In The Garden

Because grass is a cool-weather plant, any work with lawns should be started just as quickly in the Spring as possible, experts point out. This does not mean, of course, that the soil should be worked while it is still wet. That ort of thing never helps in any and of gardening. But once one can walk over the ground without getting shoes muddy, then the rake can be brought into play. n both new lawns or patching, the soil should be raked fine and level. Authorities advise sowing only the highest quality of seed mixtures and as thick as directions specify. To gct even re-sults, it is best to make a double sowing, one across and once lengthwise. Small patches can be protected from the birds by use

Both new and old lawns benefit from rolling while the ground is still soft. Grass, like any other plant, benefits from rich soil and an annual application of fertilizer. This improves the growth and also the color of the grass itself.

SOIL BUILDING

Perfect garden soil is a light, rich loam, which means a mix-ture of sand, clay and rotted vegetable matter. The latter is chnically known as humus. Unless one is lucky, it is not usual find such a perfect combine tion in one's own garden. But with a little care, something very similar can be created. quent cultivation in itself will go far towards creating a new garden soil. Piowing or spading plus harrowing or raking, will sen up the toughest cay, and after a few years it is amazing how much easier it will be to will be the incorporation of humus, such as well-rotted manure, green vegetable matter like a crop of weeds, clover or green oats.

NINE LIVES By Alice Grant Rosman

When Samuel Penguin first came to the Rosman's, he was already a cat of character. But he was aloof in the beginning. Only gradually did he unbend and permit familiarity; it was an occasion when the first purr was

Here is his biography—the story of his development, of his everlordship in the family of the London he came to know, and of the war he was to experience. Nine Lives is London past and present, for Miss Rosman goes back to her own introduction to it some thirty years ago.

Sam's adventures have been many and his friends legion. He has accepted tribute from all cor-ners of the globe, and he has taken his part in the war with the same royal fortitude. He saw his mistress in gas masks, was introduced to an Animal Post, spent the nights of raids in shelters, and took soldiers, refuger and ambulance girls just as they came. In a bomb-emergency, even shared a dugout with a dog. Sam bore the ordeal well, but the dog had a nervous breakdown. The best way to convey the quality of this enchanting book is to say that Alice Rosman wrote it. That it contains innumerable black-and-white drawings by Di ana Thorne is to prove that it is a book of unique charm.

Hunters tell "tall tales' about the speed of the duck that got away, and there is ground for their stories. Canvasbacks and teal are known to fly at 50 to 55 miles an hour. A pheasant's best speed has been ascertained to be 40 miles an hour, while a partridge travels about 25 miles an hour. Birds of prey, such as eagles and hawks, have great flying speed, but not for sustained flights over long distances. They are able to sweep down upon their victims with sudden bursts of speed, which
