OUR OBLIGATION TO BRITISH BACON CONSUMERS

"This fall, for the quarter year - October, November and December - we Canadians are asking the Government of Great Britain to make a place in the British bacon market for 52,000,000 lb. of our bacon. This compares with 37,500,000 lb. shipped in May, June and July.

"To do this Britain must shut out of that market a share of the bacon now being supplied by Denmark, Holland, Sweden and other countries.

The above named countries, Denmark particularly, supply the London area markets (which pay the best prices) with bacon of which 80 percent or more is No. 1 selection. This means that Britishire side is the cream of the selection and weights within the range 55 to 65 lb. It is made from hogs which are highly bred, properly fed and which yield carcasses weighing from 143 to 168 lb. warm weight. ("Selection" designates the fatness of the bacon. No. 1 selection is known as leanest; No. 2 - lean (fairly fat) and No. 3 - prime (quite fat).

Possibly 85 to 40 percent of Ontario hogs come within the desired weights of No. 1, or leanest selection. Out of this number we are shipping about 30 to 35 percent of our total shipments of No. 1 selection, sizeable bacon.

Even if we concentrate much of our No. 1 selection, sizeable bacon on the London area markets, what position are we in to give to the consumers of England (who have been getting from the European countries a very high percentage of No. 1 selection, sizeable bacon) what they want? We could at best only supply them with perhaps 50 percent of their requirements. Then we go to our No. 1 sizeable customers and say we want them to take Canadian bacon instead of Danish, Dutch, or Swedish how can we expect them to be enthusiastic when we have to supply them in a large part with No. 2 selection or with outweight bacon, or perhaps with No. 3 selection. If we do not do our part by producing and marketing hogs of proper quality and weights we are not in as favorable a position as we should be to ask the British Government to replace with Canadian the kinds of bacon that consumers demand.

PROPOSE TO SUSPEND MUNICIPAL ELECTIONS

In a conference last week with Honourable Eric Cross, Minister of Municipal Affairs and Public Welfare a delegation of publishers of Ontario weekly newspapers discussed at length provisions of the proposed bill to suspend municipal elections in Ontario after 1940.

The delegation consisted of Mr. C. V. Charters, Brampton, Managing Director of C.W.N.A. Mayor Harmon Price, Huntsville, Andrew Hebb, New market, and David McIntyre, Dundalk.

During the discussion the publishers laid before the Minister their views on the proposed legislation, particularly as it affects the smaller municipalities throughout the Province and the weekly press. They were given an attentive hearing and informed in detail of the provisions of the prospective bill.

Emphasizing that the legislation must be considered strictly on its merits as a war-time measure, Mr. Cross revealed that a thorough canvass of newspaper opinion indicated that the proposal will be favourably accepted by the large majority of citizens of Ontario.

"I have studied comments on the measure in the weekly press, at great length," he asserted, "and was impressed by the fair and able way in which the suggestion was treated. Such criticism as was voiced was well reasoned and though it we have been able to gauge with a good degree of accuracy all the merits and demerits of the proposal."

Explaining in detail the provisions of the legislation in its draft form, Mr. Cross pointed out that the bill provides for a definite term of two years for all municipal council and local boards. It is the intention of the Government to make this uniform throughout the Province. He decided the announced intention of some municipalities to hold plebiscites on the matter as being a waste of money and serving no useful purpose. In the event that the Organization of Resources Committee deem it to be in the national interest, the two-year term may be extended by proclamation of the Lieutenant Governor before November 1st in any year, for a further period of one year each.

In other words, councils elected within the next few months, will serve two-year terms and if it deemed advisable to dispense with elections during the War, a further one-year extension may be made.

In reply to a question, Mr. Cross observed that the voters' lists in effect for the 1940 voting will remain valid until such time as new elections take place.

The case for the smaller country weekly which must depend largely upon local printing revenues, for its survival, was advanced by Mr. Hebb who felt that the proposed measure will work a hardship upon this class of publication. He pointed out that the smaller newspapers give leadership in all worthwhile public undertakings, often at a financial sacrifice, and urged that this aspect, involving loss of needed revenue, be seriously considered. Mr. Cross in reply, stressed the necessity of all persons and businesses submerging their private or selfish interests for the national welfare. He appreciated, he said, the important part played by the smaller newspapers in guiding and informing public opinion but reiterated that there must be no discrimination or inequality of sacrifice during the forthcoming period of national emergency.

"I am convinced," he concluded, "that the proposed draft will meet with the wholehearted approval of the citizens of Ontario generally."

CANADA AND HER NINE LIVES

(The Printed Word)

There would be conflicts of some kinds between the whole of Canada and the component parts of Canada even if there were no provinces with legislatures that annually required things to legislate about. These conflicts would arise from causes natural to the economic and other differences inherent in the peculiar geographical and racial make-up of the country. Even if the Dominion were constituted like England, with a more or less single, dominant body of representatives, the people who live in what are now the political entities called provinces would still have their own separate problems.

