

Before the Printer Came There Were no Ballots

(The Newmarket Era)

In his final letter (prominently published in The Era last week) of advice to the people of Newmarket to his capacity as Mayor, Dr. S. J. Boyd said: "I still think we could get along with an election every second year while we have a war on our hands. Of course the papers would lose the printing. That would be a contribution they could make towards winning the war."

Yes, it is true that the printer benefits from the annual election. His prints voters' lists, he prints ballots. It is true that the practices of democracy are in the interests of the printer. Not only does he print voters' lists and ballots, but he prints the minutes of the council and the newspaper. It is his business to put ideas on paper. In a democratic country there is no such thing as a free press. It is his business to put ideas on paper. In a democratic country there is no such thing as a free press. It is his business to put ideas on paper.

Let us thank God that when those who think that the printer is the only one to benefit from the election, they also, at one and the same time, step on the toes of the printer. Let us stop singing the dirges of democracy and let us stop singing the dirges of democracy and let us stop singing the dirges of democracy.

Dr. Boyd continues: "If all the municipalities in Ontario were to forgo an election for one year only, the saving of the printer's ink and money from several hundred municipalities would be a considerable amount."

"Several hundred municipalities" should be added together to find a "considerable" saving, but any one municipality might suffer, as a result of the loosening of the people's supervision, a "considerable" loss.

The estimated cost of a municipal election in Newmarket is $250, but the elected council may spend many times that amount on other than ordinary expenditures in a single evening.

Hydrant was close enough to lay hose lines. The department, however, were instrumental in preventing the fire from eating into the section of the building adjoining the dam, and thereby preventing its collapse.

A large stock of flour was in the mill at the time. Mr. T. H. Pascoe is one of the exhibitors at the Big Chicago Stock Show this week.

November 26th marked the completion of sixty-seven hundred new casts made by this veteran newspaper. Twice daily over CPB, Jim Hunter gives the news of the week in his own inimitable style.

The fire was said to have started in the warehouse and was first seen by Frank Barrett, who was returning from Simcoe to his home.
