LESSON V THE CHURCH ENLARGING ITS FELLOWSHIP—Acts 8
PRINTED TEXT Acts 8:1-8, 14-17, 25 GOLDEN TEXT.—They there-fore that were scattered abroad went about preaching the word. Acts 8:4. THE LESSON IN ITS SETTING

Time.—A.D. 36.
Place.—Samaria is the region in Palestine lying between Judaea and Galilee; Gaza was an old city of the Philistines fifty miles southwest of Jerusalem; Azotu was thirty miles north of Gaza, and Caesarea, a coastal city, was located midway between Joppa and Tyre.

This lesson is helpful to us in the study of the consequences of persecution in the Christian church, namely, an even greater dissemination of the Gospel than was taking place before the persecution everse. Saul the Persecutor

Acts 8:1. "And Saul was consenting unto his death. And there arose on that day a great persecution against the church which was in Jerusalem; and they were all scattered abroad throughwere all scattered abroad through-out the regions of Judaea and Samaria, except the apostles. 2. And devout men buried Stephen, and made great lamentation over him. 3. But Saul laid waste the church, entering into every house, and dragging men and women committed them to prison. 4. They therefore that were scattered abroad went about preach-

After the death and burial of Stephen, the persecution still rag-ed in Jerusalem. That temporary protection which had been extended to the rising sect by such men as Gamaliel was now at an Pharisees and Sadducees priests and people alike, indulged in the most violent and ungovernable fury. The eminent and active agent in this persecution was Saul (who here comes for the first time upon the stage of New Testament history): There are strong grounds for believing that, strong grounds for believing that, if he was not a member of the Sanhedrin at the time of St. Stephen's death, he was elected into that powerful senate soon after; possibly as a reward for the zeal he had shown against the heretic doing. Before we have read much further in the book of Acts, we will find that he, who is now the greatest persecutor of the early Church, Saul, will become the greatest preacher of the Gospel of the grace of God which ancient world ever knew. Thus is God able to work miracles within the hearts of men, and to mightily deliver His church in a time of great distress. The Gospel in Samaria

5. "And Philip went down t the city of Samaria, and proclaimed unto them the Christ." Samaria was populated by a nation of people utterly despised by the Jews, and equally despising Jewish neighbors—semi-Jews we might call them, who held rigidly to the traditions and laws of the Pentateuch, who were looking for the Messiah. A Jew considered himself contaminated even to go through the country of Samaria. But the love of God through Christ in Philip's heart had given him a love for all men every-Prejudices disappeared (We need this today as much as it was needed then). Philip, the evangelist, must not be confused with Philip, one of the Twelve Apostles. 6. "And the multitudes gave heed with one accord unto the things that were spoken by Philip, when they heard, and w the signs which he did. For from many of those that had unclean spirits, they came out, erying with a loud voice: and many that were palsied, and that were lame, were healed. 8. And

Philip proclaimed as a herald the Messiahship of Christ. He preached also as an evangelist the good news of the Kingdom of God, and of the name of Jesus. Undoubtedly Philip preached from the Old Testament, for surely no able show. New Testament book had yet been New Testament book had yet been written, but in his preaching he continually pointed to the Messiah, not the Messiah who was still to come, but the Messiah who had already come, fulfilling the prophecies that spoke of Him. In preaching Christ, he preached Jesus as the Messiah for whom all Jews and Samaritans were Receiving the Holy Spirit 14. "Now when the apostles that were at Jerusalem heard that Samaria had received the word of God, they sent unto them Peter and John." We find this same action again taken by the mother Church in Jerusalem when they heard of the great work which was being done in the city of Antioch (Acts 11:19-29), sending Barnabas to examine and report to them concerning the conditions of the revival about which they Gardening ...

ARTICLE No. 9 Probably the best garden soil for vegetables, flowers, grass, and most shrubs too, is a good loam. This is a soil that is not loam. This is a soil that is not all clay or all sand. It is really a mixture of both, plus a lot of humus, or rotted vegetable material like leaf mould. Now, of course, one does not find this ideal soil everywhere but it is possible to create it out of almost anything in Canada. Heavy Soil

Heavy Soil
Heavy soil, for instance, can be loosened permanently by the spading or plowing in of some well-rotted strawy manure or lacking this vegetable growth such as clover, quickly grown oats or lacking this vegetable grown such as clover, quickly grown oats or even weeds. In very small gardens it is possible to accure a load or two of sand, or loose block loof would. Sandy Soil Light, sandy soils are always greatly benefitted by the addition f strawy manure or black loam. The incorporation of vegetable matter such as straw and weeds or clover will add humus to the sand and make it hold moisture better and give it a more desirable body.

Take Your Time

Because we have long hours of sunlight in Spring and Summer, it really does not matter then if our garden goes in late, as once growth starts it is rapid. Garden beginners are advised to have patience. There is no need for rushing, in fact there are very good reasons against such a course.
Real growth with most vegetables does not get underway until the weather and soil begin to warm. There are some exceptions, of course. Lettuce, spinach, peas, nursery stock, should be planted as soon as possible as all like cool weather.

But for the medium hardy type of vegetable-things like beans, beets, corn and tomatoes-there is no advantage in sowing too soon. They will make little growth in any case until the soil really turns warm. Even Balkan

Red Cross Marks Scene of Crime

Montreal often ask questions regarding a big wood cross painted red visible over the fence of the Mother House of the Order of the Grey Nuns. Traffic officials of the Canadian National Railways carried a query to Dr. W. H. Atherton, authority or historia Mer erton, authority on historic Mon-treal, and he recounted a story in explanation. In the time of the French regime when Montreal was beginning to extend beyond the fortified walls, "la Chemin du Roi" (The King's Road) straggled along the edge of the mid-town terrace about the present line of Dorchester Street. At the point where Guy street now intersects, stood a farm house and the farmer was credited with pos-sessing a store of gold. A bandit attempted to rob the farmer and when the latter resisted, kille the farmer, his wife and a daughter. Captured, French justice de-creed that he should be hanged and quartered, the body to swing on the gibbet erected at the scene of the crime. Afterwards a cross was placed at the spot. Yes straightened, the cross was in the centre of the thoroughfare, an on request of the municipal aut orities the Grey Nuns agreed to maintain in perpetuity a cross to mark this page in the record of the former French colony.

North To Alaska Is Holiday Call

Color and Drama of Early Days Are Still To Be Seen There By the Traveller

Planning a holiday to Alaska a pleasant occupation which in itself will provide delightful pro-logue to the actual scenes of this Northerly land. From the first, the intending traveller is impressed with the color and the drama of the early days. The romance of the gold rush period led to the present development which has roven the real value of what had been considered a profitless folly but which turned out to be one of Nature's rich treasure houses. It is not necessary to undertake a lengthy course in the historic before going to Alaska: once the traveller has entered the awe inspiring fjords leading to the ports of Alaska, the very majesty of the country appeals to him and soon he will be eager to learn all that is possible of the territory and neighboring Yukon across the Canadian border.

It's An Accessible Place Alaska has a distant sound, but it is a most accessible place. Railway connections to Vancouver are numerous and comfortable. At Vancouver, principal city and chief port of British Columbia, handsome craft of the Canadian National Railways, operate cruises to Skagway and return. From
