cult as yet to see how completely people are co-operating with the government in curtailing the use of gasoline. E. E. Soubry, director of trade for the British Petroleum Board explained here and in the United States the urgent need for all the ocean tankers available to keep the British Air Forc eand Navy in full working trim. "It requires about 100,000 imperial gallons to fuel a battleship once" was one of his state ments that struck home. Munitions Minister C. D. Howe and oil controller George Courelle, as well as Provincial and Municipai authorities have been urging Canadians to cut down on motor rides and take other means of conserving gasoline. Otherwise there will be rationing of gas and oil in this country.

The bacon board also lecidedly has its problems. The board was at the proper state of the mean of conserving gasoline to the proper state the pressing needs of the hour there is an export on hose except to Br tain and British possessions, a reduction of 25 per cent in the deliveries of pork products by packers for domestic use and a further advance of $1. per hundred weight to packers for bacon for Britain. The bacon board also lecidedly has its problems. The board was already concerned about getting out the full balance o fthe British contract for 425 million pounds by the end of October, the time specified in the agreement. Now it is September 15th that is the time when the food ministry in London wants the balance delivered. Otherwise it will be difficult to keep up the regular ration of bacon in Britain. SATURDAY Charles Starrett in THE MEDICO OF dition of the Canadian newsprint industry a few years ago reached the point that government intervention was invoked in the interests of militard forest workers and the town dependent on them, a plan was evolved of the production. Mills were to produce on the production of the Corn Stalks, the reduced market would give a total output for the industry equivalent to what the reduced market would absorb. The plan was designed to mitigate the hardships of depression by providing some employment for all mills the here is a point however, which seems hard to determine, and that is whether the crowing was under the hondray of though on a necessarily reduced scale. Col. McCormick's companies however, were successful in obtaining sexemption from the government proration orders, by pleading that they had a "non-commercial" stat stand what in the world made the common lot that the colonel him self apparently always has been able to secure.

Camp Borden is Canadian Air Force work in a gown of blue figured crepe with corsage of red roses. The charming shool on the cantinent.

It is developing rapidly. I visite the probably the largest as well. It was in air training camp during the last Great War, from 1914 to 1913. In those far-off days, it wasn't too popular. Sand got into the buildings and the clothing and the food. Occasionally a veteran pilot remarks: I wonder if the old hangars are still at Camp Borden."

The pilots of the last war would see many changes. Some of the old buildings remain but they are hard to find among all the new ones. The
