GETTING MORE MILK Canada should be following the lead of the United States in seekgreater milk production her cows. Across the line, the Deartment of Agriculture has begun a campaign of more scientific dairy practice whose aim is a four increase in milk prod

If the United States needs to step up the volume of its milk supply — and its objective is to have more milk products to send to Britain — then our need is even greater. The Old Land looks to this Dominion for major portions of the powdered milk and cheese which are such important items of British diet. While the word has one out that we have assured the shipment of cheese which Britain asks of us this year, it is known that she will take almost as much as we can produce, and the mere attainment of the original objective should not be the signal for slackening off in our effort.

There has, perhaps, been too much of an impression that hens and cows are producers of eggs and milk with a strictly limited capactly. Modern scientific agriculture knows that there are ways of increasing production, through proper feeding and care, and it is the patriotic thing today to get the most out of these farm animals.

WILL STRIKE AT RIGHT TIME Have we got a design for victory? That is the question which is frequently popped. To which the Express replies: And if we had, would we tell our enemy? What is expected of us? Is it expected that Winston Churchill will walk from Downing Street to Trafalgar Square, mount the Nelson Column and from that lofty eminence has angue Hitler in such words as: We are going to invade you here and there. We are going to beat and bust you by this means and that means. Get all your tsrength together because we are going to attack you at this point or at that? Did you ever hear such lunacy? Of course we have a design for victory. Thoughtful men see its chape. As a nation no doubt we have to bide our time. When we strike it must be on the right front and at the right moment. We will strike with finality and we must be patient and await that stroke while we build up our strength in field and factory, in -London Daily Express.

VIRGINIA DEER By the time this article appears in print the deer hunters will be on their way home from their favorite hunting lodge. They may or may not have a deer but at least they will have had a good time in the outdoors at a good season of the year. I think more hunters so after our Virginia deer than go after any other big game animal. For the deer is big game and though it does not compare with the moose or elk, yet if you pack one out of the woods you will realize they are big.

Virginia deer are animals of the brule, of the second growth small timber and of the lake country. They are seldom found in the deep woods. There is an interesting reletion here. In the days when On tario was covered with heavy timber there were not many deer. As cutting and fire did its work the deer moved in and increased greatly, spreading into northern Ontario where they were not known in the early days. Game laws, of course, had hardly been thought of and so the first increase of deer were killed off. Greater respect for the law and better laws came about and the deer started to increase again. But another factor began to operate. We are developing many forests in Ontario and some of these are coming to the age when they are not suitable for deer. In other words the deer live on the under-brush and the small trees. When the forest top becomes close and shuts out the sunlight, the underbrush and small trees disappear The deer move out and so we find great woods that will not suppor our deer.

An or-dinary microscope — that is one that uses ordinary light — can be made to magnify 2,000 times. That is its limit; but scierce, wanting to go further, made a microscope which uses ultra violet light rays which are invisible to the human eye but not to the lens of the camera. With this photographs were obtained 5,000 times life size. Not content with this, Dr. Zworykin and other specialists of New York have constructed an electron microscope using rays so short that objects are magnified DANDELION RUBBER While touring the Tien-Shan Mountains in 1931, a young Soviet student, named Bukhanovich, and a farmer, Spivachenko, found at an altitude of over 6,000 feet above sea level a variety of dandelion, now known as the kok-sagyz, which proved to be a rubber-making plant. Seeds of the dandelion have since been disseminated all over the Soviet Union. In 1940 an area was planted ten times as large as in 1937, and thousands of acres were to be added this year. A comnercial crop of Brazilian hevea can be gathered only in the fifth year after planting, but kok-sagyz can be utilized as caoutchouc in the first year. And the caoutchouc is said to be satisfactory.

Steel production in Canada dur ing the first seven months of 1941 amounted to 1.345.751 tons as against 1,127,828 tons and 691,290 tons in the corresponding periods of 1940 and 1939, respectively.

The feed situation is being solved just now, but only through extraordinary measures which have been taken by the Dominion, in the way of assisting in the payment of transportation costs from the West. This is an expensive system. It is far better to have the fodder available on the ground, and only by taking thought now can the farmers have assurance of adequate supplies when they are needed next year.
