A Weekly Review Of National Affairs

(By "Spectator")

Ottawa, March 4.—There has been lively and, on occasions, bitter debate in the house of commons during the past week. The subjects discussed have been wide in scope, some of them striking at the root of the most urgent problems of this critical hour.

There were sharp exchanges across the floor of the house when the minister of justice, Ernest Lapointe, as spokesman for the government, was vehemently opposed to the proposals that have been chosen by the people as the government they wanted during the war.
