We may have a wrong impression of the average housewife, but if they can arrive at a reasonable standard of reduction in accordance with the new regulations, they possess something, which we readily admit, we have failed to give them credit for.

On the other hand some people are regular coffee hounds. Their one third reduction in consumption may entitle them to three times the amount the ordinary family would ordinarily use. Yet according to the may entitle them to three amount the ordinary family would ordinarily use. Yet according to the order they will be entitled to three times as much. The same with tea. We may have a misconception of the whole thing, but we still think conscription of men and women at the outset, along with a system of equalization of wages and salaries, and a strict card rationing system for all scarce commodities, so that all would share alike, would have been better for all concerned, and
