STUNT PICTURES: This is a simple but interesting "stunt" shot - fun to take on a winter evening. How to get such shots is explained below.

EVERY now and then, a stunt picture adds variety to the camera hobby. Of course, you don't want a regular diet of them. But it's fun to have a few in the album...

The picture above is a fine example of a "stunt shot" - and yet it was really quite easy to take. The girls simply stood in a circle, then bent over and put their heads together, like a football huddle...

shows up too large - being careful, of course, not to hurt anybody's feelings. Doubtless you will have seen pictures of a person sitting on a bench, with his feet toward the camera...

Eight members of the Calf Clubs of Halimand County with their calves will visit the Canadian National Exhibition, and take part in Inter-Club activities during this week. Four boys, representing the Shorthorn Club and four come from the Holstein Club. They are as follows:

Shorthorn Club: Roy Hedley, Canfield; Ivan Hedley, Canfield; Dalton Lyons, Dunville; Holstein Club: Gordon Barntford, Nanticoke; Bruce Harrop, Hagersville; Oswald Werner, Nanticoke; Keith Banfield, Nanticoke.

The boys left early Tuesday morning will show their calves on Wednesday in an object contest in air. This is easy indoors. You just hang the object by a black thread, and light it with a photo lamp. Then you place a piece of cardboard a foot or two in front of the light, or two so it just shades the thread but doesn't shade the subject. And the thread is then "lost" - it isn't even there.

Try some of these stunts. They'll give you a whole evening of fun - and you'll get pictures that really surprise your friends.

Another stunt that provides lots of fun is to have part of a subject too close to the camera, so that it
