Some Reminders Of Inflation Days

Prices After First War Compared With 1943 Prices

don't remember what happened in the days of dizzy inflation, here are some illustrations, by the Winnipeg Free Press. Flour, just after the First Great War, cost $8.00 against $2.95 today. Sugar was 22 cents a pound, as compared with the nine or 10 cents of 1943. Eggs wer 80 cents a dozen. Potatoes cost $4.00 a bushel. Side acon was 55 cents a pound. Clothing, shoes, household furnishings -all soared to unprecedented heights. The cost of living imposed a cruel hardship on those dependent upon fixed incomes. Pensioners, small salaried folk and people living on income from in-

In 1918 bread cost 16 cents a loaf. Canned corn came as high today. Tinned tomatoes were double their price. Jam, which today, when there is any, can be bought for 60 cents, cost $1.40. Feed for livestock was proportionately high. Oats costing $2.75 today could not be bought for less than $5.25. Scratch feed was $4.60
