WHAT SCIENCE

Smokeless Powder The shells that Americans and their Allies are firing all over the world are propelled by hard perforated, gray and taffy color ed grains of smokeless powder. As a relative or friend of a fighting man, you may take confort the knowledge that it is the best military explosive ever devised, as superior to the powder used in other wars as electric lighting is to kerosene. Used only as a propellant which means it carries the shell where it has been aimed at-it is actually neither smokeless nor a powder, but it has two essential virtues. It becomes wholly gaseous nad burns at almost any desired speed, and it leaves the gun barrel free of corrosive dirt. years restricted the successful use of longe range, rapid fire rifled . . .

Smokeless powder is used in all rifle, machine guns, anti-aricraft and land and naval cannon. To powdermen it is known as single base explosive because it is made of ether and alcohol, wood or cotton fibres, plus certain acids. Nitroglycerin, the essential ingredient of double base powder, is not present. The substances that make up smokeless powder are in-

RADIO REPORTER BY FROST

Few of us in Canada appreciate the significant part that radio has played in Europe towards moulding the fortunes (or should we more properly call happy continent in the years prior to the outbreak of the war. Commencing in 1923 the Italian radio has been blasting out propaganda against the democracies for home and foreign consump-tion. In 1933 Germany followed suit. Immediately upon the coming to power of Hitler a most elaborate system was set up for broadcasting the principles of the Nazi creed. Thousands upon thousands of loudspeaker systems had been erected in Ger-man cities and towns whereby people would be regaled with Fuehrer worship as they passed along the stacets. This radio and public address system supplemented the networks of Ger-man stations which hourly hammered the supposed glories of German National Socialism into the home. Regimentation by radio played a part no less important than that imposed upon the people of Germany by the Gestapo, the military and other implements of the Nazi machine. -0-What of the post-war world? Can this vast enemy radio mechanism be turned to good account in consolidating the peace? Political leaders of the United Nations believe it can, and so

THE CASE OF BOOB SMITH (A Leaflet on The Loan, by Stephen Leacock)

I am afraid we'll have to let | other. He doesn't go fou looks like it. At any rate that's get sick of them. But three time a week to a good movie and a felthe way he looks at it himself. ler needs no other diversion till the next time. So we can't touch that. It's like that all the way fly; in fact he never has. But, you see, this loan stuff is out of the question for him because he's down already—he's explained it to me himself—to rock bottom.

Boob gets a spring suit—a good gets a good gets a spring suit—a good gets a good gets a spring suit—a good gets a good ge to me himself—to rock bottom.

Take the question of cigars.

Boob gets a spring successive one, something pretty classy. When he gets a suit he wants it to look pretty slick because that is—he admits it—his one extravagance. He gets no other suit till the fall. This year he may either get a light pepper and salt tweed and wear it with a geranium or a soft blue serge to wear with a white daisy. He doesn't know; it keeps a felier thinking. And in any case his friends have grown to expect it of him-so there you are.
Mind you, as I say, Boob Smith has cut everything else to rock bottom. He's cut off his subscrip-tion to the Boy Scouts and the Children's Hospital, and the Deaf and Dumb, and he's not sending man's one luxury, that keeps him working, there's no sense in cuthis niece to school any more. It fact he's made all the sacrifices he can. We'll have to let Boob out. But you'll see him in the parade in hi spring suit.