But there are other problems that trouble people in various parts of Canada, yet are not so sharply developed into political conflicts because they have no definite political expression. Northern Ontario has interests which do not altogether coincide with those of Southern Ontario. Those living in the towns and rural areas of Manitoba outside of Winnipeg feel that their welfare and that of their metropolis are not always one and the same thing. Similarly the New Brunswickers outside of Saint John believe there is often a clash of interests between them and that city. All over Canada can be found examples of differences which could be made into robust battles if sufficient political expression were given to them.

But there is no legislature of Northern Ontario and no legislature of Southern Ontario. Therefore there is no elected body whose sole occupation is to hunt for interests unique in ore half of the province and to exalt those interests, fighting for them against everything else in Ontario and Canada.

The provinces have these legislative bodies. The legislators make careers for themselves by screaming for provincial rights. Everyone must by now have heard of provincial rights. But who save the citizens of the territory North of Orillia has heard very much about Northern Ontario Rights ?

Let us then be logical and divide Canada into a hundred provinces, so that every section may have its own cause justly advanced. If two hundred provinces should prove necessary to do the job, let us not skimp; every area must be sure of its defence. Already our bickerings have made good progress towards abandoning the idea of Canada. Let us hasten this process so that we may rest from the agony of trying to be a people. History may latter say that we did not have the character to be a people. History may say that we blew up from too much controversy, like the City States of Greece. But let us nevertheless divide into a multitude of provinces, so that every concession line will have a duly elected provincial legislature to defend it — if there should be anything left to defend.

Full Plans for Empire Air Training

Ottawa, November 15th — The whole empire cooperative air training plan has been worked out, and in place in Canada, in accordance with the arrival of the Australian and New Zealand air delegates will be discussed in a conference of all countries participating. "We have been here only two weeks and have done a big job in that time" was the statement of Lord Riverdale, head of the British air mission. It is felt here that it will be a matter of profound gratification to the Canadian people to realize that consultations between the members of the British mission and the Canadian authorities have made such rapid progress with the important project which is the chief reason for the visit of Mr. Mackenzie King, in his recent broadcast, said "may mean that the final victory will be shaped on Canadian soil." Hon. P. Y. Fairbairn, minister of civil aviation holds the position of coordinator and group captain H. W. L. Saunders, the New Zealand delegation which will take part in the conference. Canada is represented by the Prime minister, Mr. King, the finance minister, Mr. Ralston, the minister of national defence Mr. Rogers and Mr. Howe, minister of transport. It will be especially seen why the presence of each of these members of the Canadian cabinet is important to the successful success of the conference. Finance plays a vital role in such an immense program; so Mr. Ralston must be there. The Trans-Canada Air Lines are administered by the department of transport under Mr. Howe. And the minister's experience in the establishment of Canada's peace time air lines will be invaluable The joint conference will doubtless rapidly settle points still to be decided and the plan launched as speedily as possible.

It has been said that ultimately there will be about fifty schools located at most advantageous points throughout the country, and that at least 25,000 airmen may annually be trained. It will however start on a more moderate scale, and expand in choosing locations for the air training, the character of the ground extent of snowfall, etc. will be considered, and full advantage will be taken of the facilities of the Trans-Canada Air Lines. There will be a vast amount of work to be done in construction of airdromes, hostels accommodation and in acquiring planes and other equipment. One of the matters to be decided in conference will be the apportionment of cost among the countries taking part. Airmen in Australia and New Zealand will receive preliminary training in their own countries; they will then come to Canada for final instruction. Airmen will also come from Britain to go through final stages of training. Now that the ban embargo in the United States has been removed, planes may be brought across the border and some may be used for training; oth er instructional aircraft may be brought from England. The staff of instructors is likely to be composed of experts from Britain as well as Canada.

In locating the Commonwealth air training centre in Canada, advantage has been taken of the country's relative immunity from attack, and of the relative ease with which aircraft can be transported from Canada to Britain. Aircraft manufacture will develop in Canada with the growth of the air training project.

Political Controversy

The leader of the National Conservative party, Dr. Manion, has issued a statement in which he alleges that political patronage has been shown in the conduct of Canada's war work The prime minister has replied asking for "specific details of political patronage in government appointments or in the awarding of contracts." He promised an immediate investigation. Dr Manion stated his party had not been called in for consultation and advice since the close of last session. He said in relation to this: "The course followed by the government in keeping full control of our war program is probably best for Canada, as under our political system, an alert and constructively critical opposition is second only in importance to the government itself." In his reply Mr. King said the government welcomes constructive criticism. "Had matters arisen" he said "which I felt required consultation with the leader of the opposition I would immediately have requested a conference."

