I Peter 4:12-19; 5:6-11
GOLDEN TEXT. — If a man suffer as a Christian, let him not be ashamed; but let him glorify God in His name.—I Peter 4:16. THE LESSON IN ITS SETTING Time. — The First Epistle of Peter was written about A.D. 64.

Place.—The epistle states (5: 13) that it was written from Babylon, but regarding the meaning of the Babylon as used here, entators greatly disagree. It probably refers to Babylon in the sopotamia Valley.
The author of this and the Epistle which immediately follows it is the very familiar member of the apostolic company, Simon Peter, a native of Galilee and, by occupation a fisherman. stands out pre-eminently as the principal figure in the first twelve chapters of the book of "12. Beloved, think it not strange concerning the fiery trial among you, which cometh upon prove you as though strange thing happened unto you."

When we realize that through suffering God's hand is weaving us from the world and making u ready for going home, then out of the midst of sorrow, we will see God's designs justified.

"13. But inasmuch as ye are partakers of Christ's sufferings rejoice; that at the revelation of his glory also ye may rejoice with exceeding joy." There are two rejoicings in this verse, one for the present and one for the future, We may rejoice now, knowing that we are thus entering into Christ's suffering, and He knows all about our anguish; and we will surely rejoice when all the sufferings of life are over; when having remained faithful, we find ourselves in the presence of the Lord forever.

"14. If ye are reproached for the name of Christ, blessed are ye, because the Spirit of glory and he Spirit of God resteth upon you. 15. For let none of you uffer as a murderer, or a thief, or an evil-doer, or as a meddler n other men's matters." Even if a man is a Christian, and he takes piece of property which does not belong to him, and for this he is put into prison, there is really nothing to rejoice over, but a great deal to be ashamed of. So the Apostle warns these Christians that they should beware of doing anything which would cause suf fering on their part because of a justified punishment at the hands of the state.

"16. But if a man suffer a a Christian, let him not be ashamed; but let him glorify God in this name. 17. For the time is come for judgment to begin at the house of God; and if it egin first at us, what shall b the end of them that obey not the gospel of God?" Whatever our sufferings may be, because we are believers, there is a sure end to them, namely, the conclusion of this life. With the unbeliever and the sinner, it will be suffer at all, but in the life to come his punishment and suffering will continue forever. "18. And if the righteous is scarcely saved, where shall the ungodly and sinner appear? 19. Wherefore let them also that suffer according to the will of God commit their souls in well-doing unto a faithful Creator.

a faithful Creator.

"6. Humble yourselves therefore under the mighty hand of God; that he may exalt you in due time of casting all your anxiety upon him, because he careth for you." God resists the proud because they are not obedient to his laws. God does not work with the proud, he works against them." Treat cares as you do sins. Hand them over to Jesus one by one as they occur. There is no surer path to rest than to pass on to Jesus all the anxieties of life.

"8. Be sober, be watchful. Your adversary the devil, as a roaring lion, walketh about, seeking whom he may destroy." Christian people to-day who are con-scious of being fiercely assailed by evil ought not to be alarmed, but should realize that this experience of theirs is general everywhere, of true believers and that there is sufficient grace for every need in such dreadful times as these. "9. Whom withstand stedfast in your faith, knowing that the same sufferings are ac-complished in your brethren who are in the world." Resist the be-ginnings of evil; a mere remedy is all too late. If you have not resisted at the stage of thought, then summon every power of your soul to resist at the stage of the act. Bear in mind that each stage of a losing battle is more perilous, more difficult than the last.

10. And the God of all grace.

AGES OF OUR ROCKS Over the top of the pre-Cambrian formations, the great mining area of the north, are the various sedimentary rocks that cover great areas in southern On-The Pre-Cambrian shield tario. The Pre-Cambrian snieta is well known, and around its edges, and lying partly over it, are the unchanged limestones sandstone and shales, usually in flat-lying layers but sometimes twisted out of shope by the move-ments of the earth. Many of the top layers have been removed by glacial action in places but by ravelling across the country we can get a fairly complete picture Oldest of these sedimentary each formation. ocks are the Potsdam sandstone of the Cambrian period. They can be seen in the vicinity of Brockville and Ottawa, partly covering the Laurentian rocks. These sandstones were formed in the bays of a sea that stretched up the St. Lawrence valley many nillions of years ago. They are so old that they have been almost worn away and only remnants are extant now.

