showing that they are a witless lot. This comes hard from one who has written a whole book in defence of the tribe. Of course, you and I are the inevitable exceptions—the saving salt, so to specific the saving salt.

"Why write I thus? The newspapers of the last few days furnish the answer. Certain incidents have been published that make us goggle eyed. One parson leaves his pulpit to another and goes fishing on the Lord's Day. He won't be offended if his congregation leave their pews on a like pursuit!

"Charles Spurgeon spoke about illustrations as windows to a "Charles Spurgeon spoke about illustrations as windows to a sermon. A modern parson goes two better. He was preaching a sermon on the Word of God as the sword of the Spirit, and from behind his pulpit drew a sword, which he had concealed for the dramatic moment to demonstrate its power to "cut asunder." And by all the blood spilt in China that parson, believe it or not, tripped and stuck the sword in—his leg. Oddly enough when I