Conference of Ministers in London

The opening days of November have seen the beginning of the historic conferences of Commonwealth statesmen in London. The meetings are informal and there is no suggestion of an Imperial cabinet. But if informal, these talks are none the less of vital importance to the cooperative effort in the prosecution of the war. It is not alone the question of expeditionary forces but of mobilising the resources of foodstuffs munitions and equipment. With Mr. Crerar, Minister of Mines and Resources, are Mr. McIvor of the Canadian wheat board, Mr. Shaw of the department of agriculture and Mr. Wilgress, of the department of trade and commerce. These experienced specialists will endeavor to secure and maintain a steady and expanding flow of Canadian products to the British market Britain has been forced to adopt trade regulations in her time of stress. It will be the task of Canada's representatives to correlate our export trade with these regulations and see that Canada plays its normal and obvious part in the supply of wartime needs.

In Ottawa, the war supply board has formally taken over from the defence purchasing board. The war supply board acts as agent for the British mission now purchasing for Great Britain in Canada. Steps are now being taken to provide extensive credits for an expansion of war equipment buying by Britain in this country. Recently arrangements were made for the repatriation of nearly 100 million dollars worth of Canadian securities held in Britain, and the funds will be used for the British purchases.

One young physician, has been strutting around town with chest protruding since Saturday, when Morgan Mustagas won their final game to clinch the trophy. This club has not won the honours since 1931 when Joe Brent piloted their team to victory. A few years later a young fellow named Thomas T. Tweedie played under the same coach at Westerns. Congratulations, Tom ! You finally talked them into it.

The Ontario Juvenile Hockey Association has finally fallen into the footsteps of the Junior O.H.A. by dividing its members into three groups, thus giving the smaller centres more opportunity in the play-offs. Cities of more than 10,000 population will be catered in the "A" groups; teams from centres with a population of between 1,500 and 10,000 will be classed as "B" teams and teams from points with a population less than 1,500 will be classed as "C" clubs.

This is the best move the league has made since its inauguration, and smaller centres will certainly appreciate the idea. Two years ago Jarvis won their group but were tossed to and fro from a much larger team to another and were easily defeated. Last season Hagersville met with the same fate. After winning their local group they were pitted against Port Colborne, a city, and you can imagine how slim were the chances for the Villans to win when city clubs have fifty times as much material from which to choose a team. Juvenile baseball is in the same rut There is still no division for the city town and village clubs. In 1934 Jarvis won their Juvenile group only to be met by Hamilton and the smaller club was thoroughly trounced. The very same thing happened the following season. The locals were successful but they again met Hamilton (McClarens). This time, however, only because they had a very powerful club, the Jarvis boys were successful. But their next foe was a strong team from Niagara Falls, who eliminated Jarvis in two straight. That club, by the way, will give any Intermediate team quite a game. And yet there is still no class distinction in Juvenile Baseball, and until baseball follows lead taken by the Juvenile Hockey Association, Juvenile Ball will not be a popular class.

"THE CLIQUE IS RUNNING THINGS"

(Farmer's Advocate)

How often do we hear the plaint: The clique is running things—
They shape the club to suit themselves.
They lord it worse than Kinga.
But I'd like to ask the question,
Why do the ones that make the kick
Don't buckle in and go to work,
And join the busy clique ?
No club or group could keep alive
If everyone would shirk:
There needs to be a faithful few
That get right down and work.
It's always those that do the least
That register the kick.
We owe a rising vote of thanks
To the members of the clique.

A Weekly Review Of National Affairs

(By "Spectator")

Ottawa, November 14th — During the past few days word given out at Ottawa indicates that the British will shortly place heavy contracts for war supplies with Canadian firms in this country. Just appointed head of the new British war supply board, which will be the fountain head of all British buying in North America, has made it clear that even with purchases being made in the United States after the removal of the arms embargo, buying in Canada will not be curtailed. The initial orders placed in Canada will be for aircraft munitions of various kinds, submarine chasers and bursts for anti-aircraft guns. This was the general plan recently outlined by Col. Greenly to newspapermen. At the same time it has been announced that experts accompanying Mr. Crerar to the conference of empire statesmen which has been going on in London, will remain in Britain for the duration of the war. This will mean that the organization of the supply of foodstuffs from Canada to Britain during the war will be in capable hands and under careful supervision. Thus the economic war effort of this country is rapidly gaining headway.

In relation to the nature of the war material which will shortly be given to Canadian companies, it has been explained that Canadian companies will manufacture the fuselages of aircraft, the hulls of boats and all equipment minus the engines.

