Those who pity the poor prospector, who seldom gets a break, will be glad to know that Horne and Miller received a discoverer's two-fifths of the price of the property $280,000 in cash plus 125,000 shares of Noranda stock, currently quoted between $80 and $85, a share say $10,000,000 in all. Nor did the $25 investors at New Liskeard have reason to regret their gamble. Ed. Horne drew another prize from the deal. His name had its brief heave of glory in the formation of the

As for the future, he observes no indications that business will slacken and so decrease his responsibilities. He forsees "a gradual readusyment of business, an increase in trade between nations and a passing of recent abnormal conditions." In the north, mining is "still far from the peak it will someday reach. The future of the north will be greater than its present."

For his own future, he hopes for a retirement at not too distant a date, and a very long rest. He wants to enjoy his cottage at Musko ka and settle down to the serious business of running his Valley Crest Farm, where he raises pure-bred Guernsey cattle and Clyde horses—and for a little while forgets mining in the complete of the complete of

DEANERY CHAPTER
The Clergy of the Deanery Chapters of Haldimand also met at York on October 18th. There was a joint service in the morning for the W.A. twe. members and also the Clergy of the Chapter. A special conference was held for the Clergy in the afternoon.