Four Rock Age Periods

Above the Cambrian sandstones are various limestones of the Ordovician period. These rocks over southeastern Ontario and south central Ontario except where the Pre-Cambrian comes to the surface, crossing the St. Lawrence in the vicinity of Gananoque. They reach as far west as the Hamilton escarpment and contain many fossile of the lower animals. Sponges, corals, echinoderms, crustaceans and other creatures have left their remains in these rocks but there are few plants and no higher animals. lillions of years were still to pass before the animals left the water. The next period, the Silurian, forms an important series of rocks methods employed. Surface trims across Ontario. The eastern edge of these formations starts at Niagara and runs northwestward as the Hamilton Escarpment, the Blue Mountains of Collingwood, the Bruce Peninsula, and Manitoulin island. Silurian rocks were lalid down in shallow seas and consist of sandstones, limestones and shales of varying hardness.

Britain Calls Older Workers

Men of Fifty and Women of Forty to be Registered For Essential War Work in Bri-

Growing demands for man-power by the armed forces and industry may require mobiliza-tion of men of 50 and women of 40 for essential war work, it was reliably forecast.

The prediction was made as the British Labor Ministry disclosed plans for registering, between August 2 and December 6, men of the 1897, 1896 and 1895 classes, estimated to total 900,000 and about 2,100,000 women of the 1916 and 1910 classes, inclusive, REPLACEMENTS NEEDED

It was predicted that the re-gistrations may not stop even with men of 50 and women of 40 because replacements are needed in the growing industrial army for younger men called up for the The women are needed not only armed forces. for industry but for auxiliary ser-

Corvettes from Canadian shipyards and manned by Canadian crews are giving efficient service in both United Kingdom and Canadian waters, Navy Minister Macdonald said at Ottawa. The minister said the bulk of the corvette order for British and Canadian navies given to Canadian shipyards a year ago will be in commission before the freezeup this fall and many of them have been in service several months. Working alongside similar ships from British yards, the Canadianbuilt corvette is proving exceedingly useful and seaworthy.

The ships for the Canadian Navy are named after Canadian towns r cities and will carry the names of these towns far and wide. The corvettes built in Great Lakes yards are delivered to the navy at Montreal and at once manned by corvette crews sent up from the

New Concrete Job Mast Be Covered

The curing of concrete The curing of concrete goes on rapidly during the first week or 10 days after mixing, and as this curing process requires moisture, many a job has been ruined by allowing it to dry too rapidly. Every new job of concrete work should be kept covered from the sun and wind, and thoroughly wet down twice a day for at wet down twice a day for at least a week. This is doubly im-portant in making tanks and will prevent unsightly and unsanitary cracks which may ruin the job. Where there is danger of freezing, the sand, gravel and water should be heated before mixing, and the work must be protected carefuly from cold until it GROW ROOTS NEW WAY Agriculture took to the air today for growing roots on the rootless cuttings by merely hanging them up in moist air.

The discovery, which free plants of all contact with any kind of soil to start their growth, is o immediate practical use to horti-culture. It was described in Science, the official journal American scientists, by P. P. Pir-one of the New Jersey agricultural experiment station.

A home-made box is used, with rubber curtain dividing the space into back and front. There are little holes in the curtain, with lath shelves in front. The rootless cuttings are laid on the shelves, the bare ends, where roots are desired, sticking through the holes. Behind this curtain, where the bare ends project, the air is kept extremely moist by another simple, cheap and easily home-made gadget. There is a trough of water at the top of the back-curtain space, with strips of ab ent cloth hanging down, acting as wicks to spread the moisture. In the high moisture thus created in the air, rorts have developed rapidly on many different plant cuttings, including begonias, ger-aniums, phlox and ivy. Dormant hardwood cuttings have produced successful rocts.

All these plants have been transplanted to soil and continued to develop normally. An advantage of the method is ease of seeing, through a glass back-wall of the box, how the roots are developing.
