POP GOES OUR EGO: City folks and townspeople have been looking down their noses too long at the farmers of Canada. Snob-bishly, they have been considering themselves a little better, a little tiller of the soil.

Of course the farmers have been thumbing their noses back at the urbanites, but to little avail. Until now when the bureau of research at McGill University makes average farmer is superior in both city-dweller. 'His brielligence 1 much greater"

FRANCE'S DILEMMA: To help or not to help Loyalist Spain is the dilemma that has been facing the years-more acutely, the past two in the Mediterranean has become re clearly defined.

It looks as if France will go under in either case. A catastrophic picture. Should France do the honorable thing, now, by plunging in ter government in Spain, there is almost sure to be war. It would be the chance Italy and Germany have been waiting for, so long. But should France do the honorable thing, her former allies on the coninent might come to her assistance

-Russia, Poland, Rumania, etc. If, however, France continues to ignore the plight of the Barcelona government, she will see an insurg-ent victory in Spain quickly followed by Italian and German occupation. Surrounded by Fascist states, then, on three sides, she will be trapped, her lifelines to Africa (where millions of army reserves are stationed) cut off.

Even the most pro-Franco men in the French Government are beginning to realize the gravity of the situation. But which way to turn? weeks, will decide the fate of

THE WEEK'S QUESTION: How is Germany planning to make mon-ey out of its persecution of the Jews? Answer: Germany would marge into one central fund the proceeds of all German Jewish capital and property (providing the Reich with plenty of ready cash). When the amount of this is established, an international loan should be raised in the United States, Great Britain, Holland and other countries sympathizing with the plight of the German Jews. Jews eaving Germany would be granted certificates enabling them to draw on the international loan for the equivalent of part of their capital. But-Germany's repayment of the nterest and principal of the loan (ah!) would be dependent upon an increase in Germany's exports. Part of the money received from the increase in exports would be devoted to service of the loan. Part, and perhaps, the greater part, would be used in purchasing Germany's needed rearmament raw materials.

The parade of tanks shown BELOW wending its way through the colorful city with turbanned and burnoused desert dwellers mingling with the European sightseers was among the reasons that Daladier thinks he's right.

Mr. Wilson referred with satisfaction to the fact that conditions in Canada had been relatively stable despite the setback in the United States. Recovery from the ecession which was general dur ing the closing months of 1937 and the first half of 1938, had made notable progress and business in Canada had now resumed its up-

MINING INDUSTRY

Since the inception of the depres-sion in 1930, mining had consistentsion in 1939, mining nat consistently furnished the backlog and the most encouraging factor in Canadian industrial life. Volume of production in many instances exceeded in 1938 the high figures of 1937. The output of gold had again reached a new record of approximately 4.680,000 fine ounces, valued at $164,560,000, an increase of 14% over 1937. The spectacular progress achieved in petroleum operations in the Turney Valley of Alberta was also noteworthy, stated Mr. Wilson. By the end of November, 60 crude oil wells were in produc-tion and drilling was under way at 20 others, with output during 1938 175% greater than in 1937.

Unemployment and relief were still serious, although continued improvement was reported. Tourist trade returns had been most encouraging, expenditures by tourists in Canada totalling ap-proximately $275,000,000 during 1938.

NEW- TRADE AGREEMENTS

Mr. Wilson commended highly Mr. Wilson commended highly the new trade agreements between Canada and the United States and between the United States and Creat Britain. "These," he said, "mark the greatest departure from the policies of trade restriction and national self-sufficiency since the war and cannot fall to further the common outlook and cordiality existing between the British and American peoples. It is striking that the agreements, covering an enormous volume of trade and embodying hundreds of reductions of duties ing hundreds of reductions of duties and lessened restrictions, include not " lingle increase. At the present time no detailed analysis of the effect of the agreements on specific industries is feasible but there can be no doubt that they will bring about an important expansion in trade." ing hundreds of reductions of duties

Referring to the subject of "interest rates," Mr. Wilson remark-ed, "I believe it often true that if the relationship exists long enough, the debtor comes to hate his creditor. By the same token, I suppose he begins to question the morality principle of private property you must believe in the legitimacy of interest. If it is proper for a person as a result of thrift to acquire, say a small property, there are few, if any, who would suggest that this property about the same property about the same private in the property about the same property. property should be available for use by others without some com-pensation. Therefore, if compensa-tion for the use of property be legitimate, why should compensation for its equivalent, the cost ex-pressed in terms of money, be less so?"

INTEREST RATES

"You frequently hear it asserted that the burden of interest has become intolerable and that relief can only be brought about by drastic measures. A forced conversion of public debt is sometimes urged, accompanied by reference to the action of Australia in 1931." Commenting on this point of view, Mr. Wilson said that the average rate on the outstanding Australian debt had been cut by 25% since that to cut off her supplies and Can-ads, as a main source of supply, would be a logical point of attack, declared Major Todd, who said he was speaking a private individ-ual and not as a military representative.

Nowadays war was no: declared and there was nothing to prevent an enemy nation from sending a number of ships or a "goodwill" visit to Canadian water, so that they would be "within our own borders" when that nation decided to strike.

An airplane carrier has fifty planes and "these planes could attack the centres of Canadian in-dustry in three hours and would not give us time to get assistance from the United States or England," he said. The most that could be expected of anti-aircraft defense was that bombers could be brought down after they had done their work done their work.
