Israel's Law "And all the men of his city shall stone him to death with stones: so shalt thou put away th evil from the midst of thee; an all Israel shall hear, and fear." I should be clearly recognized that the power of parents over their children (Exod. 21: 7; Gen. 31 15), even to putting them to death which prevailed in early Israalso to this degree (Gon. 38 : 24) is here enforced and controlled by public authority. In looking at this severe law one should be reminded of God's purpose for Israel among the nations, which demanded severe leg-islation. Laws may greatly vary, for the same crime or misdemean or, from day to day, and under varying circumstances. Thus, e.g., it is not a crime for a man to fall asleep over his work, though it is very bad form, and he may get dismissed for it;-but he cannot

Israel was to be kept a clean, pure, priestly nation, to bear witness to the holiness of earth, and this holy calling greatly enhanced the seriousness of transgressions and iniquities. The Same God

It is marvelous to think tha It is the same God who speaks in Luke 15; but how different the action! How different the style! Under the Law, the father is called upon to lay hold of his son and bring him forth to be stoned. Under grace, the father runs to meet the returning son, falls on his neck and kisses him; has the fat-ted calf killed for him, and makes the house ring with the joy that fills his own heart at getting back the poor wandering spendthrift. In God, in righteous government, executing judgment upon the rebel-lious; in Luke we see the heart of God pouring itself out in ten-derness upon the poor repentant one, giving him the assurance that it is His own deep joy to get back

His lost ones. "Be not among winebibbers, among gluttonous eaters of flesh: for the drunkard and the glutton shall come to poverty; and drows iness will clothe a man with rags." Gluttonous eating is here put in the same category with drunkeness. There are people who de-nounce any kind of infoxicating

One is as bad as the other. Two reasons are given why we should avoid the company of those indulging in this manner. In the first place, such men are swiftly ed as guilt, they had been cover-ed with the righteousness of God running toward a state of poverty, and secondly, because they must, by the laws of human nature be frequently overcome with a spirit of drowsiness which prevents them from enthusiastically entering into their daily work. In some strange way God has established certain economic laws on earth which allow the people of the earth to make a decent living, whereby the necessities of life can be provided. But millions of people who have had an adequate income, and could have been comfortable, have found themselves finally in abject poverty because of the drain that a thirst for II-Right in God's Sight "Or know yo not that the un-
