessity to farming districts which used to be considered hopeless by isolated from most markets. Urban communities also in the well-known "back concession" territories have found in the truck the answer to both their export and import problems. Out of some 4,000 communities in Ontario, more than 2,000 are not served by railways and it is to these that the truck is a particular boon. In an age when transportation is the touchstone of success for any locality, the truck is performing a service of much greater importance for rural areas than most people realize.

In many back-country farming districts and in half the urban communities of the province there is no competition between the truck and the railway for the obvious reason that the railway is not a factor of transportation. There is no railway but there is a truck. The truck has transformed many of those places, bringing them at one great bound into the course of trade.

Part of the task of the Transportation Commission is to study the relationship between truck and railway haulage. This is in some parts of the province a chore of considerable magnitude. The railways are a prime necessity, but so are the trucks. We have too many railways but we have also too many trucks. Towns and cities owe much of their importance to railways, but to an increasing extent they spend on trucks. The two forms of transportation compete in some regards but they are in many more regards complementary, the trucks supplementing the freight and express train as an added service in the rapid transmission of goods. Where railways run, the Commission's task in adjusting the possibilities of co-ordination between train and truck is not easy, but in those wide "back-concession" areas where there are no rail ways, there is no problem except to ensure that the prosperity of the farmer and small townsman is not impaired by shackling legislation imposed upon the truck.

—Huntsville Forester

TRANSPORTATION

If ever a country were dependent on transportation, that country is Canada with its immense area and relatively small population; and it is equally true that Canada is dependent on not just one, but on a number of different types of transportation. Railways, lake and river steamers, airlines, motor truck and busses have all demonstrated that they perform not only a useful but necessary public service.

That there may be too much competition within one or more of the above divisions of the transportation industry and also too much competition between some of them is not denied. The Chevrier Commission is the latest body to be appointed to inquire into the ills of our befuddled transport industry and it probably won't be the last. Discriminatory competitive rates are alleged to be quoted by the railways, and the railways in turn claim that the original responsibility for rate cutting belongs to the truck operators. In many instances it is claimed or inferred by one or other of the factions that rates are uneconomically low or below cost of service

But regardless of the ills which may be attributable to excessive competition, the fact remains that any solution of the country's transportation problems must be based on satisfying public needs, and the public by its patronage has conclusively shown that all existing forms of transportation are needed. The chief problem therefore would seem to be one of co-ordination of these various forms. A clash between railways and trucks, for instance, some hauls can without doubt be done more economically by trucks, where as for others the railways have the field to themselves. In a good many intermediate distances the two systems should probably compete but not to the point of reducing rates to uneconomically low levels.

Reasonable, equitable taxation of the competing systems is requisite but one system should not be taxed merely because it has taken some business from another or is competing with another where formerly there was no competition. All systems are necessary if the public is to be provided with adequate transportation and the chief point to be kept in mind is that the public is the chief loser through any unfair, discriminating taxation.

FOREIGN CANDY WORTH $838,917 IS IMPORTED AND SOLD IN CANADA

Canada's Juliets have a very "sweet tooth" if the consumption of candy in Canada is any criterion and their Romeos apparently take pains to satisfy the craving for, in the twelve months ending October 1937, in imported confectionery alone, the substantial total of $838,917 was spent.

The children, whose passion for candy is stronger than their interest in housework, for example, are also generous buyers of the tooth-some morsels which come from abroad, and according to the National Produced in Canada Association, in a statement released today, the Romeos and the children could, with their parents, do their own country a service by showing more preference for candies which are Produced in Canada.

"Canadian men and women are employed in making candy, just the same as they are in producing other goods, and when we spend more than three-quarters of a million dollars on candy alone, in foreign countries, it means that there is a lower demand for the confectionery that is produced in the Dominion. Automatically with a lower demand, there is less call for the services of our own people. And it is the fathers and mothers who eventually are affected by the spending habits of their children or their sons who are very much concerned with future plans for marriage and the noble experiment in which two try to live as cheaply as one."

"There's something radically wrong with men who drink those dangerous alcoholic concoctions."

"Radically wrong is right. They get the quart before the hearst, so to speak."

BOMBERS BLAST HAGERSVILLE BEFORE RECORD CROWD

Local Squad Greatly Strengthened by New Recruits. Cole is Standout.

A much improved Juvenile team took the ice here Tuesday night, defeating the Hagersville "Villians" 22 to 4. Before a packed house of enthusiastic spectators, the Bombers bombed away at the enemy goalie to take their second win in three starts. "Slats" Cole and Jack Phibbs, two new members of the Juveniles, made their initial start in Blue Bomber sweaters and both showed promise of becoming great assets to the team.

Jarvis Take Early Lead

After five minutes of play Joe Johnson picked up a loose puck at centre, skated around the defence and fired it home. Brother Malcolm was next to tally. He took a pass from Gord Blight and scored while a Hagersville player was serving a penalty. Mitch next got the idea and went in with Peak, Mitch getting the goal. From then on, it was a field day with everyone on the team getting at least one counter. Joe Johnson and Malcolm Peacock each notched two that period, and Blight flunked one in from the corner.

