own tracks. Then again, they might have been schemin' deeper. Whatever the reason was, it'll pay us to find out as much as we can. The Brockwells and their gang are plotting to gain possession of Circle L ranch and the property of Mona Hall, a neighbor and life-long friend of Slim Loyale. Ten minutes later, Slim Loyale and Dakota Blue rode north out of Pinnacle. A survey of the street showed that Sarg and Leo Brockwell had evidently pulled out ahead of them. Jigger Starbuck stood in the doorway of his office, his face expressionless, his eyes cold. For several miles Slim and Da-ber that." An hour later the two riders drew rein tofore the Circle L ranch house. At sight of it, Slim's throat thickened. Home! And yet, it was not the home that it had been. For it was empty now-devoid of that grizzled, kindly, booming-voiced presence that had been Bart Loyle. Slim's father. There was a group of punchers at the corrals, and as Slim dismounted, one by one they came forward to shake Slim's hand. Their voiced greetings were short, terse, but

The Circle L employed five men besides Dakota Blue, the foreman. There were Roy O'Brien, short, barrel-bodied, red-headed; a fighting, square-shooting, explosive little Irishman, Steve Owens and Charley Quin who were inseparable pals, fun-loving, rollicking boys both game to the core and very faithful to their hire. Stoney Sheard was a middle-aged puncher, silent, still-featured, gruff and unsmiling, who had probably been closer to old Bart Loyale than any of the other punchers. No matter on how small a scale bulbs are naturalized, they must be planted in an irregular fashion. An old Dutch bulb planter advocates a simple system: "Take a handful of bulbs and drop them on the ground about where you wish to plant them. Let them roll, and then plant each one just where it lies."

Some of these spring flowering bulbs may be left in the ground and will multiply, thus building the initial purchase into an increasing investment of beauty and enjoyment.

Daffodils and Crocuses

There are, of course, the daffodils that should be planted to get the best results before October is well under way. Nothing brings out their beauty like deep green grass, but the short-cupped varieties are best kept separate from the "trumpets" if the former are to show to full advantage. Then there is the more colorful picture provided by the crocuses — the gayest messengers of spring. They too can be left undisturbed for arday, October 15.
