Just Looking It Over

BY E.M.

A great thinker of a by-gone age ventured the opinion that we find out what will do by finding out what will not do. Glancing backward over the recent yuletide feasts would make it appear that a lot of riotous cheer leaders gave the theory a tryout with disastrous but convincing results.

Which goes to show that human nature has not kept pace with the march of progress. "Knowledge comes but wisdom lingers."

On such a note as "The Hunter's Mare" lost a perfectly lovely tall because, Tan, after a season with Souther Johnny appearing at the witch dance at Jarvis.

It was added down the old lane and finished the night with the winter, disaster would have been aching the car in the garage. The fire of Bacchis die out of the page of the day after would be cheerful reading. The incident here rattled good and strange to say the halo of the.

It is not like mine case in the "Yes, but use ordinary sense."

Just Demonstrated

It is very seldom the fire alarm sounds in Jarvis, but when it does, it is generally appreciated the action that may occur. It is also the time when we look to our fire department for their services. It is their duty to put forth their efforts courageously on our behalf.

When the fire alarm sounded last night, the firemen were on duty. They had been absolutely useless in the past. They were not called to the scene of a fire wrecking truck. Fortunately, the alarm was not a serious one. The fire was extinguished in a few minutes. The firemen were praised for their quick response.

Get Wild Mustard

With Morning Dew

A weary harvest hand, aroused by the anxious farmer at four o'clock one morning, asked drowally what the trouble was and, being told the oats were ready to reap, inquired, "Are they wild oats?" "No, not ordinary oats," said the farmer. "Oh, well, if they're only tame oats" replied the weary one, "we'll wait and sleep up on them in daylight!"

Had it been wild mustard the farmer was after, remarks B. Leslie, who tells the story, there might have been some excuse for getting the hired man up at that ungodly hour, for it is wild mustard that still lingers on the vegetation that powdered cyanamid may be applied effectively to the seedbed of wild mustard growing among and competing with the grain.

Cyanamid, dusted on at the rate of 100 lb. per acre when the young grain plants are three or four inches high, has proved wonderfully effective in destroying wild mustard, vulnerable because of its fast-growing broad, hairy leaves to which the pulverized cyanamid adheres, though not to the narrow, smooth, upright shoots of the grain crop. The latter may be slightly discoloured but soon recover and grow with renewed vigor, since cyanamid is also a fertilizer containing 23 per cent. of nitrogen.

On fields which are to be treated with cyanamid as a weed-killer, it is a wise precaution to apply, at once, one 200 or 250 lb. of 0-10-0 fertilizer per acre, thus furnishing the necessary phosphate and potash to secure plumper, earlier maturing grain and stiffer straw. This is recommended especially for fields where grain crops show a tendency to lodge.

A Review of National Affairs

Ottawa, January 4. The coming year may well go down into history as one of the eventful periods. In the opinion of many Canadian observers, Confederation is on trial. There are forces making for unity, recovery and adjustment to modern times. Other forces appear to be of a disintegrating nature. In the tug between these, a new Canada may well be born. The original Confederation, so historians say, was the product of a troubled period of internal dissension, threat of external aggression, hunger for expanding markets, fear of loss of existing markets. Out of the unpromising events of the 1860's came the beginnings of the modern Canada; it is quite possible that out of the unpromising days may emerge a Dominion more noted than now for its equity, its tolerance, its cooperation and its justice.

Not a bad New Year's resolution for Canadians, that in the coming year we shall bend our efforts to remove the causes of inequity, distrust and dissension.

An Opportunity

The Royal Commission on Dominion-Provincial Relations is providing an opportunity for the various interests and representative groups across Canada to make suggestions looking toward a happier state of affairs. The provinces are already laid their case before the commission. Other provinces are busily engaged in preparing briefs, and a great deal of work is being done by private associations and organizations in the same way. Before the Commission reaches its hearings, it is hoped that there will be a more representative attendance. Come and bring with you any items of interest regarding the community in which you live, as every nook and corner of Haldimand has a story attached to it.

The December meeting with the President elect in the chair, was a very interesting one. We planned for this year's work in which a suggestion came from a branch of the Provincial Organization, that we make a list of the monuments, plaques or cairns or other memorials of historic events or people or places in the county.

We wish to complete a complete list of those of our county who offered their services to King and Country and a roll of honour of those who gave all "faithful unto death." Then too, a suggestion to place a coat of arms in the Court House was also made. On motion duly seconded and unanimously carried, our appreciation of the untiring services rendered by the retiring President, was voiced and a life membership tendered to Mr. Duff in a fitting reply, referred to the pleasure the work had afforded him and assured us of his continued interest and cooperation.

Mr. Russell Harper delighted us with a sketch of the life of one of Ontario's great artists, Tommie Thomson and illustrated his talk by means of several copies of the artist's work, very capably done by Mr. Harper.

We expect to have at our next meeting, Mr. Johnson, of Hagerville and are looking forward to another interesting meeting. We are sure that if you attend it, the habit of regular attendance will be quite easy to acquire.

Tramp: Could you give a poor fellow a bite?
Lady: I don't bite, but I'll call my dog.

Haldimand Historical Society

Since this Society deals with yesterday, your acre is trying an experiment and hopes by sending a report of our meetings a little later to include more emphatic announcement of the next gathering, which will be held the second Monday of this month, January 10th, in the Museum of the Court House, Cayuga.

We do this in the hope that our members will thus have a larger and more representative attendance. Come and bring with you any items of interest regarding the community in which you live, as every nook and corner of Haldimand has a story attached to it.

Little Damage Results In Chimney Fire

A chimney fire at the home of Mr. Harold Furtell about seven o'clock last evening, was extinguished before serious damage was done. The Fire Department was called in the event the flames gained headway. However, through the efforts of Mr. Furtell, they were confined to the chimney. After the fireman arrived a ladder was put up to the roof and the remaining sparks extinguished.