At the start of the second period, Peak was struggling with the puck in front of the Hagersville net and a Villian player, trying to clear, shoved the disc into the net.

High Sticks and Elbows

During the second period, play became wide open. The boys laid on the "hickory" with gusto. In this frame, Hagersville notched three goals, Hoebel getting two and Donaldson one. Jarvis never taking a back seat, tallied twice that number in the same period.

Mitch, who was showing more speed than ever as the game progressed, started the scoring in the third. Hagersville scored their fourth and final goal when Hunter golfed one past "Buster" in goal. From this point the Blue Bombers did all the scoring. Nine pucks were fired past the Hagersville goaltender in the last period and this once more showed the scoring threats of the team are not confined to just a few players.

The game was well handled by Garnet Gill who gave out five penalties to each team.

Personal Responsibility

By Grenville Kleiser

ONE GREAT WEAKNESS in the average man is his assumption that someone else has the job of purging politics or establishing fair play between capital and labor, sees the vital need of reform or social readjustment, but shirks share of responsibility.

HOW MANY MEN do you know that complain about social injustice and political dishonesty who are doing anything to remedy these conditions? The majority are quick to criticize and condemn, but comparatively few are willing to work diligently to correct them.

MEN MUST LEARN that each and every one has a part to do in righting human wrongs and in bringing about the reforms and changes necessary to give to human society a sense of well-being and security.

SOME MEN are born shirkers. They sidestep duty, avoid responsibility, seek the path of least resistance, have no sense of moral obligation. They want to be exempt from service, taxation, self-sacrifice. The world owes them a living and they demand it as their inalienable right.

TO ACHIEVE something highly worthwhile, a man must be willing to pour out his vitality without stint, to put his best powers into the special task before him, to give his entire self to one clearly defined purpose.

AS AN APPRENTICE a man must concentrate upon his appointed work, and be deaf and blind to many other things that would simply dissipate his energies. In the world of keen competition the only chance of ultimate success lies in a definite, diligent and efficient labor.

IT IS PROFITABLE to study the lives of men of clear vision, high purpose, and the indefatigible energy. If enthusiasm is admirable in youth, how much more so is it when carried out into old age!

STUDY SHOULD NOT END AT COLLEGE. In the great school of life there is much of interest and value to be learned. And the man who studies while he works is the man who will be most in demand and ultimately promoted.

TO DO WELL THE TASK OF THE MOMENT should be the unwavering purpose of every man worthy of his calling. It is said that a distinguished English statesman, if he followed his own inclination, would rather raise pigs than talk to the House of Commons. But he faithfully and fearlessly discharges the duties of his high office as if it were the supreme purpose of his busy life.

ANY DAY A FISH DAY

The SNAPSHOT GUILD

It's Camp-Fire Picture Time

"Keep a Picture Story of Your Camp-fire Parties"

DURING these fine summer days just about everybody, it seems, wants to take advantage of every opportunity to get out to the country, the lake or seashore for camping, marshmallow roasts, corn roasts, clam bakes, beach parties and what have you.

Taking pictures at night around the camp fire is a lot of fun and the results pleasing and out of the ordinary. Since the introduction of the Photoflash lamp there has been a tremendous interest in camp-fire pictures for this lamp is so simple to operate. The Photoflash lamp is similar in appearance to a common electric bulb and can be screwed into a special holder resembling an ordinary hand flash-light tube. These holders are very inexpensive and can be purchased at almost any store selling photographic supplies. The flash is set off by pressing the flash button and it gives an intense light without any noise or smoke.

This is how you take a camp-fire picture. The people should be grouped as close to the fire as comfort wil permit. The arrangement of the group can be viewed in the finder of the camera by having someone hold a pocket flash-light or firebrand at each side of the scene. This will indicate just what and who are included in the picture.

And let me warn you—be sure you have everybody in full view in your finder. Otherwise you may find the decapitated body of a dear friend appearing in the finished print.

It is well not to have the fire too bright, nor yet allow it to die down to embers when the picture is made.

With the camera resting on a tripod or firm support, set it at stop f.8 or U.S. 4, open the shutter, and set off the flash bulb and then be sure to close the shutter immediately. When using the Photoflash bulb hold it to one side of the camera, and slightly behind it. The latter position prevents possibility of lens flare from the flash. Here's one simple precaution:—see that the camera is placed where possible smoke from the fire may not be blown towards the lens or between it and the subjects.

Remember too it is not necessary to own an expensive camera to take camp-fire pictures at night. You can take such pictures—and good ones—with a box camera by using the largest stop.

So if you are planning on an outdoor party at night over this weekend, or a camping trip, be sure to be prepared to take some fascinating Photoflash pictures.
