MURDER IN FERRY COMMAND

BY A W O'BRIEN TRAGIC NEWS CHAPTER XIII

The three days after Carole Fiske's escape to St. John's were the longest Clyde Dawson had ever known. The Eastern Air Command had told him that a blizzard was rolling in over northeastern Newfoundland and it was already "ceiling zero" at the airport where he must land. The last boat for three days had sailed

that morning from North Sydney for Port-aux-Basques, to connect with the Newfoundland Railway Shortly after 3.30 in the morning of the fourth day, the telephone awakened Dawson. An Eastern Air Command officer informed him crisply that the weather was clearing and a plane would be ready to take off at By noon Dawson was interviewing the veteran captain in command of the St. John's port. The officer's face was grim "The Fort Glengarry was torpedoed off Cape Race, Newfoundland, two nights ago!"

Dawson grasped the arms of his chair, his knuckies showing "Are there any survivors re ported?" His voice sounded strange to his own ears. Yes, but not many. There was only one woman, in fact-a maor's wife en route to join her husband here." A numbing sensation of tragedy enveloped Dawson as he rose, with a mumbled word of thanks, and left the office. Life has a strange way of interweaving hu man hearts, he thought, as he made his way along the street. If only he had revealed his identity sooner, Carole Fiske would not have continued to Newfoundland on her pathetic search for Darwin Lemov and her rother. It was useless for Dawson to argue that Carole's actions had left him no other choice than to regard her as an enemy agent. Somehow he should have gleaned some inkling of the facts before Paul Dexel, in his confession, had disclosed that Bernard Skrol really Bernard Fiske-was Carcle's brother and the Dexels were her half-brothers.

he mother was German and had married twice. Her first husband, father of the Dexels, had died shortly after coming to the United States from Germany. Her second husband, Fiske, was of German-American stock. The two Dexel boys and Bernard Fiske had become enthusiastic Bund members in Chicago, With the outbreak of the war abroad, the girl repeatedly pro-tested to them about their continuing Bund activities. When her brother Bernard enlisted and went to Newfoundland her letters to a set of Lemoy's prints, but his only opportunity came after the hanging, when the body went to the vault. He had to work fast, and he found it impossible to unbend the fingers and work in the cramped, ghostly quarters. So he hacked off the hand. But, as Dawson had deduced, Dexel had been forced to hurry off when the investigator left St. John's sudden-Dawson was of major interest to the spy ring after the hours he'd spent in the death cell.

Dexel's one faux pas was when he threw the hand into Darwin's cabin aboard the Caribou — a blunder inspired by the Nazi principle of terrorizing the enemy.

Back in Chicago, John Dexel hadn't dared tell Carole Fiske about her brother and Darwin Lemoy. If she had known that Bernard was dead and Parwin was in prison awaiting execution, she in the hope of getting Darwin off plain Darwin's silence. John had faked a story that Darwin had killed Paul Dexel in an argument over the spy ring and was hiding from the Newfoundland police.

There it was, a superb case thoroughly ironed out. Dawson had started with a snapshot of a girl and a piece of beefsteak on a hanged man's heel, and un covered a major spy ring. But there was no thrill of satisfaction

A Brief History of The Bri-

iety was founded, men and women who had seen the "Victory" start on her voyage to Cadiz and Tra falgar were still young. Fappily the degrading condi tions pertaining in those days for sailors ashore have been swer away in the course of time, and this is partly due to the practica severance by the British Sailor Through all these years the So elety has moved with the times and has built up a world-wide chain of service, by which (to us the words of His Majesty the King when Duke of York) "it touches the Sailor at every point of his life. It trains him, houses him gives him recreation, tends him in his old age and helps his dependents. In short, it labours cease-lessly and devotedly for all that magnificent body of men upon whom the prosperity of the British Empire so largely depends."

Hostels round the coasts of the ritish Isles and away in the port of the seven seas have been es ablished—over 100 hostels, sta tions and agencies through which the sailor is served in the manner described by His Majesty.

No matter whether a sailor goes to Haifa, Bristol, London, Vic-torio, B.C., Bilbao or Milford Haven (to take a few examples) he will receive a warm welcome from the Port Missionary and will find a comfortable bed, good food, re-creation and friends. So happy are the conditions in the hostel that there are many examples of men who have gone round the world keeping constantly within the broad limits of the Society by making use of its hostels. It is to the hostels, too, that many sur vivors of sea tragedies are brought

THE MEANING OF CHURCH

THE LESSON IN ITS SETTING Time. — The Christian Church was born in the summer of the year in which our Lord died, A.D. The Apostle Paul wrote Corinthians about A.D. 59, and his Epistle to the Colossians was Things Which Are Above "If then ye were raised to gether with Christ, seek the things that are above, where Christ is, seated on the right hand of God. . Set your mind on the things that are above, not on the things that are upon the earth. 3. For ye died, and your life is hid with Christ in God. 4. When Christ, fested, then shall ye also with him be manifested in glory." The centre of our life is to be focused Christ, the ambition of our life is to please Him, and all contacts we make with earthly things are only that we might live noral Christian lives, things always being considered incidentals, not the things to which we are at-tached, or the things we desire above everything else, but simply neans for carrying on this human life which God has given us. If we are deter mined to set our minds on things above, not on things on the earth, then certainly changes will have to be made in our life, from the life we lived before Christ came into our hearts, to the life that Christ expects us to live as He redeems and indwells us. Paul sets forth this life in symbolic nguage, picturing the old life to be as a garment that must be put off, and the new life as another garment that should be put

The principle of forgiveness is that of our Lord's teaching and of the prayer He taught His disciples (Matt. 6:12-15). 14. "And above all these things put on love, which is the bond of perfectness."