The manufacture of engines is a technical, highly specialized business, requiring a long training. The engines will be put in the planes when they arrive in Britain from Canada. The planes would of course be tested fully on this side before shipment. In addition to aircraft factories, shipyards in Canada are likely to be very busy during the war. These shipbuilding yards will be expected to help replace tonnage lost through submarine action. In addition they will be called upon to build small, swift vessels of the whale catching type to take part in the campaign against submarines. As despatches from abroad have explained, British ports are literally crowded out by small greyhounds of the sea in large numbers. Canada will play its part in manufacturing these extremely important craft for the British navy as well as for our own coastal defence. In all, Canada has about 40 shipyards.

Another outstanding Canadian industrialist, Mr. Arthur B. Purvis, has been appointed to take an important post in war supply buying on this side of the water. In coordinating their purchasing organization, the British have acquired the services of Mr. Purvis to direct their buying in the United States. In Canada, British purchasing is carried out through the Canadian war supply board under the chairmanship of Mr. Campbell-head of the Ford Motors One of the results of the coordination of his buying will be the elimination of the paralyzing and uneconomic competition which hampered and tournament purchasing during the last war. Every effort will be made to prevent overlapping in purchases in Canada and the United States and to prevent any competition of British, Canadian or French purchasing boards.

Empire Air Training Scheme

Here at Ottawa important discussions are being carried on by Canadian authorities with the Air Mission from Great Britain, Australia and New Zealand. They are laying the foundation for the vast cooperative air training scheme which will see a large number of schools or airmen established throughout the country. It is expected that the plan will very shortly be in operation at first on a moderate scale, later expanding.

Wartime Prices Board Very Busy

A very active body in the capital these days is the Wartime Prices and Trade Board. Through the wholehearted cooperation they have received from businessmen and industry generally, they have been able to carry out their object of preventing hoarding, profiteering and undue price increases without taking any drastic action. Conservation measures have been found necessary in the case of wool needed for the manufacture of uniforms, and a licensing system has been put into effect for coal and coke. But except for the temporary flurry in sugar when the war started now definitely and permanently laid at rest through the acquisition by the British of control of sugar supplies in the Empire, there has been nothing very exciting about the work of the board. It has mainly been of a preventative nature, and no price fixing regulations have been found necessary.

Next Parliamentary Session

When Parliament meets in its next session, probably early in January, debate will doubtless be centered by the accusations of the Conservative leader on patronage alleged-ly shown in war contracts. A royal prime minister has asked for definite cases of patronage, and has promised an immediate investigation Observers are wondering whether the St. Lawrence waterway will feature the parliamentary discussions. It is believed that if negotiations on the project are resumed with the United States, the question of the advisability of taking on a new, prime, project involving such a heavy expenditure, will be advanced. If more electrical power is needed a point raised will be whether national water power resources should be developed before the international project is attempted. The department of natural resources is now making a detailed survey of Canadian water power still undeveloped. There is in the country, according to previous surveys, about 44 million horse power of potential energy of which between 8 and 9 million has been developed, much of the undeveloped power is in territory not readily accessible

UNITED FARMERS TO CELEBRATE 25 YEARS OF FARM MOVEMENT

Twenty-five years ago last March farmers from all over Ontario journeyed to Toronto to a big meeting in the Labor Temple where they organized the United Farmers of Ontario and the United Farmers Co-operative Company. At their convention on Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday of next week in the King Edward Hotel, Toronto, the United Farmers will celebrate their Silver Jubilee with a number of special anniversary features.

One of the most outstanding of these, no doubt, will be a monologue giving the highlights of the farm movement from its inception up to the present time with pictures thrown on a screen to illustrate the story as it unfolds. All who have been prominent in the movement for years back are being invited to attend and they will be introduced to the convention. Also there will be an anniversary banquet with its big Silver Jubilee cake.

Tuesday, the opening day, being an open farm conference, will be devoted entirely to the position of agriculture. Much interest is being shown in the panel discussion which will be conducted following the addresses.

Films of the Nova Scotia co-operative movement, film slides, the amateur contest, a tour for the young people through the Parliament Buildings and the Royal Ontario Museum and the dance with Romanelli's orchestra are some of the other special features.

Maybe you have noticed, but our old friend of Hockey Fame, Percy LeSueur, has moved his sportscast at CKOC to 11.15 at night. This will give Perc a enance to talk about the hockey this winter, at a time when the scores will be hot off the griddle.

Don't forget to listen in on Stranger than Fiction — each morning at nine from 1120 on your dial. It is five minutes with the world's great

DIALING WITH DAVE...

Well, we have a reputation for being nosy, but there was a little matter that did puzzle us this week although we finally found out what it was all about. Every morning at 10.15 we noticed the gals, young and old alike, were all busy going through what looked to us to be setting up exercises. Then we found out it was all started by the Patty Jean Health Club — a new feature coming from CKOC, 1120 on the dial each day at 10.15.

It seems that Patty Jean is
