It is rumored that power companies in the province of Quebec are not very anxious to sell more power under contract to the Ontario. power under contract to the Ontario Hydro-Electric Commission. There is power waiting to be harnessed on the Ottawa river, half of it owned by Ontario. It likely will be suggested that these sites be developed in advance of contracting with exist ing power companies in the province of Quebec to provide additional power for Hydro.

There is no record of any negotiations pending whereby Ontario's likely shortage could be met by importations from Quebec. But if the so-called power barons are indifferent, or even reluctant, to embark on large expenditures in order to meet an Ontario shortage, it would be understandable. The burnt child dreads the fire. Back in 1935, it will be recalled, their contracts were repudiated by the Ontario legislature and the present political-boss of Ontario is the same man as the one in power then.

After the war, it is highly probable there will be a surplus of power in Ontario. Has anyone with a contract in Ontario any assurance that Mr. Hepburn will not again tell him to go jump in the lake? In view of the war needs, Ontario should seelto get power from Quebec, the powor barons, if they are patriotic, will supply it. But they may be pardoned if they hope that Ontario will

THE JARVIS RECORD, JARVIS, ONTARIO, THURSDAY, MARCH 12th, 194

We recall the story of the note explorer who spent a couple of years among the savages of the upper Amazon and once attempted a forced march through the jungle. The party made extraordinary speed for the first few days, but on the third morning, when it was time to start, the explorer found all the natives sitting on their haunches, looking very solemn and making no preparation to start. "They are waiting," their chief explained, "iney cannot move farther until their souls have caught up with their bodies."

We thought we'd like you to keep the above in mind because we feel it beald a moral of some sort. The aftermath of this war is going to be a struggle against privilege and against future poverty, war, and hedgemony. I look with dread to the future post-war area, when, as a basis of comparison, I recall the (aftermath) days following the last Great War. It seems to me that the impetus given every evil that predominates today can be directly traced back to those fateful days following the last war!

We have been travelling too fast and we have outstripped our souls!

Some men have indeed reached the status of manhood without loosing any of their childish feeling, fancies and follies, yet there is not a more hopeful feature of the moral and wrong, but, THINK IT OVER.
