chickens or sunsets. Both are lovely. And do you know, you can almost watch chickens grow in intelligence as well as in size. Or perhaps I should say -- observe their instinct develop - because chickens never have very much intelligence at any time. For instance, the first day we had the chicks, I could cough, sneeze, thing at all and the chickens took no notice whatsoever. The second day, when I shook the fire down, bang away at the stove or do anvthe little things stood absolutely still, as much as to say-"What's going to happen to us now?" The third day they were used to stove noises but when I sncezed, rather violently, and twice in succession. they made one wild scramble to the far corners of the pen. And they didn't come out until they were sure that the noise they had heard had no relation to Mt. Vesuvius in eruption.

then I got some new drinking already in the pen. Several of the more venturesome chicks crowded around the fountains, got very close to the saucers, and then backed away. That would happen time and again. Then one, with more courage than the rest, gave one quick peck at the water and then backed away quicker than eyer. He shook his head and really looked quite surprised. "Why that is only water in that queer looking thing", I think I'll try it again!" So he came back, and his return gave the others courage. Pretty soon

"And he was certain days with the disciples that were at Damascus and straightway in the synagogues he proclaimed Jesus, that he is the Son of God. And all that heard him were amazed, and said, is that this he that in Jerusalem made havoc of them that called on his name? And he had come bring them bound before the chief

What a great change had taken days before this he was the most believed this very thing which he knew that some tremendous power must have laid hold of him to bring about such a transformation. "But Saul increased the more in strength and confounded the lews that dwelt at Damascus, proving that this is the Christ." Saul became more energetic in his new labors. Saul knew the great truths of the Old Testament as probably few men of his generation knew them. No one was able to confound him.

But Rusty had recently taken up with bad company and the two dogs went on the rampage and badly mauled a neighbour's geese. Naturally, no matter what Rusty meant to us, we could not keep a dog that gave trouble, and would probably give more, to any of our neighbours. We had already done what we could. To cure the wander-lust, except in winter, Rusty was tied up as much as possible and was always in at night. But what kind of a life is that for a

And they watched the gates also day and night that they might kill him: but disciples took him by night, and let him down through the wall, lowering him in a basket." What a difference between Saul's original intention to enter into Damascus in his burning hatred aganst the Chritians with the picture we now have of him, hounded by these very Jews who would seek to murder him, and being helped out of the city by the disciples whom a few weeks ago

"And when he was come to Jerusalem. He assayed to join himself to the disciples: and they were all afraid of him, not believing that he was a disciple." It must have been a bitter disappointment to Saul; coming fresh from the persecution of the Jews, to find himself repulsed by the Bre-thren. The disciples may have

'Shadow' Time-Table For Invasion Trains

Britain's railways are ready to play their part in the invasion of Europe. They have created a complete "shadow" service of freight trains which can be put on the lines in a few hours.

The total probable journeys, running into thousands, have all been classified, routed, and timed. In consequence rail and military chiefs have a complete time-table of "shadow" services any of which can be ready at short notice. Each train in the "shadow" service carries a code number which has its own gnificance for railway For instance, "ABC 4217" might mean that a locomotive and 40 trucks must be at Depot "A" to load up and be ready to leave at by an indicated route, to Port "X,"
